A native of Oregon, Mr. Bailey was educated at the University of Oregon and Linfield College. He came East in 1923 and received his theological training at Colgate-Rochester Divinity School. He has been pastor of churches in San Francisco, Carleton, Oregon, York, N. Y., East Bloomfield, N. J., Springfield and North Adams, before going to Utica in January 1938.

WINCHESTER OBSERVED FOURTH

Fine Show for Kiddies Party — Rain Curtailed Afternoon Race

With the exception of a torrential thunderstorm that prevented the running of the last two events of the playground meet in the afternoon at Leonard Field, Winchester had ideal weather for its Fourth of July program, plenty of bright sunshine and not too much heat.

The day was ushered in with the ringing of the town bells and this ceremony was repeated at noon and at night.

The usual Kiddies party was held at the town hall in the morning, the hall being filled with a happy crowd of youngsters who thoroughly enjoyed the four excellent acts of vaudeville, especially selected with a youthful audience in mind.

Sago, the Clown, opened the bill and this artist, lately with Ringling Circus, was just what was needed to get the show away to a good start. The kiddies went for him. Bert Hanley, a comedy juggler, kept things moving at a rapid pace, and was followed by Al Libby, a real one-man show and ventriloquist extraordinary, who mystified both young and old with some of his feats of legerde main. Buck Leahy, a real human pretzel, was the final act and put on a clever contortionist show that combined some skilled balancing with the twisting of his small person into impossible knots.

Howard Walsh, head of the Legion committee charged with conducting the day's activities, was master of ceremonies, and another very real contribution to the success of the show was Mrs. Briscoe B. Gray of Myrtle street, who stepped into what for a while seemed a big breach in the program and ably filled the pianist's post for the show. Without her the bill would have lost much of its effectiveness, and everyone appreciated her willingness to fill a difficult assignment at a moment's notice. The actors were especially pleased to have her assistance for without her music their work would have lost a lot of its effectiveness.

As the kiddies entered the hall they had to pass a large jar of peas, and each youngster was given an opportunity to guess the number. There were 709 peas in the jar and two boys, Ned Moore and Richard Farrell, each guessed 701 for the nearest to the correct amount. Ned got a handsome world globe on a stand, and Richard, a table tennis set, each being loudly applauded as they went to the stage to get their gifts from Mr. Walsh.

CARUSO—CALLAHAN

Miss Rosemary Callahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Callahan of Trenton street and John Caruso, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Caruso of Main street, Medford, were married Sunday afternoon, July 2, at 4 o'clock at St. Mary's Church. The officiating clergyman was St. Mary's pastor, Rev. Fr. John P. O'Riordan, and the bridal music was played by Mrs. D. Irving Reardon, the church organist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white slipper satin with inserts of Venetian lace, styled with a sweetheart neckline, fitted basque and full skirt extending into a court train. Her old fashioned bouquet was centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Pauline Callahan of Winchester, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Teresa Callahan of Stoneham, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Lucy Caruso of Cambridge, sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

The matron of honor wore a dress of aqua net over taffeta and carried a bouquet of red roses. The bridesmaids carried pink roses and babies' breath and wore dresses of pink net over taffeta.

Robert Caruso of Cambridge was best man for his brother. Ushers were Edward Callahan and Pvt. Francis J. Callahan, brothers of the bride; and John Macurio of Medford, a cousin of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony a reception is held in Association Hall. Mrs. Callahan, the bride's mother wore a baby blue street length dress with a corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Caruso, wore pink roses and sweet peas with her street length dress of Navy blue.

After a wedding journey to New York and Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Caruso will be at home to their friends after July 16 at 26 Marion street, Medford.

HENRY CALDWELL ROBINSON

Henry Caldwell Robinson, former superintendent of the Southern Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad and a native of Winchester, died Saturday, July 1, in Worcester where he had been making his home since leaving Winchester during the early fall of 1936. For many years he made his home at 17 Winthrop street.

Mr. Robinson was born Aug. 4, 1853, the son of Rev. Rubin T. and Clara A. Robinson. His father was pastor of the old First Congregational Church which burned in 1853 and at so served for a time as pastor after the present church was erected.

After receiving his education in the Winchester schools, Mr. Robinson, in 1870, at the age of 17, went to work as an apprentice in the machine shop of the old Boston and Lowell Railroad. Two years later he became a clerk in the Boston freight office of the road, being advanced to superintendent in September, 1873. He became a train dispatcher in 1879 and chief train dispatcher the following year.

When the Boston and Maine Railroad took over the Boston and Lowell Mr. Robinson was made assistant superintendent of the Southern Division Dec. 1, 1895. He was advanced to superintendent May 1, 1905, and continued in this position until he retired Nov. 28, 1922.

Mr. Robinson was widely known in railroad circles and his long years with the Boston and Lowell and Boston and Maine Railroads provided him with a fund of information and anecdotes, some of which were incorporated in a series of articles about the early days of local railroading which were published in the Star some years ago and widely read. Mr. Robinson, himself, was well and favorably known here as a genial personality and always a local committee's problems were his many friends. He was long a member of the First Congregational Church.

Mr. Robinson and his wife left town to make their home in Worcester with their son, now Major Harold A. Robinson, AAF, stationed at Pocatello, Idaho. Mrs. Robinson died in Worcester several years ago. Major Robinson survives with a brother of the deceased, Rev. Edward A. Robinson of Billerica and a sister, Mrs. George Murray of Duxbury.

The funeral was held Wednesday with committal services at Forest Hills Cemetery.

Ensign Margaret (Peg) Carroll of the WAVES was in town over the holiday visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Carroll of Lincoln street, and her sister, Miss Helen Kay Carroll, who is Winchester's Red Cross swimming instructor.

LEST WE FORGET

In the comfort and security of our homes we are depending on our boys at the front to protect our sacred traditions and they are depending on us to provide that which may save their lives and keep them fit for the work they have undertaken. During July, work on the home front is apt to lag so it is our responsibility to renew our efforts to make sure that the supply of blood plasma and surgical dressings may be adequate to meet the increasing demand. Victory will come the sooner if we all do our part.

WAR PARENTS

On Friday evening, June 30, Winchester Chapter, No. 16, War Parents of America, Inc., was established at the meeting held in the Art Gallery of the Public Library.

National President, Roy L. McQuillan, made a splendid impression by his clear, definite and inspiring address, outlining the objectives of the organization and the need for a local chapter in every community.

Mr. George A. Saltmarsh, temporary president, opened the meeting and then introduced Mr. McQuillan, Representative William E. Barksdell of the State Legislature spoke as a Winchester war parent who has two sons in the service and asked the cooperation of all parents in backing up this effort for their boys and girls. Mr. Charles B. Warren, newly elected Commander of Winchester Post, No. 97, American Legion also spoke briefly and favorably for the new organization.

Music was furnished by Mrs. Mary Dyson, who led the singing of the National Anthem and also rendered a solo number, accompanied by Mrs. Bernice Coleman at the piano.

Although on the eve of the long holiday week end, the parents present recognized that war takes no holiday for over the Fourth of July the war plants, the army, navy and marines, the merchant marine and the government are very much at work; the boys in Normandy, in the South Pacific, and our Allies all over the world are working; so are our enemies. Because of this sentiment another meeting will be called during July to elect permanent officers and to appoint committees.

PARROT ON THE LOOSE

Two weeks ago residents in the vicinity of Winthrop street were awakened early one morning by the cries of a bird, which were loud and raucous and seemed to come from the top of some tall poplar trees. The bird was finally located and identified as a parrot, at that time whooping it up on the top of a tree at the home of Mr. Leon Tuck on Washington street.

Monday morning the parrot was again seen in that neighborhood, this time in a tree at the home of Dr. Richard W. Sheehy. Any one missing a parrot should take a stroll through that part of the town. Apparently the bird is wanting around for some one.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED

In response to a call from John Lennon of 2 Cross street, Woburn, Monday morning, Motorcycle Officer Irving Reardon went to the garage owned by Mr. Lennon on Hemingway street and there found a Pontiac sedan which was reported to have been left there at 8:30 on the night of July 2. The machine was left by a man, but no good description of him could be secured.

Investigation disclosed the fact that the machine had been stolen from Cain's Garage in Wilmington and had attached plates belonging to a Nash sedan, registered to Richard Kerby of 7 Grove avenue, Wilmington. The Police of that town were notified.

RATIONING NEWS

"Odd Lot" Shoes Ration-Free

Good news for Massachusetts residents is OPA's announcement that limited quantities of odd lot shoes may be sold to consumers ration-free at specified price reductions during the three week period from July 10 to July 29. Men's and women's shoes of all sizes and youths' and boys' shoes of sizes 1 to 6, shoes worn by boys beginning at about 7 years of age, are included in the release. Children's and misses' and little boys' shoes are not affected by the action, since those shoes were temporarily ration-free during the first three weeks of May. This action, similar to the one taken last July, is expected to help dealers liquidate some of their odd assortments of broken sizes and other odds and ends which are usually sold at reduced price but which, under rationing, need to be declared stamp-free if stocks are to be cleared.

New Blue Stamps

It is now announced that five new Blue Stamps, each worth 50 points, W5, X5, Y5, Z5 and A5, for the purchase of rationed processed foods, have been added to Book 4. During July, OPA said, many food stores will use only the five new stamps of Blue Ration Stamps for War Book 4 as it began on the 2nd inst. The first [illegible] stamp bearing the figure "50" on the face. The [illegible] is printed on stamps in the second row. These figures serve for identification of the stamps only and have no connection whatever with their face value. Regardless of whether food ration stamps have an S, T, U and I on their face, all are worth 10 points. Blue Stamps through Z8 and stamp A5 are good indefinitely.

Did You Know That

New fuel oil rations are not good unless your coupon sheets have been signed and dated. Your dealer will not be able to fill your order until it is properly endorsed, so put your signature and the date on the bottom line of the coupon sheet before depositing it with your dealer.

Vacation travel is permissible only by use of the gasoline available in the motorist's basic A book.

Ration certificates for rubber boots and rubber work shoes are now good indefinitely. Removal of the time limit of 30 days on these certificates is in line with OPA's policy of simplification.

Rumor that coffee will be returned to rationing are completely unfounded, Chester Bowles, National OPA Administrator says.

If you have just moved into a different area under OPA rent control, you should sign a change of tenancy form, that's the form your landlord gives you to sign before you move in. If you fail to do so after you have moved in, it is now permissable to sell your stove to a new rationed stove to a dealer, distributor or manufacturer. Purchased stoves could be transferred only among individuals.

It is good housekeeping and wartime patriotism to get your home canning sugar as you need it. The canning sugar is divided into two periods, from June 1 through July 31 and from Aug. 1 through Oct. 31 in Massachusetts. You can get up to 10 pounds per person, if you need it, during the first period, which ends July 31. This leaves you another 10 pounds per person, in case you need additional sugar for your later canning. With Sugar Stamp 30 good for five pounds, this provides you with the 25 pound maximum per person for the entire season.

OPA will shortly issue ceiling prices on sweet peppers, hothouse cucumbers and melons.

Animals raised on the farm and slaughtered to be sold by the farmer are a valuable portion of the total meat supply, and are rationed along with commercially packed meat.

Points were restored to choice lamb cuts this month not because of a decrease in supply, but because choice lamb has been very unevenly distributed.

Farmers can help make the wartime distribution of our food supply fair to all by collecting points for rationed foods and turning them in to their war price and rationing boards.

5TH WAR LOAN

Your War Bond buying is a good tip-off to them about the state of affairs in your home. The headlines in this newspaper on the progress of the drive, the items about participating individuals, the character of the Fifth War Loan, special events—all these things reflect the morale back home.

Do you like to read a sorry headline about the invasion fronts? Our fighting forces, made up of individuals with the same reactions to good and bad as you, will not be heartened to read: "Fifth War Loan Lags."

Your silence in your letter about your part in the Fifth War Loan will mean non-interest, perhaps non-participation to the recipients. It's up to you to make your letters cheerful. Write today. Write often. Write about your war work, your war support. Double your best previous War Bond buying record and then shout it to the housetops—just to that special service man.

BOAT CLUB NEWS

CLAMBAKE CONTENT CAPACITY CROWD

More than 250 lobsters and upwards of 2000 clams gave their lives, but not in vain, at the Winchester Boat Club's third annual 4th of July Clambake. These succulent crustaceans disappeared quicker than $2 at a race track, leaving well over 200 club members and their guests with heaps of shells, a miscellaneous assortment of drawn-butter stains, loosened belts and taut girdles.

Comdr. Jim Newman and his capable entertainment committee have the running of these affairs down to a science. It's really a tremendous job to arrange one of these parties so that clams, lobsters, watermelon, napkins, tonic, coffee, etc., arrive on schedule, are cooked perfectly and served swiftly. And yet these ladies and gents who do the work and planning have a better time than anyone else, or don't you folks who attended think that's possible?

Jones Tightens Grip on Second Place

By virtue of two firsts, a second and a fourth over the busy holiday week-end, George Jones served notice that he is determined to reserve second place in the Snipe Fleet standings for his Youani. Comdr. Jim Newman and Ralph Swanson were the other winners.

All but the Newman victory were more or less routine wins. In one of the most thrilling last leg battles we've ever witnessed, Jim beat out George Jones by the proverbial eyelash. The last leg was a beat and George and Jim kept splitting tacks all the way from the Medford marker to the finish line at Winchester.

The lead must have changed at least six times on the last mad dash to the finish, but foxy Jim's last tricky tack was just enough to nip George at the wire.

Six Snipe skippers let Fleet Captain Freyer talk them into answering the starting gun on the holiday afternoon in spite of the fact that lightning was flashing, thunder applauding and the skies were black as Al Jolson singing Mammy. For obeying their skipper they were rewarded with (1) the wildest and wooliest one lap dash any of them had ever undertaken; (2) a shower of hail stones larger than marbles that left them black and blue, and (3) the soaking of their lives. Is it true that the fleet has offered a reward of $100 for Fleet Captain Freyer, dead or alive and preferably deceased?

Club Chatter

The ping pong tournament for juniors has run into a snag because some of the leading contenders are away. Play will be resumed as soon as they return . . Anyone interested in dancing lessons, plain or fancy, should get in touch with "Weenie" Pratt at once. Incidentally, it seemed nice to see "Weenie" in dungarees at the Clambake. Kinda sick of seeing him modeling for Hart, Schaffner and Marx . . "Bill" Hall is organizing a cribbage tournament. Any of you "15-two-ers" who are interested in entering had better get in touch with him . . . And speaking of Hall's, C. Arthur Hall is the member chiefly responsible for the many improvements on the club grounds. How about a hail for Hall?

HAD PART IN INVASION

Word of the invasion comes from Ensign George S. Hebb, Jr., USNR, skipper of the U. S. S. LCT (6) 665. Ensign Hebb writes he has had a part in the invasion and was very lucky to get his ship in and out without any casualties. "It was very interesting to see the beach get built up and watch the beach develop. The Army and also the Navy did a good job in silencing the German guns."

Ensign Hebb is now returned to his base in England where his ship is undergoing repairs.

MRS. KIMBALL AGAIN CLUB CHAMPION

Mrs. A. Allen Kimball of Cabot street on Wednesday for the fifth year won the women's golf championship of the Winchester Country Club by defeating Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth, Jr., 2 and 1. The perennial champion is one of Winchester's most active women, being president of En Ka and chairman of the School Committee.

The Fire Department was called at 10.25 Wednesday morning to put out a fire started by over-heated grease on a stove at the residence of Mr. Harold J. Slack, 32 Lebanon street.

WINCHESTER'S FOURTH

After the show the youngsters lined up and filed out through the basement of the hall where they were presented with small United States flags and ice cream. The usual faithful Legionnaires were on hand to assist with this trying part of the day's activities, including besides Mr. Walsh, Bob Johnston, Dick Fenno, George Barbaro, Warren Johnston, Tom McKee, Martie Foley, Fred Mitchell, Jim Treacy and Eddie Boyle.

Assisting the Legion were members of the Park Department, headed by Chairman George T. Davidson of the Board of Park Commissioners. Supt. Tom McGowan was also on the job with Playground Supervisor Marjorie Mahoney and Frank Battilo, Ann Doolan, Nathalie Cox, Helen McGowan, John O'Doherty and Joe Nash. Town Hall Custodian Lee Mellett was also very much on the job aiding with the youngsters, both in his capacity as custodian and as a Legionnaire.

The afternoon program of races and sports at Leonard Field got away under clear skies, but not more than two or three events had been run when it commenced to darken in the west and a occasional rumble of thunder warned those in charge of the games to hurry up time.

There were four events on the program when the first splashes of rain came down, but after a brief shower, it cleared sufficiently to permit both the boys' and girls' shoe-finding races to be run off. Then with the watermelon eating contests for both boys and girls remaining the rain came pouring down, putting an end to any further competition.

There were several prizes left over and Howard Walsh announced that these would be turned over to Playground Supervisor Mahoney who would arrange playground contests for them during the regular season.

The races were run off quickly and quite efficiently with John Robinson as starter, Miss Mahoney as clerk of course, Charlie Watson, Tom McKee and George Barbaro as judges, and Tom McGowan and Helen Carroll as tape-holders. Howard Walsh acted as referee, but most arguments were decided on the field by "Mack" McKenzie with his usual dispatch.

The feature finish was that in the girls' egg and spoon race when the first two girls across the line finished almost in a dead heat. Two boys fooled almost everyone in the three-legged race by running over the course without their leg- tied, but one stepped in a bit of a hole just before the finish to throw them off their stride and out of the race. Eugene Rotundi and Frank Johnson won this one easily it wasn't even funny, they having at least 25 yards on the field in a 50 yard race.

50 yard dash, boys 10-11: 1st, John Battilo; 2nd, Dan Rosa; 3rd, Bernard Crowley.

50 yard dash, girls 10-11: 1st, Joan Canone; 2nd, Fay Zannamekos; 3rd, Veronica Carpenter.

25 yard dash, boys under 10: 1st, Joseph Migliaccio; 2nd, Frederick Wheaton 3rd, Sammy Graziano.

25 yard dash, girls under 10: 1st, Marilyn Johnson 2nd, Beatrice Amato, 3rd, Betty Kline.

Potato bag race, boys 10-11: 1st, Eugene Rotundi; 2nd, Richard Enico, 3rd, Eddie Connolly.

Potato bag race, boys under 10: 1st, Frank Carbi; 2nd, Dan Callahan; 3rd, Howard Carpenter.

Egg and Spoon race, girls under 11: 1st, Marjorie Carroll, 2nd, Betty Ann Belino, 3rd, Judith Higgins.

Three legged race, boys 11: 1st, Eugene Rotundi and Frank Johnson; 2nd, Paul Noonan and Joseph Donlon.

Three legged race, boys under 11: 1st, Robert Laverty and Don Ducharme.

Find shoe, girls 10: 1st, Joan Canone; 2nd, Joan MacFarlane; 3rd, Theresa Flaherty.

Find shoe, boys 10: 1st, Richard Brazeau; 2nd, John Frongillo; 3rd, Paul Roche.

PALMER BEACH HORSESHOE ASSOCIATION

There were just enough members of the Palmer Beach Horseshoe Association at the beach last week-end to enable the regular matches to be played. Four members are necessary for a quorum and play that can be recorded in the books, and there were exactly that number on hand. "Wally" McLaughlin, the Pete of Stowe and Champion of all Natives, with his "Lucky Horse" of the pack much improved, led the warriors into action, the others present being Roland "Thin Finger" Pridham, Herbert "Garibaldi" Gardiner and the Secretary.

Royal P. Teele, president of the Association and Institution and perennial champion of the Boston Paper Trade, was not among those present, being at his summer home in Provincetown on Cape Cod, digging into the antiques picture there and preparing to sell a neat andiron or perhaps, bookjack, if anyone happens to want such things. The Teele absence was announced in advance and was entered on the books as "excused."

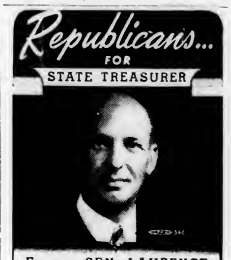

Arthur E. Butters, sometimes called of the State of Maine Champ, was another among the missing. Mr. Butters has been among the missing during practically all of the spring and early summer campaign, so his absence last week-end was not surprising, and as he has gone to the Pine Tree State for the summer, future defections are more or less to be expected and not wondered at. Whether or not he will attempt to improve his game during the long summer, so that he can once more take his place among the Palladins of Palmer street, instead of being obliged to shine among the golf addicts of the Country Club, only time will tell. With the members of the Horseshoe Association, and in especial Mr. Teele, are awaiting future events with much interest.

Howard "Foul Line" Wittet did not show up for play last week-end either and nothing was heard from him. The Wittet blueberry bushes should be well enough established by this time to enable their owner to leave them for a brief spell occasionally and future unexcused absences will have to be dealt with according to the penalties provided by Association statute for such discrepancies. Henry "Tiffany" Knowlton was also once more absent, but it was learned on reliable authority that he was down on the Cape trying to catch a mess of striped bass, and since President Teele hasn't yet given up hope of receiving one of the victims of the Knowlton fishing prowess, it is not likely that any drastic action will be taken in his case.

There were some red hot games on the card last week-end, several being decided with the score 24-24, and in almost all cases both teams would be in the 20s before the final killing was made. Mr. McLaughlin was better than for a long time, and the Secretary, of all people, had flashes of fairly good form. As a matter of fact the lowly Scrivener lost only once during the session, going down two out of three with Mr Gardner as partner, after being well ahead in the deciding game.

Mr. Gardner was not in especially good form, and Mr. Pridham, too, lacked some of the sharpness that has characterized his play throughout the season. The absence of M. Teele cramped the Association's vocal game, like the dickens, and frequenters of the beach wondered at the dearth of noise prevailing at the courts.

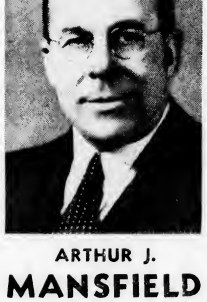

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Bottger of Roanoke, Va., are the parents of a second son, John, born June 17. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Bottger of Sheffield road. John is named for his father's brother, who is in the Navy, serving somewhere in the European Theater of operations.

*WHEN the matter of the construction of the new turnpike along Worcester Road was being discussed at the State House, very naturally the Commissioners of Middlesex County were interested as under the old law the County would have to pay back to the State one-fourth of the sum that the State might expend in the construction of that turnpike through the limits of this County. It was your own Representative, J. Walton Tuttle, who was the one to see the loss in the Legislation and inform us in time so that this County was protected. His information gave us a chance to get Legislation through protecting this County, thereby saving the County thousands of dollars. This statement is made as a token of our appreciation.

KEEPS IN TOUCH THROUGH THE STAR

To the Editor of the Star:

I want to take this opportunity to write you a few lines, showing my appreciation of the Winchester Star, which I receive weekly. I always look for it in the mail because it's the only communication I have beside letters from the people back home. Sometimes I lose track of one of my buddies from the good old home town, but sooner or later his name appears in the Star and again I'm in contact with him.

It was through the Winchester Star that I got news of the death of Cpl. Joe Palumbo and of the death of Spl. Eddie Manzie.

While I was at Camp Davis, N. C., I ran across a friend from the same street I once lived on, Lt. Joseph J. Ciarcia. We talked about old times in the home town, and got together one morning to read the Winchester Star together.

My thanks to the Star for taking the time to send me and other servicemen all over the country, the Star. I enjoy reading it very much. I only hope I can have it sent to me to where I'm going.

THE FLAG

The Flag was first authorized by Congress June 14, 1777. This date is now observed as Flag Day throughout the United States of America. At this time the Committee of Safety Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, calls attention to excerpts from Public Law No. 829, which was passed by the Congress of the United States of America.

The Flag, when used out of doors, should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. It should be displayed on National and State holidays, and historic and special occasions. The Flag should always be hoisted briskly and lowered slowly and ceremoniously.

During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the Flag or when the Flag is passing in parade, or in a review, all persons present should face the Flag, stand at attention, and salute. Those present in uniform should render the right hand salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress with right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the Flag in a moving column is rendered the moment the Flag passes.

When the National Anthem is played and no Flag is displayed, men in uniform should stand at salute; all other persons present should stand at attention and face towards the music, uncovering their headdress. When the Flag is displayed, the regular salute to the Flag should be given.

When carried in a procession with another flag or flags, the Flag should be either on the marching right, i. e., the Flag's own right, or, when there is a line of other flags, the Flag may be in front of the center of that line.

When the Flag is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the Flag's own right, i. e., to the observer's left.

When the Flag is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should not be cast aside or used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful to the National Colors, but should be destroyed as a whole, privately, preferably by burning.

Do not display the Flag with the union down except as a signal of distress.

Do not place any other flag or pennant above, or, if on the same level, to the right of the Flag of the United States of America.

Do not let the Flag touch the ground or the floor, or trail in the water.

Do not place any object or emblem of any kind on or above the Flag of the United States of America.

Do not use the Flag as drapery in any form whatever. Use bunting of blue, white and red.

Do not drape the Flag over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle, or of a railroad train or boat. When the Flag is displayed on a motor car, the staff should be affixed firmly to the chassis, or clamped to the radiator cap.

Do not display the Flag on a float in a parade except from a staff.

Do not carry the Flag flat or horizontally but always aloft and free.

Do not use the Flag as a portion of a costume or of an athletic uniform.

Do not embroider it upon cushions or handkerchiefs or print it upon paper napkins or boxes.

Do not put lettering of any kind upon the Flag.

Do not use the Flag in any form of advertising or fasten an advertising sign to a pole from which the Flag is flying.

Do not salute disrespect to the shown to the Flag of the United States of America.

MAKE PROVISION FOR YOUR PETS WHEN YOU GO AWAY

To the Editor of the Star:

If you plan to move or to go on a vacation, please give forethought to whatever arrangement you intend to make for the care of any pet you may have, dog, cat, bird, or other animal.

Animals, cats in particular, have an uncanny way of sensing in advance any disruption of their ordinary routine. They often will leave home or hide somewhere so they cannot be found when the family is ready to close the house, with the result that they are left behind to become strays and a nuisance in the neighborhood. Contrary to the belief held by many persons, domestic animals are not equipped to take care of themselves; they are dependent upon man to whom they look for protection.

If your pet is to be boarded while you are away, be sure arrangements are made well in advance and that he is settled comfortably before he has a chance to sense a change. If he is to be taken with you, keep him in or under control while out-of-doors when it is nearing time for your departure so that he will not be "among 'the missing" when you come to leave. If he must be disposed of, take or send him to the nearest animal welfare organization.

We are sure that most cases of desertion of animals are unintentional, due principally to delay in making the necessary arrangements. Won't you please make plans far enough in advance this year to assure proper care of your pet?

of Boston

"TIME IS SHORT"

By Edward H. Martin

(The author is the son of Simpson's Tommy Martin of Boston)

When you're lying in a fox-hole with a rifle at your cheek,
Then there ain't no time for thinking of a forty-hour week.
For the tropic rains pour on you while your nose is in the mud
And your over-time is counted when they pay you off in blood.
You just grip your rifle tighter as you wade into the fight,
And there's no time off for gassing
'bout that date you had last night.
For you know it would be foolish, and you save your precious breath,
For the only date you're keeping is a rendezvous with death.
And you feel the fevered silence
As the sun begins to sink,
Time is short and growing shorter,
It is later than you think.
When you're home and working steady, you have time to shoot the bull,
For the boss ain't always looking and his hands are kinda full;
You can grouse about your wages;
you can sneak out for a smoke,
You can leave that drill press idle
while you hear or tell a joke,
But the pay-off's coming later for the job you haven't done,
When the fighting isn't over and the battle isn't won.
For the forge that's lying idle, forge chains you cannot see,
Till you find a stricken nation in the bonds of slavery.
And eternity will damn you
As your soul begins to shrink;
Time is short and growing shorter,
It is later than you think!
Some are born to do the fighting, some make work, and some quit
pray;
But there are many among us who can sit and rest today.
For the Freedom that we cherish waits
a levy on our soul
And the [illegible] strike our thirst
[illegible] that fatal goal.
For [illegible] growing shorter,
As [illegible] destiny's brink,
And [illegible] pay of [illegible]
[illegible] [illegible]

After his graduation from Weymouth High School he engaged in the shoe business in Lynn, Chicago, Lynchburg, Va., and in Perth, Ontario. He was at the time of his death vice president and general manager of the John Ritchie Shoe Company in Quebec and retiring president of the Canadian Shoe and Leather Association. Besides his brother here and his mother, he leaves his wife, Mrs. Florence Fortier Sheehy.

He came to Winchester as a young boy, was educated in the Winchester schools and on June 12, 1916, married Lucy Heath of this town.

For 50 years Mr. Elliott was associated with the publishing house of Ginn and Company, retiring about a year ago. He was formerly active as a nature teacher in the local Boy Scout program and he was a member of the Unitarian Church, teaching for many years in the church school.

He leaves his wife, a son, Richard Duncan Elliott, serving with the Marines at St. Petersburg, Fla.; two daughters, Mrs. Oscar Victor Noblich and Miss Ruth Payson Elliott, both of Winchester, and a cousin, Miss Mabel Duncan of New York City.

Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be Sacrament; and included in the Bible selections is: I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world (John 6:51).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included in the Lesson-Sermon. "Failure to X on July 11th is a blow against America!" ROBERT F. BRADFORD

War and Peace demand men of PROVED ABILITY in the public service — LEADERS you know can do the job!

ROBERT F. BRADFORD

. . . who reminds us that

"Every person on the home front who fails to vote, strikes a blow at one of the freedoms for which Americans are fighting on a hundred battlefronts around the world."

. . . IS a leader of PROVED ABILITY.

PROVED is his ability as a lawyer . . . both in successful private practice and in the chief law office of the largest county in the Commonwealth, a county of a million inhabitants.

PROVED is his ability as a courageous and conscientious public servant . . . with his unmatched record as District Attorney of the Northern District, in which office he increased convictions from a previous low of 26% to a new high of 83% — and was re-elected by the people with the greatest plurality ever won by any candidate for any office in the history of Middlesex County.

PROVED is his ability as an efficient public administrator . . . when, despite the high activity of his office, he cut his budget year by year, reduced operating expenses to the lowest point in a quarter of a century and returned $166,000 in unexpended appropriations to the treasury of Middlesex County.

PROVED is his ability as a versatile executive . . . by his service in the management of two Massachusetts banks and three business concerns; as chairman of the executive committee of the Harvard Board of Overseers; as a trustee of Simmons College; as chairman of the trustees of Massachusetts Hospital School for Crippled Children; as a member of the executive committee of Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary; as a manager of Norfolk House Center, as vice-president of Boston Community Recreation Service; as president, the Greater Boston Community Council of Social Agencies.

PROVED is his ability in statecraft . . . with his record as executive secretary to the Governor of Massachusetts through four years of the stress and strife of depression and unemployment — when, through his hands, passed emergency administrative and legislative details affecting every corner of the Commonwealth; as an elected delegate to the National Republican Convention of 1940 and again in 1944, as a lifelong worker in the rank and file of the Republican Party; as an active advisor to Governor Saltonstall in all of his state-wide campaigns.

This IS the candidate of PROVED ABILITY — Vote for him on July 11th!

The need is great . . . the man is here!

Second Lt. Whitelaw Wright, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Wright of Fletcher street, is in England at a P-38 Lightning fighter base flying his speedy, twin-engined fighter in the group commanded by Col. George T. Crowell, of Chicago. Arriving in England in the fall of 1943, the group was the first P-38 Lightning outfit to fly against the Luftwaffe from Great Britain, pioneering in long range, over the target protection for the heavy bombers.

On March 3, 1944, the P-38s from this station made the first American combat flight over Berlin.

The group supported naval and other seaborne forces heading for France in the initial stage of the invasion. Now Lt. Wright is helping bomb and strafe Nazi positions on the French front in addition to flying long range bomber escort missions, in the strategic bombing program.

The Winchester pilot is a graduate of Winchester High School and took chemical engineering at Tufts College.

Before entering the AAF in January, 1943, Lt. Wright was employed by General Electric, Lynn. He was commissioned in November, 1943 at Williams Field, Chandler, Ariz.

HALL OSTERVILLE GOLF WINNER

W. T. Hall of this town did all right in the golf tournaments held at the Oyster Harbors Club in Osterville on July 4, winning the sweepstakes with a card of 87-17-70, finishing second in the handicap tourney and second in the men's division of the Red Cross benefit event. Another Winchester golfer, A. L. Danforth, was third in the sweepstakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. Toye, well known residents of Bonad road for some years, are leaving that street to take up residence on Mystic Valley Parkway.

BRITISH WAR RELIEF

The Little Pine

They go to compete against each other. They compete only with busy hands and busy needles, against the German will to make homes into rubble, against the German frightfulness that would mast civilians, the old, the sick, the children, destitute and make them suffer from dirt and cold. So those winner of the little British War Relief pin for sustained service would not favor publicity for individual records.

And yet some records are too interesting to leave unmentioned. For example, there are the women who have transcended handicaps of physical disability. There is Mrs. Cornelia Lindstrom, whose vision is limited to only 20 percent vision in one eye. Yet she has made out of worn white cotton thousands of squares each month for British hospitals. Mrs. J. F. Hodge has had the yarn brought to her with which she won her pin and stars, knitting in spite of handicapped vision and health.

The Winchester Unit has two pin-owners who have worked for British War Relief longer than there has been a Winchester unit. Mrs. William B. Weeks, who began her work in New York and promptly stimulated a group of workers here when she came to reside and Mrs. Thomas Salmon, who transferred from a Boston group to the one in her own town when Winchester started.

In those beginning years one name is eminent, that of Mrs. Fred Cameron. When local units had to find their own money and materials, she enlisted the interest of New England factories for gifts and bargains. She cor-related Winchester good will for plucky Britain and the fighting Commonwealths, and that good will went overseas, as ambulances and mobile canteens.

"I'd like having the pin for my little granddaughter," said one worker. And it is to be hoped that the family archives will pass down also some statistics of what won the pin. Mrs. Minnie Fletcher, if wool and war needs hold out, will soon be knitting on her 90th pair of great seaboot stockings, and these are only a part of the tale. Baby quilts and baby clothes, dozens of ordinary socks, scores of bright squares for afghans, and whole strips for these warm little coverings for cribs or for wheeled chairs have come from her hands.

Another record-maker is Miss May Wilson. The last afghan she fashioned was her 50th, and every one has been pretty. Squares come in from divers knitters, out of scraps of yarn, a hodge-podge of soft, dull, or defiant colors. But when she has studied the squares and set them together and framed them, a convalescing Yank with an artistic eye could spread one of her afghans over his mended knee and never say, "What the heck!"

This work all done by rich and leisured women? Far from it. In one year 24 pairs of the long seaboot stockings have come from the needles of one of the busiest women in Winchester. The name is withheld as a precautionary measure for the reporter, but it will be furnished on request to any one who can't guess it from this sample of her vacation activities, up in New Hampshire, where she manages a house and garden in a world scarce of plumbers and all help, and yet has "played at church every Sunday, and also for the D-Day service, a USO party, high school baccalaureate and commencement." And she wasn't telling the news in her letter. She was just writing back for more yarn, so that her needles could click off some more seaboot stockings up at New Boston these summer days.

THE RED CROSS AT WORK

Those public spirited citizens who so generously contributed to the late Red Cross drive will be interested to know what a grand work is being done by the organization which they have helped to support.

The Red Cross is a voluntary organization unhampered by politics or unnecessary red tape and is ready at a moment's notice to re-pond to those needs for which it is equipped.

In civilian life, when a given area is striken by a sudden di-aster, the Red Cross is on hand with food and supplies almost before the news has been communicated to the public. In times of war the Red Cross reaches out into the various branches of the armed forces to provide a mother's watchful care for those in service.

It provides surgical dressings and blood plasma for the wounded, entertainment and recreation for leisure hours, assistance in legal matters and the securing of information from home and scores of other services which must be omitted for lack of space.

We all should be proud of the Red Cross and gratified that we are privileged to be associated with it.

Last Friday night shortly before 11:30 a resident of Cambridge street reported to the Police that when he arrived home from the movies he found that his home had been entered and the upstairs rooms ransacked. The break was rather puzzling since the two boys of the family were asleep in the house at the time. Whether anything of value was missing was not announced.

LAST MINUTE BOND BUYERS SORELY NEEDED

A last minute rally would just put Winchester over the top on its Fifth War Loan Drive. Our standing was $1,526,000 on Wednesday, July 5, with one week still to go to make our quota of $1,650,000.

On E Bond sales we are still a long way from quota but all E Bond sales made in July will count on our quota. Present total E Bond sales in our town are $170,000 and our quota is $382,000. Here's where we must need your added Bond purchases in order to maintain our perfect record thus far in the Bond drives.

Our rival, Winchester, Va., has to date bought $110,000 in E Bonds as against its quota of $300,000. Their total Bond quota is $1,500,000 and they are at the $850,000 mark.

Comparatively, we have to date gone 92.3 percent of the course while Winchester, Va., has traveled 65.3 per cent of its journey. On E Bonds we stand at 44.5 percent and Winchester, Va., at 36.3 percent. For both towns E Bond sales represent the hardest going.

Automobiles driven by Thomas J. Walsh of 67 Nelson street and Harold B. McDonald of 32 Leonard street, Woburn, were in collision Saturday morning shortly after 1 o'clock on upper Main street between Hemingway street and Russell road. McDonald was head north and Walsh, south.

YOUR INVASION!

FROM General Bradley, leading the Invasion ground forces, right through every rank, American men now face a brutal, desperate, able enemy. For this invasion has only begun—before our fighters lies a hard and bloody task, one that demands all their courage, backed by all your faith in their ultimate victory.

That faith will be tested many times in this invasion—in grim struggles, setbacks, possibly even temporary defeats. It will be up to you to remember that early victories usually only mean more savage opposition from a foe made more bitter, more ruthless as the shadow of his doom grows larger—up to you to keep that faith in days and nights of gloom as well as in hours of triumph.

There is little that you can do to show that you realize what they must face, perhaps for many months. But one thing you can do—back the attack with every dollar you can spare! Let the Bonds you buy in this greatest of Drives be the measure of your belief in their ultimate victory!

Look! Listen! Live!

Two women and three small children drove up to a railroad grade crossing. The gates were down to protect the motoring public from an approaching train. They stopped their car in a safe position. Another automobile approached from the rear, rammed into the standing car, and knocked it through the lowered crossing gates into the path of the approaching passenger train. The woman driver was killed and the other occupants of the car injured.

This is typical of accidents of this character which are occurring almost daily. In more than 80 per cent of such accidents, the crossing has some special protection such as gates, flashlight signals, watchman or bells. But these warning measures, which have been installed for the protection of the traveling public, often are ignored.

The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these accidents which every day delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a damaging drain on the nation's war transportation effort.

To the People of this Community

There will be a feeling of shame in this community if we find ourselves short of the mark when the Fifth War Loan comes to an end July 8.

We will not permit that to happen here, especially if we look around in our homes and our places of employment and see the shadows of relatives and friends who today are in the midst of bloody battle for us.

We cannot emphasize too strongly that regardless of the size of the oversubscription of our community quota, the Fifth War Loan will be a flat failure for you if you do not exceed anything you have done in the past in War Bond buying.

In this invasion hour our fighting men have a right to demand that you make your record contribution to the success of a war loan.

The slogan, Back the Attack—Buy More Than Before, is not merely a catch phrase. It expresses the cold facts about invasion. Unless we make the supreme effort to do everything humanly possible either at our work benches or in our homes, with our sweat, our blood and our dollars we hand over our share of the burden to our fighting men.

KENNEDY—NOWELL

At St. Mary's Church on Sunday afternoon, July 2, Miss Margaret Louise Nowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Leroy Nowell of Eaton street, became the bride of Sgt. Thomas E. Kennedy, 2nd, USAAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Kennedy of Fall River. St. Mary's pastor, Rev. Fr. John P. O'Riordan, performed the ceremony at 4 o'clock, and a reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Nowell was attended only by her sister, Mrs. James E. Callahan of this town.

The bride wore a princess style gown of white satin with a tulle veil caught to a coronet of seed pearls. Her flowers were bride's roses and babies' breath. Mrs. Callahan wore a princess style dress of blue tulle and matching hat with pink rosettes. Her bouquet combined babies breath with pink roses.

James Thorpe of Fall River was Sgt. Kennedy's best man and the ushers were Staff Sgt. Joseph Gouveia, USA, recently returned from service in Italy; and Alfred Joseph Nowell and John Francis Nowell, both of this town and brothers of the bride.

Sgt. Kennedy and his bride went to Wolfeboro, N. H., for their wedding journey, after which the bridegroom is to return to Army duty. Mrs. Kennedy will make her home with her parents for the duration of the war. She is a graduate of St. Mary's High School and is employed at the Boston office of the United Shoe Machinery Company.

SCHOOL BOY TWI LEAGUE ORGANIZED

Before leaving yesterday for Camp Wyanoke in New Hampshire, Coach Henry Knowlton of the Winchester High School athletic teams announced the schedule for the Schoolboy Twilight Baseball League which he has been organizing for the past two or three weeks to provide an opportunity for boys in town during the summer to play baseball.

Coach Knowlton believes that the principal reason Winchester has been unable to compete in baseball on even terms with some of its neighboring communities is because local high school boys play ball only during the school season. There is no substitute for actual experience in any sport and Hennie feels that youngsters who are potential candidates for future high school nines will be better candidates and play the game a lot more effectively if they play ball more or less regularly through the summer. The new league has been formed to provide this opportunity.

Four teams will constitute the league; the Sand Banks, Highlands, Plans and Wedgemeres. Coach Knowlton has been fortunate in getting three former baseball players to handle the teams, Bill Gibbons taking the Sand Banks, Harry Chefalo, the Highlands, Frank Procopio, the Plains; and Ralph Hatch the Wedgemeres. Ed Amico is getting together the Sand Banks team; Charlie Slack, the Highlands; Sam Bellino, the Plains; and Bill Fisher, the Wedgemeres. The Sand Banks will play their home games at Loring avenue, the Plains and Highlands, at Leonard Field, and the Wedgemeres at Manchester Field.

The tentative schedule follows:

July 11: Sandbanks at Wedgemere, Plains at Highlands.

July 13: Highlands at Wedgemeres, Plains at Sandbanks.

July 20: Wedgemeres at Sandbanks, Highlands at Plains.

Aug. 1: Wedgemeres at Highlands; Sandbanks at Plains.

Aug. 3: Sandbanks at Highlands, Plains at Wedgemeres.

Aug. 8: Sandbanks at Wedgemeres, Plains at Highlands.

Aug. 10: Highlands at Wedgemeres, Plains at Sandbanks.

Aug. 15: Highlands at Sandbanks, Wedgemeres at Plains.

Aug. 17: Wedgemeres at Sandbanks, Highlands at Plains.

Aug. 22: Wedgemeres at Highlands, Sandbanks at Plains.

Aug. 24: Sandbanks at Highlands, Plains at Wedgemeres.

Lt. Davidson is service director at Truax Field, the Army Air Forces Flying Field near Madison.

PALMER BEACH BOYS IN SPECIAL SESSION

A special session of the Palmer Beach Horse-shoe Association was held on Wednesday evening at the beach courts, a round-robin being played by President Royal "Paper Trade" Teele, Herbert "Garrulous" Gardner, Roland "Thin Finger" Pridham and "Wild Willie" McLaughlin, the Pride of Stowe and Champion of all Nabnassett. The Secretary was not among those present, the heat of the day having caused his enthusiasm for the meeting to ooze out of him.

Roundly upbraided by the President, the lowly Scrivener refused to be coaxed, cajoled or threatened and faced the possibility of punitive action by the Association with the calm assurance that at least he had to sweat no more that day.

Mr. Teele was all for playing, but pretty silly he must have felt at the end of the session when a quick but accurate recapitulation disclosed the fact that he had lost every blamed match he played, no matter whom he had for partner.

None of the boys did too well with a pair of shoes provided by Mr. Gardner, which Mr. McLaughlin aply described as an exertion to throw. It is the Secretary's candid opinion that any shoes, even Mr. Teele's ladies' variety would have been a job to throw Wednesday night.

At all events it wasn't until the last match of the evening when darkness had clothed the courts in an opaque blanket and none of the warriors could see the stakes that anything like good pitching prevailed.

Then it was that Mr. McLaughlin and Mr. Gardner came to life with a loud pop, and threw ringers with a reckless abandon that buried Mr. Teele and Mr. Pridham, two straight, despite the fact that the Pridham shoe was going up to the sky for safety on each pitch.

The less said about the shoes Mr. Teele was throwing during the match, the better. Suffice it to say that his pitching was very elementary and little or no help to the perspiring Mr. Pridham, though both Mr. McLaughlin and ol' Garrulous approved strongly.

WINCHESTER'S PRIMARY VOTE LIGHT

Preponderantly Republican — Even Less Democratic Ballots Cast in 6

While only 18.2 3 percent of Winchester's 7762 registered voters went to the polls during Tuesday's primaries, the total of 1450 votes cast was not so bad when compared with the 1857 cast two years ago. In 1942 the primaries were held in September, when much cooler weather prevailed, and on Tuesday the polls were open only from 1 until 7 p. m., instead of all day. Added to this is the fact that many of the town's young male voters are in service now and more vacationists are out of town than in September.

This year's vote in Winchester was as usual preponderantly Republican, with 1326 voters casting G. O. P. ballots and 124, Democratic. It was a bit surprising, however, to see more Republican votes than Democratic cast in 6, a strongly Democratic precinct. It is reported that the Republicans had a 14 vote edge in 6 this year, outvoting the Democrats, 44-30.

Precinct 6, with Helen Foley as Warden, got its 71 votes in first at 7.30. Precinct 1 was last in, and the final tabulation was announced at 9.10. Town Clerk Mabel W. Stinson's office was a veritable hot-box and few except the most rabid politicians steamed in its humidity until the final results were announced.

Precinct 3 had the distinction of getting out the biggest number of voters, 368 casting ballots there.

BOWNE—TOLMAN

The marriage of Miss Phyllis Tolman, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Percy Eldridge Tolman of Worcester, to William Leon Bowne, Lt. (jg) USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Broadwell Bowne of 21 Foxcroft road, took place Tuesday evening, July 11, at the home of the bride's uncle, Dr. Robert Lovett Emery, 170 Mt. Vernon street. Rev. Clark T. Brownell, interim pastor of the First Baptist Church, performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock and the bridal music was played by Mrs. Frederick C. MacDonald with Mrs. Robert Lovett Emery as soloist.

Dr. Emery gave his niece in marriage and Miss Barbara Tolman of Amherst was her sister's honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Miss Doris Emery of this town, Miss Ruth Given of North Woburn, Miss Miriam Tolman of Arlington, cousin of the bride; and Mrs. Jane Annable of Danbury, Conn.

The bride wore a white satin gown, having a fitted bodice and full skirt extending to form a court train. The gown was trimmed with lace made by the bride's great-grandmother, and the long veil which she wore with it was caught to a jewelled crown headpiece. Her flowers were white roses and babies' breath.

The honor maid wore a yellow dress with a lace bodice and chiffon skirt over taffeta. Her bouquet was of talisman roses. The bridesmaids wore old fashioned taffeta frocks with fitted bodices, full skirts and sweetheart necklines. Miss Emery and Miss Given wore pink, and Miss Tolman and Mrs. Annable, blue. All carried pink roses.

Pfc. Charles P. Donahue, USA Medical Corps, of Winchester, was Lt. Bowne's best man, and the usher corps included Leslie J. Scott and Linwood F. Brown of Winchester, Alvin Edwards of Medford and Leroy M. Jordan of Woburn, formerly of this town.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony, at which the bridal party was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Norman Wilson Whittlesey, grandmother of the bride; and the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Lorion Leon. Following the reception Lt. Bowne and his bride left upon a wedding journey to Maine.

The bride is a graduate of Massachusetts State College. Lt. Bowne is a graduate of Worcester Polytechnic Institute and of the RCA Institute. He is an associate member of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

DODGE—GOODHUE

Miss Myrtle Edith Goodhue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Goodhue of 166 Cross street and Harry William Dodge, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry William Dodge of 17 Grayson road were married at 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, July 9, at the rectory of the Immaculate Conception Church by the pastor, Rev. Fr. James F. Fitzsimmons.

Miss Claire L. Hadley of Medford, college classmate of the bride, was maid of honor, and Forest Lord of Jamaica Plain, formerly of Winchester, was best man for Mr. Dodge.

The bride wore a street-length dress of blue crepe with a peplum and short capo sleeves. Her small hat and long gloves were white and she carried an old fashioned bouquet of white roses and gardenias.

Miss Hadley wore a street-length dress of lime silk crepe, trimmed with white fringe. Her hat and gloves were also white and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of mixed flowers in pastel shades. The shades of these flowers were repeated in the boutonnier of the best man and those of the fathers of the bride and bridegroom, each wearing a different color.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, who assisted in receiving with the parents of the bridegroom, the maid of honor and the best man. Large bunches of gladiolas and ferns decorated the house for the occasion and a wedding cake was the centerpiece for the buffet table. Robert Goodhue, small brother of the bride, secured autographs of the wedding guests upon a miniature lamb which was presented to the bride as a souvenir.

After a week's honeymoon at Belvedere Inn, in Maine, Mr. Dodge and his bride will make their home in Winchester. The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School, class of 1939, and of Lowell State Teacher's College, the class of 1943. She has been teaching at the Wyman School in Winchester during the past year.

Mr. Dodge, who is associated with his father in the painting and decorating business in Winchester, graduated from Medford High School in 1939, and has an honorable discharge from the United States Marine Corps.

The wedding will take place in August.

CAMPBELL CITED

The following is a copy of a Presidential unit citation received by John W. Campbell ARM 2-c now stationed at Quonsett Point Naval Base, Rhode Island, Saturday, July 1, 1944.

The President of the United States takes pleasure in presenting the Presidential Unit Citation to the United States Ship Enterprise, for service set forth in the following citation:

For consistently outstanding performance and distinguished achievement during repeated action against the enemy Japanese forces in the Pacific War Area, Dec. 7, 1941 to Nov. 15, 1942. Participating in nearly every major fleet engagement in the first year of war, the Enterprise and her air group, exclusive of her far flung destruction of hostile shore installations throughout the battle area, did sink or damage, on her own, a total of 35 Japanese vessels and shot down a total of 185 Japanese aircraft.

Her aggressive fighting and superb combat efficiency are fitting tribute to the officers and men who so gallantly established her as a solid bulwark in defense of the American nation."

PETE PROVINZANO NOW AERIAL GUNNER

Peter P. Provinzano, former pitching star at Winchester High School who had to give up a promising professional pitching career for Army service, graduated this week from the Harlingen Army Air Field aerial gunnery school of the AAF Training Command in Texas and is now among the qualified "Sharpshooters of the Sky," receiving with his diploma his aerial gunner's wings and a promotion in grade.

Pete is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Provinzano of 37 Florence street. He climaxed a brilliant allaround athletic performance at Winchester High, during which he captained three major sport teams, by pitching the locals into the State Baseball Tourney for the first time. His pitching was also instrumental in bringing to the Winchester Elks Baseball team the championship of the Eastern Mass. Twilight League in 1941. He signed with the Red Sox immediately after graduation and was pitching fine ball for Scranton, Sox farm team in Pennsylvania, when Uncle Sam tapped him on the shoulder.

Now Pete will be shooting all types of guns up to the deadly .50 caliber Brownings instead of throwing his hard one high inside or keeping his curve low off the outside corner. If his accuracy with guns is as good as it was with a baseball the Nazis or the Japs are in for trouble.

NIELSON—CAM

A marriage of Winchester interest took place at Trinity Episcopal Church in Gloversville, N. Y., on Sunday afternoon, July 9, when Mrs. Edith Claire Cam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Cam of Gloversville, became the bride of Arne A. Miss Ellen Nielsen, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant, and Albert Fox of Gloversville, N. Y., was Mr. Nielsen's best man. Guests included Mrs. Nielsen and the Misses Agnes and Ellen Nielsen of Winchester, Mrs. Gilbert Cam and Mrs. H. G. Hemstreet of Bronxville, N. Y., and Fred Duxbury of New York City. Cpl. Gilbert Cam, brother of the bride, on active duty with the U. S. Army, was unable to be present.

Mr. Nielsen and his bride will make their home in Eureka, Cal. The bride, formerly a member of the staff at the Gloversville Library, has recently been cataloguer at the Winchester Public Library. She is a graduate of Gloversville High School and of Pratt Institute Library School in Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Nielsen attended Franklin Institute in Boston.

TRADERS' DAY AUG. 2

In accordance with the usual custom Winchester will observe Trader's Day on the first Wednesday in August, Aug. 2. THREE YOUTHFUL BURGLARS HELD

Medford Trio Broke Into Winchester Filling Station

Three young men, giving West Medford addresses were arrested shortly before 4 o'clock Tuesday morning by Patrolmen James E. Farrell and John H. Boyle, charged with breaking and entering in the night time and larceny from the filling station of William A. Fitzgerald located at the corner of Main street and Glenwood avenue.

Officers Farrell and Boyle were on duty in a patrol car when they first spotted the trio at 3 o'clock at Cross and Main streets, riding north in a Plymouth sedan. Their suspicions aroused, the police followed the Plymouth which finally turned into Hudson street in Woburn.

Returning to town, Officers Farrell and Boyle pulled their car into Swanton street and shortly before 4 o'clock saw the three young men in the Plymouth coming south on Main street. The officers headed off the car and stopped the trio at Hambly's garage.

In the Plymouth the officers noticed three automobile batteries and a fuel pump, as well as a screw driver. When the young men were unable to give a satisfactory explanation, either of their presence on the highway or where they got the batteries and pump, they were taken to headquarters for questioning by Sgt. Joseph Perro.

Meanwhile Officers Farrell and Boyle went to check gas stations in the vicinity of where they had seen the young men, and they soon found that Fitzgeralds at the corner of Main street and Glenwood avenue had been broken into. Access had been gained by jimmying the front office window police say, and the screw driver found in the Plymouth fitted into the jimmy marks perfectly.

Both Mr. Fitzgerald and his wife were taken to headquarters by the police and quickly identified the batteries and fuel pump as their property. The young men were then booked on charges of breaking and entering in the night time and larceny. They gave their names as Thomas Conley, Jr., 18, Stiire Pierson, Jr., 21, and Thomas F. Quinn, 19, all of West Medford.

In District Court at Woburn Tuesday morning Justice William Hencby found probable cause on the charges and ordered the trio held in $2000 bail for appearance before the Grand Jury. In lieu of bail all were taken about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning to the County Jail at East Cambridge.

Police say one of the young men had in his possession gasoline coupons issued to a local man now in jail.

WINCHESTER OVER TOP IN BOND DRIVE

Winchester went over the top in the Fifth War Loan Drive, Chairman Maurice C. Bird of the War Finance Committee announced Wednesday. Figures compiled through Monday, July 10, show the town has already subscribed $1,874,000 exceeding its quota of $1,653,000 by $221,000.

The figure $1,874,000 will be boosted somewhat for subscriptions on all bonds except E, F and G's continued through July 12, while the E, F and G's run to the end of the month.

Winchester's contest with Winchester, Va., is not over until the end of the month, and competition to date is very keen. Winchester has subscribed already $197,000 in E Bonds or 51.5 percent of its quota. Winchester, Va., has subscribed $141,187 in E Bonds, or 47.1 percent of its quota, so that anything can happen before the final hours of the drive.

In this connection it is important, Chairman Bird pointed out, for solicitors who have not as yet covered all their names to do so at once, for the losing community in the inter-town contest will be stuck with about $300 worth of bills covering the expense of the cooks for the chicken dinner in the north and the baked bean supper in the south.

INJURED IN FALL

Robert B. Sherburne of 8 Page place, Woburn, sustained two bad lacerations of the head Wednesday morning when he fell against a tree on the westerly side of Winchester Common near Church street. He was discovered by Patrolman William J. Callahan, who called headquarters and had the injured man taken to the Winchester Hospital by Patrolman John Hanlon and John Boyle.

Dr. Philip J. McManus, who treated Sherburn, for injuries, ordered him held at the hospital overnight.

CAR RAMMED POLE

At 7:45 Tuesday morning Officer John J. Murray notified Police headquarters that he had heard a crash like an auto accident from the direction of Washington street and Brookside road.

Officers Francis Tansey and Stanley Mullen went to investigate and found that an Olds sedan being driven south on Washington street by Clarence H. Stone of 28 Brookside avenue, a member of the U. S. Coast Guard, had struck a telephone company pole near the corner of Brookside avenue, damaging both the pole and car.

The Police took Stone to the Winchester Hospital where he was treated for cuts on the head and right elbow. After leaving the hospital it was discovered that he had sustained a slight cut on the face. He was given first aid for this at Police Headquarters by Sgt. Joseph Depre and was then taken home.

WAR PARENTS

On Wednesday evening, July 19 at 7:30 o'clock, there will be a meeting of Winchester Chapter No. 16, War Parents of America, Inc. in the Winchester Public Library Hall.

All parents who have boys or girls in the service will be most cordially welcomed at this meeting whether or not they have become members, so they may know of the aims of this organization and share in the great work of transition to the post-war world, so eagerly anticipated.

The speaker will be past American Legion Department Commander, Richard B. Cunningham, State Department Veterans' Aid and Pensions. His subject concerns veteran rehabilitation and employment in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

WEEK-END FIRES

Saturday morning shortly after 7:40 an employee of Richardson's Market found one of the store trucks afire at the Central Garage on Shore road. He notified Officer Edward F. Bowler who called the Fire Department. The firemen found the trouble caused by a short circuit in the truck wiring. Some damage was done both the wiring and motor.

There were two alarms on Sunday the first, coming at 11:40 from the residence of Clifford H. Harris, 144 Cambridge street, where the living-room was filling with smoke. The men found some burning rags in a fireplace responsible. At 1:47 p. m. the men were called to the Edward Mueller residence at 26 Stowell road to put out a fire in a barrell of rubbish in the garage.

VICTORY GARDENER WANTS INFORMATION

With the terse postscript, "Do you know how we Victory Gardeners can secure a loan like this," the following copy of a letter clipped from the June issue of "Co-operative Banker" was sent to the Star by a Winchester tiller of the soil. It is printed herewith, but unfortunately without the information requested. We don't know, brother, but you might try Marshall Symmes, Hicks heading up the C. D. farming program locally.

Copy of a Letter

Reginald W. Bird, president of the Massachusetts Foundation, has a copy of a letter from the Department of Agriculture sent to the farmers in one of our western states, which reads as follows:

"If you are interested in producing beans and have the machinery to do so, you should make your loan application with a loan representative at the AAA office. You will be financed for planting and harvesting your bean crop. The Government wants to loan you this money at 5 per cent, even though you have the money to finance it yourself, as it works as an insurance. If you plant a large acreage of beans and tend them in a workmanlike manner, and a hazard comes along and the crops fail, you will not be required to pay back this loan."

That is what we call a Discouragerr! A discouragerr of hesitancy about taking on an obligation; a discouragerr of honesty in dealings; a discouragerr of industry in farming; a discouragerr in face of about every good attributre!

Representatives were present from China, Russia, Germany, India and South America, all of whom gave the point of view of their countries and their hopes for the post-war world.

GODOY AT WINCHESTER SPANISH CLUB MONDAY

Winchesterites who studied Spanish last winter will rejoice in the news that Prof. Jose A. Godoy will conduct the meeting of the Spanish Club at the Library Monday night at 7:30 In welcoming back Professor Godoy, so popular in Winchester, President William Stephenson has announced that this will be a combination meeting the club group and also the study group taught by Miss Mary Louise Foster.

Born and educated in Peru, Professor Godoy for a time did newspaper work in Cuba and not only engaged in business throughout South America, but spent several years in Spain. He thus brings to his classes a thorough knowledge of the business life of our neighbors to the South along with their history, literature and culture.

While the Monday meeting will feature, Peru, Professor Godoy will also cover other interesting sections of South America, and will illustrate his talk with lantern slides. In addition to the two groups mentioned, the club has invited any citizens of Winchester who wish to brush up on their Spanish by this refreshing contact with the executive director of the Pan American Society, to come. There will be no charge.

Look! Listen! Live!

It's impossible to know whether the grade crossing accident illustrated here resulted because "three's a crowd" or because the driver had only one hand on the wheel.

The official description of the accident says "a roadster, driven by a young man with two lady passengers, disregarded lowered crossing gates and drove through them into the side of a locomotive. Fortunately they were not injured, but the automobile was damaged."

The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these accidents, which every day delay 35 trains a total of 22 hours—a heavy drain on the nation's war transportation effort. Driver-carelessness is the cause of almost all grade crossing accidents, according to the Council.

To help win the war — to save yourself and others needless suffering—the Council asks you to be sure the track is clear before you start across.

SWANSON SNAPS SIMONDS'S WINNING STREAK

Ralph Swanson, one of the superb skippers of the By-George, battled Don Simonds and his sleek Sinbad for three full laps last Saturday afternoon, and became the first sailor to defeat Don this season. Due to vacations and victory work, Don had sailed only five races this season, won all of them quite easily and, up until the starting gun last Saturday, seemed unbeatable.

Ralph slipped over the starting line to windward of the fleet and got a swell lead with only Don moving out to challenge him. For the whole five miles of the course, the lead changed between Don and Ralph with amazing rapidity and it was anyone's guess who'd come in first. Finally, on the last windward leg, Don took a bum tack and Ralph took full advantage of it, to build up a lead that was just too much for Don to overcome on the last fast reach to the finish line. Comdr. Jim Newman sailed a very nice race and was rewarded with a comfortable third.

On Sunday morning, Ralph Swanson came right back and won another, but this time his chief opposition came from Jim Snow. Jim did some very tricky tacking on the windward leg (from Medford to Arlington) and on two occasions built up a good lead only to loose it on the reach and run. Finally, both boats rounded the Arlington marker for the last leg about even-steven, but Ralph managed to maneuver to windward of Jim and beat him across the finish line, a scant half length to the good. Roger Curtis was a very close third.

George Jones, whose grip on second place in the fleet standing had been wrenched loose by Swanson's sensational sailing, must have decided it was time to assert himself, and so he went out Sunday afternoon and handed the fleet a fine flailing. In order to do it, he had to overhaul Don Simonds, and beat off stiff challenges by Swanson's By-George and Tuck's Bill, a task he was more than equal to and that's how they finished: Jones Swanson and Tuck, with the rest of the fleet flounderers wallowing in the wake more or less in their usual order.

Club Chatter

A number of the club's capable ladies, meet at the club Thursdays and do Red Cross sewing. Not only are they making a very important contribution to victory, but they are having a very delightful time. Any of you members who'd like to join this grand group have simply to get in touch with Mrs. Jim Newman . . . There's another supper party in the making. It'll be held Saturday evening, July 29, so you'd better keep that date open . . . Any of you non-sailors who watch the snipe races should keep an eye on Roger Swanson who crews for his bigger brother's Bob and Ralph. There's little doubt that his classy crewing plays an important part in the fine showing the Swanson's are making this year . . . Have all you cribbage fans gotten in touch with Bill Hall? The tournament gets under way shortly, so you'd better get your name in . . . Ten new members-hips to the club were accepted last Sunday which just about fills up the roster. There may be one or two vacancies still available, so if you've been thinking about joining the club you'd better get in touch with Jim Newman or Stan Howe right away.

WINCHESTER CRASHES THROUGH

During the months of May and June members of Troop 1 of the Boy Scouts collected over three tons of mixed papers and corrugated boxes from the stores around the center in Winchester.

This has been possible only through the cooperation of the merchants who have made the effort to set aside this material for salvage.

Civilian Defense is grateful for this response since paper is still critical item no. 1 in the country. This extra effort will also be appreciated by the boys overseas because it means greater assurance that their boxes of supplies and blood plasma will reach them in time.

The collection will continue every Friday afternoon. Drop in at the air raid shelter next to the 5 and 10 cent store on Main street and see the tremendous job the boys are doing in sorting, breaking down and packing this waste paper for shipment to the mills.

PRIDHAM AND GARDNER AGAIN

The extreme heat and even higher humidity of the past week-end did not prevent the hardy members of the Palmer Beach Horseshoe Association from responding to the clarion call to action issued by President Royal "Paper Trade" Teele back after an over-the-holiday vacation. Another large turnout was in attendance, headed by "Wild Willie" McLaughlin, the Pride of Stowe and Champion of all Nahnasetts; and including Roland "Thin Finger" Pridham, Herbert "Garrulous" Gardner, "H. M. S. Rodney" Walsh, Howard "Cool Liner" Wetter, the President, and last and by all means least, the Secretary, who, what with the heat and inadvertently sitting upon some soft tar on one of the settees in the shade wasn't feeling too frightfully chirpy.

There was an unusually large gallery in attendance at the matches, and it is unfortunate that Jerry Nason, our esteemed fellow townsman and sports editor of the Boston Globe, had to pick this particular week-end to be amongst those present. Play wasn't on an especially high level during much of the session,and it was at one of those moments when all the warriors were feeling the strain a bit that Jerry stopped swimming long enough to look at the boys over. He was frankly disappointed in what he saw, and being a frank guy, so expressed himself, adding a gratuitous backhander to the effect that play was somewhat below the weekly build-ups in this column. Had Jerry stayed just a bit longer, he would have seen better things. Mr. Pridham and Mr. Gardner getting really torrid just after he came near causing his perspiring torso into Wodge.

On this particular occasion Roland and Herbert were engaging Mr. McLaughlin and Mr. Walsh in a tight-lipped struggle which suddenly broke wide open when first Mr. Gardner and then Mr. Pridham threw two successive double-headers and succeeding single ringers to take the game 25-3. It really is too bad Jerry missed that one, but it is equally unfortunate that he saw the game he did, for in that alleged contest the President and Secretary got "the works" in no uncertain fashion from "Garrulous" and "Thin Finger". The Association officers had their moments in one game, during which they got going with a vengeance to give the Champs "the business", 25-5, their only real shellacking of the session, but alas, the big shot from the city daily wasn't around at the moment, and it is not at all likely that Mr. Teele and the Scrivener will ever collaborate as well again. Certainly they never have previously.

Mr. Teele opened the session by going vigorously on record as against a statement made in last week's Star concerning that quondam member of the Association, Henry "Tiffany" Knowlton. Mr. Teele avers that there ain't no such animal as a 15¾ in. yaller perch, drawing or no drawing, and that if that statement was the truth, why did "Tiffany" get out of town, even before the Star was published? The whole thing looked very thin to Royal, and the clincher in his opinion was the fact that the tracing of the fish, made before witnesses as it might have been, was not notarized. If things ain't notarized, they just don't count, in Royal's league at least.

When the Association is handing out medals for distinguished service it should not overlook that of Mr. Gardner and Mr. Pridham last week-end. These boys did not lose a match, consequently they were called upon to meet all comers during the entire session, and that with the mercury in the 90's and the humidity off the board entirely. How they did it no one knows, but the Pridham head was spinning and the Gardner shoulders bowed when they finally refused to play any more after taking Mr. Walsh and Mr. McLaughlin for the third time. In between they twice accounted for the Secretary and Mr. Teele, and many of the games were long drawn out with most matches going to odd games. When the Iron Men of Sports are listed for posterity "Garrulous" and "Thin Finger" should rank high on the list for their Marathon performance.

Mr. Gardner was accompanied to the beach by his son, "Butch," an engaging and very intelligent youngster, who followed play carefully for a time from a bench between Mr. Teele and the Secretary. Mr. Teele engaged the young man in conversation, not knowing his identity, and was interested to learn that the youngster's "daddy" was playing horseshoes right then and that moreover he practiced every night, pitching at a stake in his back-yard.

The Teele curiosity was naturally piqued, and after some little urging he succeeded in getting Butch to admit that his last name was Gardner. A bellow from old "Garrulous" was a split second too late to prevent this exceedingly interesting information being given to the public. It is not likely that Mr. Teele will permit the Palmer Beach boys to forget about it, nor is it to be presumed that Mr. Gardner will again bring his son and heir to the beach without at least one dress rehearsal. Incidentally all the boys like young "Butch" and hope to see more of him. He has quite a fund of interesting items.

IMMACULATES CONCLUDE LEAGUE FIRST HALF

Summer over, staid, settled-down every element, the Immaculate Conception Parish of Winchester has rounded out the first stage of its baseball and softball activity.

To the unsympathetic will of its members to play ball, to their ebullient esprit-de-corps, must be attributed the credit for their present emi-gilgs. For some 30 teams are functioning within the parish. Twelve are united into an intermediate league. Junior leagues have been organized. Others will be established. Thus, the parish bids fair to surpass its record 20 team basketball league of the past winter.

Organized with a view to embracing all the members of the parish, rather than a select few, the league is unique in its make up, pervasive in its scope. It is part of the parish answer to the juvenile and parental delinquency that is subverting society.

Home games with intermediate baseball or soft ball teams are being sought. Those desirous of making such arrangements are urged to communicate with Rev. J. Joseph Pierce, or call Win. 858 or 1629.

Rev. James F. Fitzsimons, pastor, is honorary chairman of the league. Coaches in general charge are: Teddy Livingstone and Charlie Valcour. They are assisted by the following coaches of intermediate teams in the boys' league: St. Mary's, Guy Washburn and Joe Callahan; Villanova, Jim and Bob Higgins, Henry Boudreau; Boston College, Hughie O'Doherty and Billy Gibbons; Georgetown, Harold Donovan and Junie Sullivan; Holy Cross, Paul Quigley and Jack Donaghey; St. Anselm's, Ted Connors and Johnnie Gonsalves.

Coaches of the girls' teams are: Georgetown, Tom McKee and Ed Foley; Boston College, Tom McGowan and Joe Haggerty; Fordham, Ed Dineen and Patsy Colella; Holy Cross, George O'Donnell and John Garvey; Villanova, Peter Albani, Jack Hevey, and Frank Mooney; Marquette, Jack Alberts and Dan O'Donnell.

Their duties are to direct and supervise team activity.

Boys' Teams

St. Mary's (Capt. Nick Dizio) won 5 and lost none.

Villanova, (Capt. John Garvey), won 4 lost 1.

Boston College, (Capt. Bob Flynn) won 3, lost 2.

Well—the fourth term is on, and now it's Our Great Soldier.

Closely connected with the giving to the Police of sufficient facts to enable them to investigate telephone complaints quickly and efficiently without cross-examination of the person making the call, is the importance of having young children prepared to give their real names and addresses when they are asked for them. It is all very cute for a lost youngster tearfully or smilingly to admit his name is "Buster", that his father's name is "Daddy," his mother's name is "Mummy" and that he doesn't know where he lives, but information of this sort doesn't aid too much in getting him back home again. Chief Rogers believes every child old enough to talk should be taught as soon as possible to give his correct name, like Edward Jones, his father's name, William E. Jones, and his home address, 12 X street. When you hear some of the things young children say without batting an eye, we do not believe he is asking overmuch. It is the Chief's contention that the long suffering teachers might add to their growing instruction list of things the kids should learn at home and do not, the teaching of youngsters in the lowest grades to give their names, parent's names and their addresses correctly. We imagine if we were in the shoes of the police, we would feel very much as the Chief does about it.

Our good friend Miles Holbrook is quite concerned over that recent squib we wrote about our working for Luther Holton on his farm. As we stated, we received ten cents an hour or a dollar a day. Miles says he and his chum Frank Wilson also worked for Luther and only got forty cents a day. He cannot understand this [illegible] Deal Unions, but Luther Holton was able to reward skilled labor as well, in recognizing superior qualities and business ability. Luther could pay such wages as he felt like, and if one man was worth more to him than another he did not by any means have to get permission from a New Deal Union to give him his directives permitting him to pay more. As we recall it, Miles and Frank, back in those days, were more or less royal economists and not reckoned among the down-trodden, under-nourished two-thirds. At any rate they had Lowell Diamond wheels. And it is further rumored that they only worked to get money for fire crackers anyway. However—Miles agrees that they were happy days, and under-trodden, under-nourished, under-governed, under-supervised as we were, we did not do so bad. In fact he agrees it was better working in those days than it is today. We think he will vote for Dewey. How about your Bob Armstrong?

The Star reporter's attention was attracted one day recently to the amount of time the Police have to waste in taking complaints or reports over the telephone. Few who telephone headquarters seem to realize that the more accurate and complete information they give the Police, the sooner and the more efficiently investigation of their problems can be begun. In the instance to which we refer the desk officer was more than five minutes worming the facts in the case from the lady who wanted to be helped. From the officer's remarks it was easy to see that the person on the other end resented some of the obviously necessary questions he was asking her. We talked with Chief Rogers about the matter and he admitted that often it is both difficult and a long job to get information which must be obtained if a complaint is to be properly investigated. He suggested that the Star request its readers, in the event they have to ask for Police assistance, to be ready to give as complete information as possible, including name and address of the person telephoning, and all possible details pertaining to the question at hand. If a child happens to be lost, a phone message stating, "my girl is lost," isn't too much help to the Police, and before they can set out to find the youngster much valuable time is lost in cross-questioning, which strangely enough parents seem to resent. If the parent of the lost child would say, "This is Mrs. John Doe of 95 Doe street. My daughter Virginia, 4 years old, is lost. She is quite large for her age, has blonde hair and is wearing a pink dress and white sneakers. We think she may be around such a place. She has been missing since 10 this morning. My telephone is so-and-so", the Police could say at once, "Thank you madam. We'll start to locate her at once, without having to worm this information out of the person calling in. Naturally there are occasions when persons call the Police under especially trying circumstances. The authorities expect some confusion at such times and make the best of it. Ninety percent of the calls they receive however are in no sense emergency and a bit of preparation on the part of the telephoner to give the facts would save a lot of Police time and get much better results for the person in trouble.

LETTER FROM DR. MAIETTA

Winchester Officer in Landing on France

The following letter from Capt. Angelo Maietta will be of interest to his many Winchester friends:

Somewhere in France
June 30, 1944

Thought I'd drop a line saying hello to the "boys" of our Rotary Club. I trust that this letter finds the members in excellent health. I'm feeling fine—"as fit as a fiddle." Lost a little weight though. I'm down to 150 lbs.

I landed in France on D-day, June 6 at 9:30 a. m. Of all the landings made that day, the one on our beach was the most difficult. The Germans had excellently prepared defensive positions and employed them in a masterful fashion. During the Channel crossing I had been seasick, but I quickly improved when we came close to the beach. The Germans saw to that! We were met by 88mm. fragmentation shell fire which caused a great deal of havoc. Their mortar fire was deadly. It caused many casualties. Then they would shift to machine gun fire, with which the beach was raked. Landing crafts were demolished, vehicles were destroyed and many, far too many, of our boys were killed and many more were wounded.

For 12 hours, the length of time my battalion remained on the beach, I was very busy caring for the wounded oftentimes just by instinct. I had no time to think of anything. Things were at a very crucial point. Mortar shells and 88's were shrieking and bursting all around. I thought my time had come. I made up my mind that if I had to die, I would die like an American doing my duty to the end, and with my wife's name on my lips and with her and my children in my heart and mind. Thank God, I was spared.

My battalion distinguished itself with many heroic deeds. For the first time under fire, our men conducted themselves like seasoned fighters. Though we are an antiaircraft unit, our guns were employed to knock out pill boxes, observation posts and to keep the beach exits open for the infantry to pass through to the hills.

The German soldier is well disciplined. He is smart and is a tough fighter. He knows all the tricks and does not hesitate to employ them. His equipment, in many instances, is of an excellent quality.

For the first few days, most of the natives appeared stupefied as if they were bewildered or did not believe that the invasion had taken place. Perhaps they were thinking of their towns and villages which, during the process of liberation, would be ravaged anew by the war. I passed through villages and cities that were simply torn asunder, literally blasted to bits—ghost towns that physically, for the present, were no more than a spot on the map.

We rapidly became friends with the French. With the 200 francs ($4) each one of us received prior to D-day, we purchased eggs. Many a Yank has a difficult time saying, "Bonjour, madame, avez vous des oeufs?" And many a French lady smiles and says, "Oui, monsieur." These eggs supplement our K rations, which after a while, become rather tiresome.

I'm glad to learn through the Star that the club still is active in securing blood donors. You have no idea what a life saving measure blood plasma is in the battlefield. It's effect is almost miraculous. Keep up your great work in this field. It is a most worthwhile American and Christian project.

I am eagerly looking forward to the day when I shall return home for good. I hope that God, in His infinite Mercy, continues to spare me, so that again I can be with my dear family and my friends. In the meantime, till we meet again, "Good chance."

Rotarily yours,
Capt. Angelo J. Maietta,
M. C. Surgeon

EUROPE — ITALY — LEGHORN

Leghorn, Italian west coast port toward which Allied forces are pressing, is an example of a city best known by its alias, says the National Geographic Society. The proper name of the city is Livorno but English and American usage have kept that name in the background, and Leghorn hats and Leghorn chickens have helped make the alias stick.

Leghorn, with a population of over 100,000, lies about two-thirds of the distance between Rome and Genoa. Long an unimportant coastal village, it was not only to mariners but to persecuted peoples, Jews, Greeks, Moors and others. The city was built on a tract of fertile land, backed by a range of hills. Its harbor is protected from storms by a long mole, and guarded on the sea side by fortifications, one of the principal units of which was built in 1590.

In the early 1930's the port underwent an extensive face-lifting operation which preserved the old Medicean fortifications but otherwise greatly altered the appearance of the waterfront. Age-old contours were dredged out to provide deeper and more adequate facilities which made possible the docking of large ocean-going ships. The port houses the only naval academy in Italy as well as several shipyards whose output has been tagged for the Italian navy.

Although Leghorn has been popularly associated with Leghorn hats and Leghorn chickens those items were merely shipped through the port, and properly should be credited to the Tuscan countryside inland.

In early days great rivalry existed between Genoa and Leghorn, and many traders who hated the Genoese flocked to Leghorn to settle there. Soon the town became wealthy and cosmopolitan. To its crowded quays and harbors came prosperous Greek dealers trading with Italian, Dutch and English merchants, and even pirates seeking to dispose of their loot.

Looking into the Future

we see a world recovering from the historical consequences of violence, a world in which property losses and industrial casualties have exceeded anything heretofore known. Naturally, these losses, many of which are yet unknown or cannot be accurately determined until later, will have a vital effect on the financial stability of some insurance companies. We are alert to our post war responsibilities to clients and are comfortable in the thought that we represent only strong and reliable underwriters.

"You know, that wife of mine doesn't pretend to know everything . . . and when in doubt she asks.

"When I told her that I didn't think we were financially ready to buy a home of our own, she didn't argue. She just went down to the Savings and Loan people to find out more about their home ownership plan.

"The things she found out amazed me! She told me, for instance, that we could take a home loan that would be repayable monthly just like we're now paying rent. We can pay the interest and the principal together on our loan and the interest reduces consistently! Why, she could even tell me the exact date our home would be debt-free.

"I guess I have to give all the credit for our home ownership to that smart wife of mine and to the friendly home loan adviser who showed us how we could be home owners through . . . .

(I John 5:12 Other Bible citations include: And, behold, one came and said unto him, Good Master, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life? And he said unto him, Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God: but if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments. (Matthew 19:16, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy. When understanding changes the standpoints of life and intelligence from a material to a spiritual basis, we shall gain the reality of Life, the control of Soul over sense, and we shall perceive Christianity, or Truth, in its divine Principle. SASEBO, JAP NAVAL BASE 60 YEARS IN REGION LONG CLOSED TO TOURISTS

Sasebo, target for the second attack of America's B-29 super-bombers, ranks at or close to the top among the several naval arsenals and bases developed by Japan since it embarked on a naval expansion program in 1882, says the National Geographic Society.

A city of over 130,000, Sasebo is at Japan's southwestern corner, on the island of Kyushu. It has an excellent, sheltered position on one of the many small bays on the northwestern arm of Kyushu. The bay opens to the south and is protected by wooded islands and hills on the other three sides.

Together with the industrial city of Nagasaki, 35 miles south, Sasebo is most accessible of Hirohito's strongholds to the reported position of B-29 take-off fields in China's hinterland. Chungking is less than 1400 miles west, perhaps a three- to four-hour super-bomber flight.

The steel center of Yawata, also a target of the second B-29 attack, as it was on June 15, lies 80 miles northeast of Sasebo. Tokyo is 600 miles away slightly north of east. Sasebo base is about 1500 miles north of the site of the recent American air attack on a section of the Japanese fleet. Saipan is 1600 miles from the base.

A small fishing village in Admiral Matthew C. Perry's day, Sasebo was selected in the early 1880's to be one of the naval bases to supplement the empire's chief base at Yokosuka in Tokyo Bay. Frequent reports since World War I have indicated extensive development of Sasebo, but tourists of the 1920's and 1930's were skillfully steered away from the region of the base.

A driver with alcohol in his system doesn't have much system about the way he does things.

In the grade crossing accident illustrated here, three young men had alcohol in their systems and the three men and their systems, including the alcohol, were in a car, one of them as the driver.

At 3:20 a.m. the driver steered headon into a freight train at a grade crossing. The impact derailed an oil car and threw it into the path of a speeding passenger train coming from the opposite direction. The passenger engine was derailed, and jack-knifed the baggage car, turning over a coach and derailing five additional cars. Forty persons were injured, the three young men were killed and traffic on the mainline — a vital war goods artery — was tied up for several hours.

Alcohol and gasoline don't mix —nor does a car mix well with a speeding train. But 34 per cent of the grade crossing accidents are due to cars running into the side of trains, and three-fourths of these occur at night.

The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these accidents which every day delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a serious drain on the nation's war transportation effort. Driver carelessness is the cause of almost all grade crossing accidents, according to the Council. To help win the war — to save yourself and others needless suffering — the Council asks you to be sure the track is clear before you start across.

STAR OFFICE

STATE News GUARD

The 126th company of Winchester's membership in this famous 22nd Infantry unit is eagerly looking forward to the week at Camp Chase in South Hingham where it will put into use the many lessons of military science it has learned during the past year.

The company commanded by Capt. Leslie A. Tucker, will leave Winchester at 8:30 a. m. Sunday, July 16, proceed to the Regimental Headquarters in Charlestown, where they will join the other units of the regiment and be transported, by the State Guard Quartermaster Regiment, to Camp Chase.

On its return from camp the company will again open its ranks to men between the ages of 17 and 50. Any man in this age bracket, interested in military training is invited to stop in, Wednesday evening, July 26 at the Town Hall and see any of the officers.

The 23rd Infantry succeeds for the duration the time-honored 182nd Infantry of the National Guard which has rendered distinguished service for many months in the Pacific Theater of Operations. It dates back over 300 years to the North Regiment of the Mass. Bay Colony, organized in 1636, and known at Bunker Hill as the First Middlesex Regiment. It served in the War of 1812 and Civil War as the 5th Regiment, and in the First World War as the 101st Infantry, Yankee Division.

The following officers and enlisted men will attend the camp:

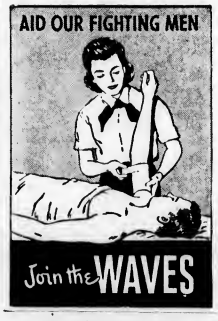

Capt. L. A. Tucker, 1st Lt. H. A. Dellicker, 2nd Lt. E. R. Duckworth, Mess Sgt. A. B. McFeeley, Sgt. D. J. Sweeney, Sgt. C. W. Wood, Cpl. H. J. Cleary, Pfc. J. A. Bullard, Pfc. W. M. Dade, Pfc. R. S. Farnham, Pfc. N. F. Swett, Jr., Pvt. J. A. Doherty, Pvt. G. S. Harris, Pvt. R. P. Knoettner, Pvt. E. R. Mottolo, Pvt. A. E. Nanry, Pvt. D. L. Sherburne, Pvt. H. F. Snell.

TWO ALARMS WEDNESDAY

The Fire Department was called twice Wednesday afternoon, the first time at 2:21 by a telephone call from Chandler W. Symmes of the C. H. Symmes Grain Company, reporting a fire at the old dump off Summer street. Leaves were reported burning there and there was plenty of exceptionally heavy smoke.

Tel. Box 45 was put on at headquarters at 9:15 p. m. for a fire reported to be in shed at the rear of the Ingersoll Products Co. on upper Main street. The men found this alarm to have been false.

The wind of Wednesday night blew down an apple tree near the home of Mr. James L. Nowell on Stevens street, the tree in falling pulling down a telephone wire. Sgt. James P. Donaghey tied up the wire to its pole until the Telephone Company men could repair the damage.

CAR HIT NO PARKING SIGN

Michael F. Grant, assistant superintendent of streets, notified the Police Monday morning that a Town of Winchester "No Parking" sign on Washington street just north of Grayson road had been struck and leveled, evidently by an automobile parked nearby.

Officer Edward F. Bowler went to investigate and found a Ford tudor sedan parked to the north of Grayson road with both tires on the right side flat and other signs of damage, including a bent front bumper and damaged radiator and grill. Officer Bowler also found that the aluminum paint on the parking sign had been scraped off where it had been hit and some was on the bumper of the disabled car.

The machine had been reported as disabled Sunday evening by its owner, Mrs. Jane Record of 6 Doherty place, Woburn. Further questioned by Lt. Edward W. O'Connell, Mrs. Record said she had driven from the Leonard Beach driveway at 5:30 Sunday afternoon and was attempting to turn left on Washington street when the front tire of her machine blew out.

She lost control of the car which crossed the road and hit the curbing near Grayson road, blowing the other tire and other wise damaging the machine. Mrs. Record said in the excitement she did not remember striking the parking sign, but agreed that her car must have hit it and agreed to take care of the damage.

MISS RANDALL TO PLAY

Miss Frances Randall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denton W. Randall of Everell road, is to be organist for the next two Sundays at the Union services to be held at the First Congregational Church. Miss Randall, a graduate of Wheaton, is organist at the First Congregational Church in Woburn.

Soloist at Sunday's service will be Katherine Hall Sibley of Winchester, contralto. The musical program follows:

Prelude: First Three Movements of Concerto No. 3 . . . . . Handel
The Lord's Prayer . . . . . Malotte
Mrs. Sibley
Offertory, Air for G String . . . . Bach
Come Ye Blessed . . . . . Scott
Mrs. Sibley
Postlude: Allegro in G . . . . . Bach

A MORAL CRIME

With blood plasma box production 30 days behind schedule and the manufacture of shell cases running 5,000,000 behind because waste paper is not being received in sufficient quantities, it is time for every citizen to become thoroughly aroused to this emergency and save every scrap of waste paper.

To destroy a newspaper, magazine or other paper today is a moral crime against our country and its Army and Navy.

YOUNG K. OF C. DEPUTY

George F. Young of Washington street, past grand knight of Winchester Council, 210, K. of C., has been made a district deputy of the order by State Deputy James H. Flanagan. Mr. Young's record as grand knight of the local council leads his many friends to believe he will do an outstanding job as district deputy.

The Police were called shortly after 1 o'clock Thursday morning to drive away a group of men and women swimming off the Winchester Boat Club and found that the swimmers had motored there in a car registered to a Cambridge man. They were warned not to do any more swimming on Boat Club property.

RED CROSS NOTES

Production of surgical dressings for wounded American servicemen has been increased to a record level by American Red Cross volunteer workers it was recently announced at Red Cross Headquarters.

During the first 15 days of June the invasion fortnight, surgical dressings shipments to the Army medical depots at Pueblo, Colo., and Louisville, Ky., totaled 54,759,270, more than for any 15 day period.

The use of Red Cross surgical dressings in the Normandy beachhead has been reported already by front line observers.

In addition to meeting Army requirements, the Red Cross has established a reserve supply of dressings for the Navy.

Red Cross surgical dressings have been used also in United States disaster localities including the Pennsylvania and West Virginia areas recently stricken by tornadoes.

The Fire Department was called at 6:23 Tuesday evening by Mrs. Thomas Hoare of 101 Church street, who smelled smoke in her home. The firemen found nothing wrong. Mrs. Hoare informed them that her house was struck by lightning at 1:30 in the afternoon, causing her to become apprehensive about the possibility of a fire.

Twenty-four school children killed and 15 injured!

That was the toll taken not so long ago by failure of the driver of a school bus to comply with safety requirements and assure himself that the way was clear before attempting to cross a railroad grade crossing. The accident is illustrated here.

The windshield and front side windows of the bus were equipped with frost shields or clear-vision windows. The crossing was in open country, with nothing to obstruct the driver's view of the approaching train.

He came to a stop about 25 feet from the track, then started over the crossing when the train was in plain view—only two or three hundred feet away.

The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these accidents which every day delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a damaging blow to the nation's war transportation effort.

Look! Listen! Live!

Whoever said, "What you don't know won't hurt you," was wrong —and the grade crossing accident illustrated here proves it.

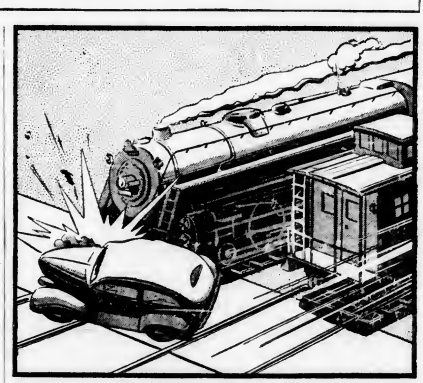

The driver of a shiny car stopped safely at a railroad crossing to let a freight train pass. The train passed, and the driver put his car in gear and started across immediately after the caboose had cleared the crossing. But it was a double track crossing and another fast freight from the opposite direction roared toward the crossing, obscured from view by the train that had just passed.

The driver didn't know the second train was coming.

And what he didn't know not only hurt him—but killed him, smashed the car into junk and delayed the train nearly a half hour.

The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these grade crossing accidents, which every day delays an average of 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a heavy drain on the nation's wartime transportation facilities.

Driver carelessness is the cause of almost all grade crossing accidents, according to the Council. To help win the war, to save yourself and others needless suffering, the Council asks you to be sure the track is clear before you start across.

CHANNEL ISLANDS ON FRANCE'S DOORSTEP

The Channel Islands, of which Jersey is the best known, lie virtually on France's doorstep along the Normandy coast but have belonged to England since the Norman invasion in 1066, the National Geographic Society points out.

In addition to Jersey, the group includes Guernsey and Alderney, plus smaller Sark, Herm, and Jethou. Alderney, nearest to England and France, is just under ten miles from the French shore, 59 miles from English soil. Southwest of Alderney, Guernsey is 29 miles from France; 70 from England. Jersey, southeast of Guernsey, is 15 miles from France; 88 from England.

The islands lie in the northeast waters of the deep elbow bend formed by the Normandy peninsula on the east and the Brittany peninsula on the south. Jersey is the biggest. Roughly rectangular-shaped, it covers about 50 square miles; triangular Guernsey, about 25 square miles. Alderney has only three to four square miles.

Hilly sections of the islands are generally near and along the coasts. Highest elevation (about 450 feet) is on the north coast of Jersey. Southern Guernsey rises to 337 feet. Alderney reaches a little less than 300 feet.

Shores Rocky and Inhospitable

Reads rim Guernsey and Jersey. On the latter island, crossroads connect northern and southern routes. Jersey also has a railway, running along the southern sections.

Sea approaches to the islands are difficult because of outlying rocks; currents, rough seas, and shifting gravel and sand banks.

Before the German occupation in 1940, the population of the islands was less than 95,000: some 50,000 on Jersey; 40,000 on Guernsey; and 1500 on Alderney. The official language of the islanders is French, with English widely spoken, and old Norman French met in rural sections.

LT. TREMBERTH ON STRAFING SPREE

A strafing spree in which two squadrons of 8th Fighter Command Mustangs destroyed 29 enemy planes on the ground provided Lt. Floyd W. Tremberth, fighter pilot from Winchester, was his first victory over the Luftwaffe.

Two pilots of a group based at an 8th AAF Fighter Station in England under the command of Col. William J. (Wild Bill) Cummings, Jr., Lawrence, Kansas, detected a hidden airfield a few miles beyond the Allied lines in Normandy while they were participating in an attack on rail transportation. The two pilots destroyed four of the planes.

"When we all got back to the base" Lt. Tremberth said, "we refueled, rearmed, and got permission to go back and clean house. We were pretty sucey. They were Messerschmitt 109s, and every one we could get on the ground would be one less to fight in the air.

"The two fellows who had found the field led us back there. For half an hour we went back and forth across it. The anti-aircraft emplacements were knocked out right at the beginning and from then on we had a field day. I spotted a 109 concealed in a hedgerow, and opened fire on it from about 300 yards. I saw a lot of hits and then a big cloud of black smoke suddenly poured out of it. As I flew through the smoke the plane burst into flames."

Lt. Tremberth's parents reside at 74 Woodside road. His wife, Mrs. Georgia Tremberth, resides at 371 Highland street, Newtonville.

Rev. Suter, Son of Late Epiphany Rector

Older residents of Winchester will learn with interest of the selection of Rev. CHAMPIONSHIP SWIMMING MEET COMES TO WINCHESTER

Winchester is to have a sanctioned State swimming meet on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 12, when the New England Amateur Athletic Union will stage events at the Leonard Field Pool, commencing at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Boston American-Record in conjuntion with the Winchester Park Department.

There will be both women's and men's events, and since the New England swimming moguls think very well of the Leonard Field layout it is quite likely that good fields will be on hand.

The women's events include a Massachusetts State 440 yard free style championship, NEAAU Junior 150 yard backstroke, 50 meter freestyle (open) and 100 meter freestyls for girls 13 years and under.

Men's events include Massachusetts State 440 yard freestyle championship, 100 meter freestyle (open), 50 meter freestyle for boys 13 and under, 100 meter backstroke and 25 yard freestyle for boys 11 years and under.

Entries close Saturday, Aug. 5, with Supt. Thomas P. Melowan of the Park Department, whose home address is 19 Canal street. There is no entry fee, and no post entries will be accepted. Swimmers must be registered with the NEAAU to compete, and any who are not so registered and who wish to swim in the meet Aug. 12 should contact Coach Carroll at either of the beaches or at her home, 11 Lincoln street, at once.

It is quite an honor to have the NEAAU select Winchester for a swimming meet and it is expected that many local swimmers will participate. It is also to be hoped that many townspeople will make it a point to attend and see what a fine layout the Leonard Field Pool and Beach as well as enjoying what promises to be some good competition.

NEWS FROM WYANOKE

Robert M. Keeney, high school English master, spending the summer as a counselor at Camp Wyanoke, Wolfeboro, N. H., was in town yesterday to have the cast removed from his broken ankle, an injury he sustained during the spring. He reports that both Coach Henry Knowlton and Faculty Manager of Athletics Ray Hayward, are well and happy in their duties at Wyanoke, though Ray recently had an unfortunate experience with the 1928 Oldsmobile which is the trio's pride and joy.

Intimate details are witheld but it was a towing job, friends, and Raymie wasn't too frightfully pleased. Further reports from camp are awaited with interest.

Many veterans require the use of canes and cannot be deprived of this aid when transferred to hospitals nearer their homes. SUMMER ART SHOW OPENS MONDAY AT LIBRARY

The Winchester Art Association opens its annual summer exhibition Monday, July 24, at the Art Gallery of the Public Library, showing an interesting group of oil paintings by members of the Guild of Boston Artists. There are land and seascapes, flowers, still life and portraits in the group, most of the exhibitors being well known to Winchester art lovers.

Capt. Stanley Woodward, famous for his marines, shows a striking study of Mt. Ranier, the snow-clad peak looming sharply against a deep blue sky above dark evergreen-clad slopes with a single tall evergreen and the branchless skeletons of other tall trees in the foreground.

Vermont Hills by Aldro T. Hibbard is an effective snow scene, masterfully painted to suggest the spaciousness and loneliness of winter in northern New England. In this study, small uninteresting frame houses cluster about a snow-girt stream under a bleak, snow-swept Mountain with a suggestion of blue-gray winter sky.

Monhegan by Carroll Bill is another striking study, with its rugged gray-green promontory jutting into deeper green water and glimpsed through a cleft in rocky cliffs under a heavily clouded sky.

The show's only marine, The Old Whaler, by John P. Benson, is an unusual study of a square rigger on dark water, her hull and sails lighted with touches of pink against the dark reddish purple of heavy clouds.

"Murphy" by Bernard M. Keyes, is a strongly painted portrait of a typical working man, seated, with a folded paper in one of his strongly painted hands and an expression of broad beaming melancholy on his heavily lined face.

North Branch River by William J. Kaula is a little gem, a beautifully done snowscape with the effective sky treatment so characteristic of this noted artist. Full of warmth is October Hillside by John F. Enser, another small study of upland farming country with small gray buildings, and rolling pastures lightened by Autumn foliage.

Autumn Reverie by Marguerite S. Pearson is an appealing study of a girl in a soft yellow dress seated on a sofa with the soft light from an open window playing upon her sensitively painted face. The pose of the figure is very life-like and the entire setting effectively done.

Also shown are Still Life by Richard D. Briggs, Pond Lilies by Arthur P. Spear, a fanciful study of a young girl kneeling beside lily-flecked water and painted with great delicacy and luminosity; October Hillside by Loring W. Coleman, Still Life by Frederick G. Hall, very spectacular with its Chinese equestrian figure in green; Landscape by Margaret Fuller Tyng, Silver Caudelabrum by Elizabeth O Paxton, a very detailed study; Landscape by Mary Hazelton, Mixed Flowers by Henry H. Brooks, Dorset Mountain by Parker Curtis-Allen, The Major by Gertrude Fish, a portrait of an elderly man with long flaxen hair; End of Ballet by Louis Kronberg and Still Life by Lelie Thompson.

The exhibition will remain at the Library through the summer and is open to the public.

It shows to particular advantage in the newly painted and decorated gallery, redone by Custodian Robert Eason, assisted by Arthur Twombly, Fred Hicks and Gerald O'Neil. The walls have been covered with Kemtone and the moldings and window casements enameled, the entire effect being very pleasing.

CURTIS GAINED IN LOCAL RECOUNT

A recount of the vote cast for the Republican nomination for state treasurer at the recent primaries was held Tuesday evening, in the General Committe Room at the Town Hall. Only the vote in Precincts 3, 4 and 5 was gone over, there having been no demand for a recount in the other three precincts.

The recount gained eight votes for Lawrence Curtis and lost six for Fred Burrell, giving Curtis a gain of 14 votes for the town. The recount did not matter and will make no difference since Mr. Curtis announced Wednesday that he had decided to abide by the original decision and call off plans for the State wide retabulation.

The recount here was conducted by the Registrars of Voters, Miss Mabel W. Stinson, Howard J. Cosgrove, George J. Barbaro and Nicholas H. Fitzgerald. Also present were Reg. William E. Ramsdell, Clarence Eddy, Miss Helen Stinson, Miss Mary Le-Due and Edward P. McKenzie, local newspaper man.

Several months ago Walter met his brother Thomas M. Cronin, Ph. M. 2-c, a marine, who was then stationed in New Guinea. It was quite a coincidence that first Walter should meet his brother and his cousin in the same area. It was a happy incident that all three will long remember.

DR. JOHN GUY FOWLKES

DR. JOHN GUY FOWLKES OF WISCONSIN TO CONDUCT SCHOOL SURVEY

The Winchester School Committee has announced its election of Dr. John Guy Fowlkes, Acting Dean of the School of Education at the University of Wisconsin and Director of the Summer session, to conduct the survey of the public schools voted at the recent special Town Meeting. The survey will be started with the opening of the schools in September.

The selection of Professor Fowlkes was made by the Committee after an extensive investigation of the experts available in school survey work.

Professor Fowlkes has had a long and distinguished career in education which fits him to undertake this investigation. He has directed or participated in some 125 school surveys throughout the country. Some of the larger cities in which he has undertaken the direction of school surveys are Pasadena, Cal., Fort Worth, Texas; Racine, Wisconsin; Flint, Michigan; and San Francisco, Cal. He holds membership in the State Survey Commissions of Mississippi and Virginia and is Director of the State Survey Commission of Wisconsin.

He is a widely known contributor to educational publications and is the author of many textbooks in the elementary and secondary education fields.

He has been a member of the Faculty of the School of Education at the University of Wisconsin since 1932. He has been Professor of Education at Wisconsin since 1936. During 1936-37, he was visiting Professor of Education at the University of California. He is a former special assistant to the United States Commissioner of Education.

He has taught arithmetic, algebra and geometry, has been principal of the Arkadelphia, Missouri, public high school, associate headmaster of the Roger Ascham School of Westchester, New York and headmaster of "The Castle" of Tarrytown, New York.

In the opinion of the School Committee, his experience in elementary and secondary teaching and administration, gives Professor Fowlkes an excellent background for its survey in which elementary and secondary curriculum and teaching methods are of particular interest.

Professor Fowlkes will have associated with him in the survey several other educators of high standing to conduct studies of special fields. Among these will be Dean John Anderson, Professor of Elementary Education at the University of Wisconsin and author of widely used elementary texts. Miss Alice Leary, Elementary Supervisor of the public schools of Rochester, N. Y., and an accepted authority in the field of reading, will assist Dean Anderson in the study of our elementary system.

The survey will be comprehensive and intensive, covering all aspects of curriculum, teaching methods, administration, supervision and school housing.

MORE WASTE KITCHEN FATS NEEDED

The War Savage Committee has sent out a call for more waste fats. These used kitchen fats have been found to be of more value in the manufacture of munitions than new fats and oils. Hence the housewife is urged to save every spoonful and turn it in to local markets.

The women of Winchester have cooperated beautifully in this salvage effort but there seems to be some misunderstanding as to the regulations. All fat must be strained. There must be no lumps. Please be sure to place fat in tin cans with smooth edges. Never under any circumstances take fat to the dealer in a glass or crockery jar. Any size can will do but be sure there are no jagged edges and do not take less than a pound to the market at one time. If you weigh your container of fat remember that the dealer is permitted to pay points and cash for the net weight of the fat only, and not for the weight of the can.

Help sizzle the axis with your waste kitchen fats.

AT HOME AFTER SEPT. 6

Dr. and Mrs. James Warren Sever will be at home after Sept. 6 at 25 Appleton street in Cambridge, following their marriage on last Saturday at Ripley Memorial Chapel of the First Congregational Church. Mrs. Sever is the former Mrs. T. Graf'on Abbott of Winchester, who for the past 15 months has been educational consultant for the American Social Hygiene Association in New York, making a nation-wide tour in connection with "Youth Problems in War Times." She is to continue lecturing and writing on this subject.

Dr. Sever is an othopedic surgeon with offices at 321 Dartmouth street in Boston. He is professor of Orthopedic Surgery at the Harvard Medical School, consultant at the Boston City Hospital and on the staff of a number of other hospitals, including the Children's Hospital, the Cambridge and Waltham Hospitals.

Last week's announcement of Mrs. Abbott's marriage to Dr. Sever had the doctor's name incorrectly spelled. The correct spelling of the name is as it appears here.

SMALDONE—GALLELLO

In a setting of white flowers and palms at St. Mary's Church on Sunday afternoon, July 16, Miss Catherine Virginia Gallello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Gallello of Sumner street, became the bride of Rosario Mario Smaldone, son of Mrs. Maria Smaldone of Chelsea street, East Boston. Rev. Fr. John P. O'Riordan, pastor of St. Mary's, performed the ceremony at 4 o'clock.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Gallello wore a princess style gown of white summer satin having lace at the neckline and satin bows extending down the front of the very full skirt. Her fingertip-length veil was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a spray of stephanotis centered with an orchid.

Miss Mary Gallello of this town was the bride's only attendant. She wore a dusty rose dress having a satin bodice and full net skirt. Her matching veil was arranged with dusty blue plumes and she carried a spray of delphinium and roses to match her dress.

John Smaldone of East Boston was best man and the ushers were John Smaldone, Jr., and Arthur Smaldone of East Boston, and John Perritonio and Dominick Gallello of this town.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, the receiving line standing in a room decorated entirely in white.

AN INVITATION FROM MAYOR TOBIN

An invitatom to the people of Massachusetts to visit the Public Garden in Boston and view the floral reproduction of the coat of arms of the late Cardinal O'Connell, planted as a tribute to the memory of the Cardinal, was issued this week by Mayor Maurice J. Tobin.

The floral display has been constructed at the Arlington street end of the Public Garden, near the White Memorial.

It will be on display for the remainder of the summer.

The floral tribute to the Cardinal is made of 12,000 plants. Its background is green. The crown is brown. Other colors in the floral Coat of Arms are grey, gold and red.

ATTENDED TEACHERS CONFERENCE

Miss Alice M. O'Leary of 104 Church street, this town has returned from a visit to the University of North Carolina where she attended a conference for teachers and managers of private business schools. Miss O'Leary, who is the head of the Short hand Department at Burdett College, Lynn, was accompanied by Miss Agnes Pillsbury of Boston. Professor Nichols of Harvard Business School was one of the guest speakers at the conference.

RED CROSS APPRECIATION

An artillery captain recently wrote from France "I see the local papers are printing some very interesting Red Cross publicity and I would like to add my bit by saying that the boys across certainly appreciate what the Red Cross is doing.

It is, indeed, the only organization looking after our welfare, somewhat different from the last war when there were half a dozen. We have representatives right up in the front line with us and they do a great deal to help the morale particularly oh a the men have trouble at home which they want straightened out.

They are always looking out for the welfare of the men and do everything in their power to add to their comfort. Back in England and Africa Red Cross Clubs are established in all the large cities where the men may go to relax, dance, eat, attend movies, play ping pong or other games without being under the supervision of any officers. The officers have clubs of their own also run by the Red Cross.

The Red Cross really makes you feel that somebody outside the army is interested in you and your welfare."

Look! Listen! Live!

Tongues of the victims of the grade crossing accident shown here were wagging faster than the wig-wag warning signal as the car approached the grade crossing—wagging so fast the three occupants of the car didn't see the crossing watchman either, holding his STOP sign high.

Two of the talkers were killed when the train hit them, including the driver, the car was badly damaged and the train delayed one hour.

The surviving occupant of the car said all three had been conversing, diverting the driver's mind from concentration on what always should be a full-time job for a driver—driving his car.

The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these accidents, which every day delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a blow at transportation facilities which the nation cannot afford, least of all in wartime.

OPEN DATE AT PALMER BEACH

Last week-end proved an open date in the schedule of the Palmer Beach Horseshoe Association, with President Royal "Paper Trade" Teele calling off play before leaving to consort with the bootjacks and Willowware in his antiques emporium at Provincetown.

The way Royal looks I at it and so expressed himself to the Secretary there wasn't much use in holding matches that week-end, what with his own unavoidable absence and the fact that both "Wild Willie" McLaughlin, the Pride of Stowe and Champion of all Nabnasset, and Herbert "Garrulous" Gardner being out of town.

Mr. McLaughlin, according to Mr. Teele, proposed to sojourn on the Cape for a time with his family while Mr. Gardner's itinerary was in the direction of Hancock, N. H. That left only Roland "Thin Finger" Pridham and the Secretary as known quantities and it didn't take too much urging to persuade the Secretary that play ought to be postponed until more of the warriors were on hand once more. The heat of last week very definitely had the Scrivener on the ropes and he was willing to forego almost anything that called for the expenditure of any energy whatever.

It was of course a possibility that "H. M. S. Rodney" Walsh and Howard "Foul Line" Wittet might have shown up, but neither has been regular enough to warrant indulging in any but the faintest hopes. Of the two Mr. Wittet has been the more prevalent, but since he got those blueberry bushes in the ground last year his attendance has been on the seamy side, and it surely would have been a minus quantity had there been three on the courts waiting for him to make play possible.

As a consequence it seemed wise to call off any meeting, and this the Association's officers proceeded to do. It is quite likely that enough warriors will be around this week-end to get things going once again, provided the weather-man co-operates.

TROOP 1, B. S. A.

Trip to the White Mountains

On Saturday, July 8, a group of boys from Troop 1, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Stafford Rogers, left Winchester for a five day mountain climbing and camping trip to the White Mountains. The party drove to Waterville Valley, N. H., the car being left at an abandoned lumber camp from which point they packed their supplies two and a quarter miles to the Forest Shelter at Greeley Ponds. This wild spot, 18 miles from the nearest town, was their headquarters and from it they made daily climbs of the surrounding peaks.

Due to the fact that so few people are using these trails this year many signs of wild animals were observed. These included deer, moose, bear and others and at one time the group met a deer on the trail and all had the good fortune to see it. A large number of birds were identified, most of which were new to the boys.

During the trip the following mountains were climbed: Osceola twice (by two different trails), East Peak, Tripyramid, Liberty, Little Haystack, Lincoln and Lafayette. Forty-five miles of mountain trails were hiked, many of which were uncleared. The boys all returned safe and sound and hoping to be included when another trip is formed.

The party was made up of the following: Scoutmaster Stafford Rogers, George Sullivan, William Sullivan, Charles Andersen, Robert Curry, Ronald Donahue, Robert Duckworth, John McElhinney. The group returned to town on Wednesday, 12.

RED CROSS WATER SAFETY

With its goal "To Waterproof Winchester" the Red Cross Water Safety Service of this town is in the third week of the campaign. The free swimming lessons at Palmer Beach and Leonard Pool are well attended with about 125 registered beginners, 25 intermediates and 20 life savers.

Because of these large classes Addison Augusta, Leonard Pool life guard and a Red Cross Water Safety instructor, has offered to help Helen Carroll in the mornings. Besides these two instructors, many members of the Winchester Swimming Club are on hand to assist in developing future members of the team.

This year two large Winchester Red Cross swimming trophies will be given to the outstanding girl and boy swimmers at the close of the season. These winners will have their names inscribed on the trophies which may be kept for a year. The awards will be made on the following qualities of the swimmers: ability, participation, sportsmanship, leadership and co-operation. These trophies, given to further the swimming spirit in this town, will be prizes well worth working for.

TWO ALARMS SUNDAY

The Fire Department answered two alarms on Sunday, the first for a fire on the dump at the foot of Summer street at 4.53 p. m. The second alarm was from Woburn Box 56, Engine 2 and a crew going up to Woburn to find an automobile afire on Main street near the Town Line cafe.

Thomas Carroll, seaman, first class, with a record of many months of duty in the Pacific, is home on furlough visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carroll of Russell road.

GIRL SCOUTS DAY CAMP

The Winchester Girl Scouts are indebted to the Whiting Milk Co. for the use of the out-of-door milk chest. This has made it possible to have cold, refreshing milk on hand all during the warm, muggy spell of weather. Camp has planned to have a little extra milk on hand if the girls wish to buy more, and this chest has served well.

Anyone having a small portable ice chest which they would like to give to the Cabin will be a friend indeed. Such a chest is needed to be added to the equipment, as the committee has plans for more troop camping this coming year.

Camp has produced some ambitious piano players and it's quite a relief from the usual chop sticks.

The big tent has not been put up this year.

The older girls of Group 1 have already made plans for their "overnight" for this week

Material for the bulletin board has been plentiful and good this year.

All campers have been busy with sandpaper and cedar rounds to produce pins.

Someone has stolen the rope to the flagpole again this year. It is earnestly wished that the thief had the job of replacing it as it is both inconvenient and expensive.

Campers have enjoyed the new facilities at the camp.

The Cubs are coming to our camp for the first three weeks in August. They will hold camp in Medford for the first three weeks from July 10 to 24.

Tennis instruction is being carried on at Ginn Field under the supervision of Anne Albree. About 20 intermediate are interested and Ruth Murray is teaching with Anne.

Morning singing sessions have been especially good this year and many of the old favorites are back.

The scouts' pet show last Thursday afternoon was very successful. There were three large work tables full of dolls, stuffed animals and others. First and second prizes were given for "the oldest," the prettiest, the funniest, the oddest and the most dilapitated of each group. The corps of judges were made up of one from each of the four groups with Mrs. Dorothy Spofford in charge.

Girls at the Girl Scout Day Camp are very busy these days with their several camp activities.

Brownies under the supervision of Mrs. Eleanor McCall, Mrs. Mary Lamprey and June Tracy have been touring the woods, laying trails, visiting the Brooks Estate, collecting specimens from a nearby pond. They have made sip-upons, table mats and even blueberry cake in the reflector oven at the fireplace to celebrate a birthday.

Mary Armstrong, Marjorie Cameron, Nancy Handford, Cynthia Moses, Nancy McNulty, Linnea Neale, Joyce Sargent, Janet Archibald, Joan Barrett, Sheilah Feinberg, Judith Higgins, Judith Nanry, Rosemary Rooney, Joan Moore, Judith Sargent, Vivian Bullard, Elise Francis, Roxanne Jope, Dorothy Pearce, Suzanne Wadsworth, Peggy McHugh, Cynthia Whiting.

Unit 1 under Mrs. James Lyon and Mildred Spofford have been very busy with handicraft in raffia and crepe paper, making sit-upons, laying trails and collecting rocks. Also this group have really been the all-round busiest in camp, always having their heads together to produce something special for the Thursday afternoon campfire.

Marjorie Monroe, Carol Ambrose, Diane Byron, Barbara Colucci, Nancy Glover, Judith Hamblin, Elinor McCully, Joan Phillips, Ellen Shields, Helen Barrett, Roberta Coon, Shirley Farnham, Anne Hammond, Adelle Jonah, Margaret McHugh, Nancy Rose, June Lewis, Carol Brown, Elizabeth Curtis, Eugenia Flaherty, Dawn Horn, Marjorie Morse, Bette Nelson, Lucille Symmes, Jane Gorrie.

Intermediates (Group 3) under leadership of Mrs. Marian Feinberg and Martha Feinberg are mighty industrious too. They make lemonade and do a nice clean-up job as well. There girls have been interested in making plaster of paris plaques, coasters, sit-upons, shell pins, woven pot holders. At the fireplace they have made cornbread and bread sticks.

Unit 4 under the head of Mrs. Dorothy Spofford and Mrs. Eldith Tracy is the oldest group and have been especially interested in the tennis. They have made sit-upons and are now working on summer pocketbook. During the hot spell the past weeks they have enjoyed making ice cream in the all-popular Spofford freezer. They are working on cedar rounds for pins and have made a nice big batch of blueberry gingerbread in the reflector oven. These girls have their home site far in the woods under a big chestnut tree.

Martha Bailey, Marjorie Carroll, Jackie Fritrh, Barbara Hamilton, Beth McCall, Cynthia Morse, Joan Roberts, Olive Thayer, Nancy Wilson, Peggy O'Leary, Virginia Bullard, June Crosby, Marie Frotten, Mona Hasselgren, Eliazbeth McHugh, Dorothy Rice, Ruth Sheehan, Mildred True, Barbara Young, Betty Carlisle, Barbara Dunbury, Dorothy Hagstrom, Patricia Mawn, Joan McKinley, Jean Roberts, Mary Spofford, Joan Walsh, Barbara Farrell.

WINCHESTER SWIMMERS AT ONSET

Members of the Winchester Swimming Club who competed at the NEAAU meet in Medford last Saturday afternoon learned that there is no substitute for condition when competing in fast company. As a consequence the local boys and girls have been working hard for the NEAAU championships meet to be held tomorrow afternoon in Onset Bay on the Cape under the auspices of the Boston American-Record in conjunction with the Onset Bay Chamber of Commerce.

Facing the handicap of getting her swimmers to Onset for the meet, Coach Helen Jay Carroll had to hand pick members of the local club for competition tomorrow. She has entered 10 of her most promising swimmers, sending Edie Dover, Joy Pray, Anna Murray and Barbara Donaghey after the Women's Massachusetts State 100 meter event and entering Rose McGowan in the girls' novice feature.

In the men's competition Coach Carroll has entered Jim Quine, Bob Wilson and Mike Gambino in the Junior 50 meter event and Addison Augusta in the Senior 220. Bob McGrath will compete in the 50 meter event for boys 13 and under.

FATHER-SON TOURNEY AUG. 11-12

Winchester Country Club will hold its 26th annual Father and Son golf tournament on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 11 and 12, adding a new division for fathers who have formerly played with sons who are now in the service. There will also be the other special groups such as fathers playing with two sons, fathers with sons under 12 and grandfather and grandson division.

The winning pair in the championship division will gain possession of the Winchester Father and Son Bowl for one year, receiving medals for permanent possession.

Other prizes will be for second gross, first and second net, best father playing with son under 12, and nice prizes for the grandfather and grandson division.

NOVICES SCORED AT MEDFORD

While none of the local experienced swimmers succeeded in breaking into the places at the swimming meet staged last Saturday afternoon by the Medford Youth Commission at the Tufts Square Pool in that city, it is significant that Winchester Swimming Club novices made an excellent showing in the events for beginners. Apparently Coach Helen Jay Carroll has a good crop of young hopefuls coming along.

Winchester competitors won all three places in the 50 yard novice freestyle of the women's division, Ann Albree placing first, Althea Grace, second; and Veronica Carpenter, third. Time was 36.9s.

In the same event of the men's division, Bob McGrath was second behind James Peckham of Quincy in 30s. Matt Lojko of Olneyville was third. Girls from Olneyville, long a swimming community, dominated the women's events of the meet with Claire Lamoureux winning the 100 yard freestyle and backstroke, and Louise Sherback the 150 yard junior medley freestyle NEAAU event. In the men's division William Burrell, Salem coast guardsman won the 100 yard NEAAU senior freestyle event, Francis Moran of the Bunker Hill Boys' Club, the 100 yard backstroke and Harold Nicoff of Olneyville, the 100 yard breaststroke.

RECEIVED PURPLE HEART

Pvt. Rocco DeTeso, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore DeTeso of Olive street has been decorated with the Purple Heart medal for wounds received while serving with the combat infantry in the push for Rome during the Italian campaign. He sustained severe leg wounds and is still confined to a base hospital somewhere in Italy but his parents have been notified by Major General J. A. Ulio, Adjutant General, that he is making normal improvement, a fact substantiated by letters received from Pvt. DeTeso himself.

Pvt. DeTeso sent his Purple Heart to his parent and it has arrived in Winchester. He entered the Army Paving July of 1943 and went overseas with the United States Infantry during January of this year. He is the brother of Tony DeTeso, former Winchester High and Tufts College football star, now in the United States Navy.

The Star believes that almost everyone will applaud the School Committee's choice of John Guy Fowlkes, professor of Education at the University of Wisconsin, to make the survey of the Winchester schools, for which funds were provided at a special town meeting held in May. Dr. Fowlkes is also acting dean and director of Wisconsin's summer session and has been special assistant to the Commissioner of Education for the United States as well as filling many other educational posts of importance. More than this he has taught, at the elementary as well as the higher levels, has served as master or principal of schools, written popular school textbooks, and in general has an especially rich background of actual experience for the specialized work of educational surveying. In this field he has had a wide experience and has met with great success. It would surely be difficult to find a man better qualified by background, education and actual experience to undertake the Winchester survey. More important, however, is the fact that Dr. Fowlkes comes from far afield, having no connection with Winchester or its system in any way. His selection in this respect is in keeping with the motion under which the survey funds were voted, calling for a "disinterested survey." Dr. Fowlkes has a reputation for diligence, straight thinking, forcefulness, honesty, courage and to borrow a sporting phrase, "calling them as he sees them." These are attributes which again the town as a whole will be glad to know exist in the man who is to examine our school system and determine its status. The School Committee is to be congratulated upon the choice of such a man. Nor do we believe the choice was an especially easy one to make. A great deal of time was given by the committee to deliberating the matter and those who have been especially interested will be pleased to learn that the members have arrived at so logical a conclusion. The one thing that the selection of Dr. Fowlkes ensures is that regardless of how the survey turns out, no one can say it was prejudiced in favor of the local system and its head chosen with a view to giving our schools and their administration a nice clean coat of whitewash. This will be especially important in the event that the survey shows nothing wrong with our system, and there are not a few who believe that there is nothing wrong with it. The thing above all which the Committee had to hold in mind was the public acceptance of whatever decision the surveyors may make. It is hard to see how any fair-minded person can doubt the sincerity of any decision arrived at by Dr. Fowlkes, however much they may be inclined to disagree with it. Nor can they in all fairness doubt his competence in the exacting and specialized survey field. The town meeting, in going against the recommendations of the Finance Committee and voting the sum of money believed necessary for the survey by the School Committee, expressed confidence in the Committee's judgment which was also a challenge to the Committee to carry out the clearly expressed mandate for a "comprehensive and disinterested" survey. That challenge has been met and the mandate carried out in a way to cause the committee to gain in stature as public servants.

EATING A D-RATION AND SWEATING IT OUT

June 30, 1944
Somewhere in France

The letter enclosed is one we received from Michael Gillotte in Co. E 359th Inf. APO 90, New York, now stationed in France. We would like to have it printed in the Star. This letter is a copy of the one sent by him.

Thank you,
Michael Mrs. Anthony Gillotte
20 Tremont Street

Dear Tony, Ida and Bobby:

Just a few lines to let you know that I'm O. K. With the birds singing in the trees and the cows eating in the pastures, a person wouldn't know that behind every tree and hedge row, there was death waiting for him. There goes the good old artillery screaming overhead again. But the Jerry's throw some of it back again. The Jerry's don't seem to have the artillery we have, but what ss's they do have sure do their dirty work for them. The Jerry is a tough nut to crack, but you know as well as I that nuts can be cracked, and so far we've been doing a good job of cracking them. I know that when you receive my other letter saying something about the ship sinking on which I was on going to France, you'd like to know more details, but that will have to wait until I come home.

I've been over here in France ever since this thing started, and I've been living in the same clothes ever since I hit this country. A couple of days ago was the first time I brushed my teeth since I've been in France. When I got through it seemed as if someone had taken a blow torch and put it in my mouth.

I've been living in fox holes for so long I'm beginning to feel like a rat, but I thank God for the protection he has given me. I admit I haven't gone through all this without a scratch. I haven't been wounded or anything like that as yet, but I did get a lot of scratches on my hands and ears from crawling 1000 yards on my hands and knees through ditches covered by vines and thorns trying to get out of German territory.

Last night I went out on a combat patrol behind the Jerry lines. We got in a tight place again last night, but we knocked out a machine gun nest, and killed two Jerrys. Our prayers must have been answered because God was with us all the way. But that's another story, and maybe some day I'll tell you about it. So in the meantime while this war is going on, and the boys over here are fighting for what they believe is right, how about saying a prayer now and then for the boys who won't come back, and for the boys in the front lines. When you go out to have a good time back there in the States, stop and think are you giving your all, just like a lot of my buddies have who will never come back and the thousands of others who are not my buddies. So, say a prayer for all the boys. Pray to God, like you've never prayed before, for this war to end, and may God hear your prayers and end this un-holy war soon.

Ida, I haven't been receiving the Winchester Star, ad I do miss it very much, especially up here in the front lines, but I imagine they'll be coming along. I just re-read this letter, and I didn't realize what I was writing until I was through, but I'm sending it just the same, just to show you not only how I feel, but how we all feel up here at the front.

Back in the States I tried from one day to the other because I didn't know what life was about, but now day by day, it gets dearer and dearer. Now I live from one day to another, and I pray and thank God with all my heart for letting me live another day, and to watch over me the next. God bless you all.

Loves and kisses,
Mike

EUROPE, ITALY, AREZZO

Arezzo, along the Allied route to the Italian city of Florence, is a city with 25,000 residents, twice the population it had at the turn of the century, says the National Geographic Society. Modern transportation and the nearness to Florence have in some ways handicapped this once-famous city.

Florence is about 40 miles to the northwest, approached by roads that pass on either side of lofty Pratomagno, but with the Arno valley route to the west the more popular and favored by the railway.

Known for Native Sons

Before the war, Arezzo's textiles and wines did little to distinguish it from other Italian cities. But in the Middle Ages the wealthy walled town was famed for the artistry of its terra cotta vases.

It was still more noted for its famous sons. Maecenas, friend and adviser of the Emperor Augustus, was born in this Roman town, then called Arretium; he bequeathed his name to all wealthy patrons of literature.

Giorgio Vasari, Spinello Aretino, and others of Arezzo's artistic sons contributed much to the fame of medieval Florence, when it became the capital of the Renaissance.

Petrarch, famous Florentine poet, was born in Arezzo in the 14th century; and the year Columbus discovered America Pietro Aretino was born in the town. This satirist and scourge of princes demonstrated the pen to be mightier than the stiletto.

City Sold to Florence

In the city's piazza is a statue to another native son, Guido of Aretino (or Arezzo), reputed inventor of the modern system of musical notation.

This wealthy Etrurian town early opposed the might of Rome for more than three centuries, then became an ally only to rebel later, when it was destroyed by Sulla. It was rebuilt again and again acquired wealth that became the spoils of Goths and Lombards.

It rebelled under Charlemagne and became capital of a prosperous medieval republic, but was again plundered in the late 14th century, and was then sold to Florence for 40,000 florins.

INCONCEIVENESS

(Written for The Winchester Star)

Preconsciousness is spirituality, unshrined:
No man is far along who is purblind
To need of advancing field of action discreet.
Where his religion manifests itself complete,
Not in criticism of others impinguness,
As fault finders are examples of incautiousness.

we see a world recovering from the historical consequences of violence, a world in which property losses and industrial casualties have exceeded anything heretofore known. Naturally, these losses, many of which are yet unknown or cannot be accurately determined until later, will have a vital effect on the financial stability of some insurance companies. We are alert to our post war responsibilities to clients and are comfortable in the thought that we represent only strong and reliable underwriters.

IT'S A GREAT FEELING to buy every War Bond you can, but it's also a very sheepish feeling when you have to cash in some of those important Bonds. You feel like you have made a bargain with Uncle Sam that you can't keep.

Our Association urges you to "Buy War Bonds first and then start a savings account" to make sure your Bonds do not have to be cashed in before their date of maturity. Both ways your money will be earning a good return. The first investment will assure the safety of your country . . . the second investment will assure the safety of your War Bonds. The Golden Text, Thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious, longsuffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth, is from Psalms 86:15. Other Scriptural selections include: All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: That the man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good works (II Timothy 3:16, 17).

Also included in the Lesson-Sermon will be the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy: The Scriptures are very sacred. Our aim must be to have them understand spiritually, for only by this understanding can truth be gained . . . It is this spiritual perception of Scripture, which lifts humanity out of disease and death and inspires faith . . . Christian Science separates error from truth and breathes through the sacred pages the spiritual sense of life, substance, and intelligence (pp. 547, 548).

SOUTH PACIFIC, NOEMFOOR

Surprise landings on Noemfoor Island have carried Allied operations in the Southwestern Pacific theater to within 265 miles of the extreme western end of huge New Guinea, says the National Geographic Society. The island lies 430 miles deep in the Netherlands Indies. Situated at the broad entrance to Geelvink Bay, Noemfoor is about 60 miles west of Allied occupied Biak. It is due south (although nearly 2500 miles away) from Kobe, shipbuilding center and seaport of Japan proper. The nearest island of the Philippines is only 780 miles to the northwest.

Resembles Catcher's Mitt

From the air, rounded Noemfoor has the shape of a baseball catcher's mitt. The thumb indentation on the east forms a bay reached through an opening in the wide reef that surrounds most of the island. On the southwest coast, where the only open bay is found, the village port of Telok Roemboi had but a small pier before the war. Today, according to news reports, the Japanese have made the island into a useful base, with airdromes, gun emplacements and other military installations.

Wooded, jungle-tangled Noemfoor is just south of the Equator. Although it looks flat from a distance, there are a few high spots in the west-central and southeast areas. Highest elevation, in the west, is less than 700 feet.

Look! Listen! Live!

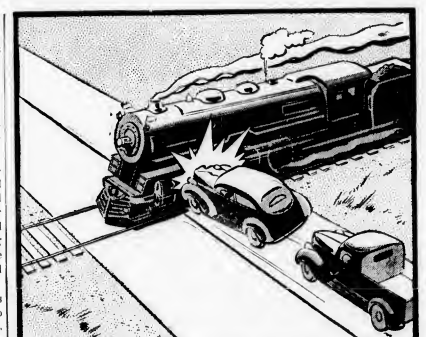

One automobile pushing another across a railroad grade crossing is a dangerous pastime, and that is the way it turned out in the accident illustrated here.

A truck was immediately behind the automobile and there was evidence that the truck had been pushing the automobile as it approached the crossing.

Whistle signals were sounded almost continuously in this case and the signals were heard by several witnesses. Regardless of whether the automobile was being operated under its own power or was being pushed by the truck, reasonable precautions would have averted the accident.

The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these grade crossing accidents, which every day delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a big blow to the nation's wartime transportation facilities.

Driver carelessness is the cause of almost all grade crossing accidents, according to the Council. — the Council asks you to be sure To help win the war—to save yourself and others needless suffering the track is clear before you start across.

FILENE'S TO MAKE FIRST COMMERCIAL HELICOPTER DELIVERY

Tuesday, July 25, will mark a thrilling milestone in aviation when the first commercial delivery by helicopter in America will be made by Wm. Filene's Sons Company from its warehouse in Cambridge to the Belmont store.

Filene's who'r announced last October the filing of the first petition by a retail store for a license to make deliveries by helicopter after the war, is giving Boston an exciting preview of this coming service. The helicopter itself will be on exhibition at Filene's Cambridge building all day Monday and on Tuesday morning from 10:30 a. m. on making occasional short exhibition flights to and from Longfellow Bridge. At approximately 1:15 p. m. on Tuesday it will take off for Belmont.

Following music by the Port of Boston Band of the United States Coast Guard, ceremonies will officially be opened by Mr. Harold D. Hodgkinson, general manager of Filene's at 1:15 p. m. Mr. Hodgkinson will also present Mr. Francis L. Sennott, vice chairman of Cambridge, and Mr. Dudley Dorr, president of the Aeronautic Association of Boston, who will cut the ribbon for the first ascent of the helicopter in a short demonstration flight.

War stamps and bonds will be sold to the public during the program. Purchasers of war stamps may have booklets, "The History of the Helicopter," autographed by the pilot, and anybody buying a $500 bond will become a member of the Helicopter Club. Members of this new and unique Helicopter Club receive a certificate entitling each to a free ride in a helicopter as soon as possible after the war from Aeronautical Products, Inc. in Detroit.

A special program will be broadcast over Station WBZ in which Mr. William H. McLeod and Mr. Samuel Seegal, vice presidents of Filene's, and other officials will speak. Following this speech the plane will take off on this first commercial delivery flight, and the ceremonies will be resumed at its landing at Filene's in Belmont.

Mr. Laurence Bitner, vice president of Filene's, will welcome guests at Belmont and present chairman of the Board of Selectmen Gilmore C. Dickey, Mr. Harold Bernkopf, Filene's branch shop manager, and Miss Berry, manager of the Belmont shop, formerly of this town.

A large package flown from Cambridge and opened at Belmont will appropriately contain the "Helicopter dress of tomorrow" especially designed for the occasion by Claire McCardell, winner of the American Fashion Critics' Award of 1943 for her outstanding casual clothes. This historic creation is being offered to the Smithsonian Institute for its Aviation exhibit as the first costume designed for wear in a helicopter.

Around the "helicopter dress of tomorrow" Miss Dorothy Kelley, Filene stylist, will present a brief fashion show depicting the evolution of transportation as reflected by styles from horse and buggy to helicopter times.

Music for the show will be provided by the orchestral section of the Coast Guard Band.

The program will be climaxed by a war bond show and auction of "hard-to-get" items. Miss Bernice Parks, famous songstress who is currently presenting her Fashion Plate of Song in the Oval Room of the Copley Plaza; Johnny Mack, the dancing sensation of Beat the Band; and Harry Greene and his orchestra will provide the gala entertainment which will alternate with the bidding for nylon stockings, a Parker 51 fountain pen, an alarm clock, rubber bathing caps and dinner for two at the Copley Plaza as guests of Miss Parks plus a piece of her own costume jewelry. Members of the Belmont Women's Club will assist in selling stamps and taking the applications for war bonds, and buyers of war stamps will receive autographed pictures of Miss Parks.

On Wednesday another historic flight will be made by the helicopter when it takes off from the Charles River Country Club and delivers cigarettes given by Filene's to the veterans at the West Roxbury Veterans Hospital. Honored guests at the hospital will include Police Commissioner Thomas J. Sullivan; and Gen. William Blake, director of the West Roxbury Veterans' Hospital.

COUNTERFEIT GAS COUPONS FLOOD MASSACHUSETTS

Massachusetts is in the grip of the greatest counterfeit coupon menace to date according to the OPA and Cornelius J. Moynihan, regional enforcement chief, said this week that the fight against the black market in gasoline which the oil industry and OPA have been waging is being handicapped by motorists who insist on handing loose coupons to gas dealers.

He warned gasoline dealers to watch out for spurious A-10 coupons which, he said, have been brought to Massachusetts by a New York counterfeit gang and warned them to watch out for out-of-New England cars and coupons.

The counterfeit A-10 coupons are printed on white paper instead of the standard gray-blue paper of government issue.

The background design of lines and eagles is imperfect in many details and poorly drawn. The type is non-standard and poorly inked.

Moynihan said that the counterfeit A-10 coupons were copied from the New York region coupons. The words mileage ration are followed by the letter "b" denoting New York, whereas the New England region is designated by the letter "a".

Massachusetts gasoline dealers are pledged not to accept loose coupons. Moynihan said, "Many dealers report to us that unthinking motorists are asking them to violate the law," he said.

"They point out that better co-operation on the part of the public is needed to help them in their fight against the black market."

The regional enforcement chief said the A-10 counterfeit coupons were rushed to Massachusetts in an attempt by black market racketeers to sell them to vacationers. They are known as "vacation gas stamps."

Meekness, self-abnegation are characteristics
Of life lived without wilful moral deform,
Whose growth resembles a beautiful flower:
As men grow in grace so do they conform

Jackson by No Means Lacking in Education

John Quincy Adams declined to attend the ceremonies at Harvard college in 1823 when the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon Andrew Jackson, then President of the United States.

His reason, according to his diary, was that "as an affectionate child of our alma mater, I would not be present to witness her disgrace in conferring her highest literary honors upon a barbarian who could not write a sentence of grammar and hardly could spell his own name."

Adams' estimate of Jackson has been challenged by Dr. Archibald Henderson, who tells in the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer, the result of his exhaustive researches regarding Jackson's early life. He finds that Jackson, as a boy, received a better education than the average child of his station in life.

Later he attended Waxhaw academy. He continued his studies in that part of Carolina known then as New Acquisition. An account of the life of Rev. Francis Cummins, once a teacher at Bethel, S. C., shows that Jackson was one of his pupils and there is evidence that for a short time Jackson attended Queen's museum in Charlotte, N. C.

Wanted Winding

An absent minded man was a member of a geological survey expedition in Arizona.

One morning he found that his watch had stopped. It would not respond to shaking, and as the party was dependent upon it for observations the owner traveled thirty miles by wagon to a little town where there was a watch repairer.

The man opened the case, explored the works, closed the case, twisted the winder, and handed the watch back to its owner with the remark:

"That's a fine movement—one of the best I've seen. But you'll have to wind it."

Injury From Bullheads

Experienced fisherman pay little attention to the feelers, or "whiskers," about the mouth of a bullhead when they are handling this species of fish, for despite the belief of many persons to the contrary, there is no danger of injury from possible contact with these, according to old time fishermen. But anyone who knows anything about bullheads does take care to grasp a squirming, slippery specimen in a manner to avoid the first back fin and the two side fins or pectorals, for with these the bullhead is capable of inflicting a really painful wound.

"Man-Power" of a Nation

"Man-Power" of a nation really refers to the number of men available for service in time of war, says London Answers Magazine. We arrive at it by taking the total population and estimating how many of these are men between certain ages—say, eighteen and forty-five. From the figure this gives, we must deduct a certain proportion of weaklings of all kinds. The remainder left may then be called the "man-power" of the nation. Speaking broadly, a nation can put ten per cent of its population in the field. That is its man-power.

How Lightning Affects Trees

Although lightning frequently strikes trees, there is usually no damage to the trees or else the injury is limited to the path of the electrical discharge, occasionally stripping off a narrow piece of bark or splitting the trunk or limb. However, in rare cases the lightning may be accompanied by St. Elmo's fire which gives a flaming or brush discharge from every twig and leaf. In such cases the tree usually dies within a few days or, if the St. Elmo's fire should miss part of the tree, it may kill the greater part and several years may elapse before the remainder of the tree succumbs.

High Altitude Benefit

Eighty per cent of the population of Bolivia lives at an altitude of more than 10,000 feet, and the country is noted for the number of old people over 100 years.

Look! Listen! Live!

They were in a hurry—but they never got there.

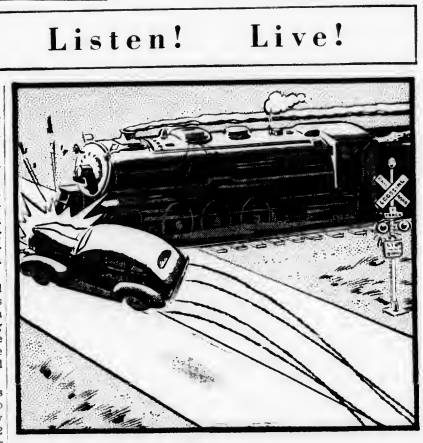

Tire marks on the highway showed that the car skidded about 100 feet through the night.

The car carried a man, his son and his daughter to their deaths. In disregard of warning signals, the car was driven onto a grade crossing and into the path of a freight train. The pilot and piping on the engine were damaged, requiring replacement and causing a delay of one hour.

This deadly accident, illustrated here, is typical of what happens too frequently when a car is driven at too great a speed for existing circumstances. Apparently the driver saw the crossing, saw the signals—but not in time, and skidded onto the tracks.

The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these accidents, which every day delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a big blow to the nation's wartime transportation effort.

Driver carelessness is the cause of almost all these grade crossing accidents, according to the Council. To help win the war—to save yourself and others needless suffering—the Council asks you to be sure the track is clear before you start across.

M. D. C. Preparing Transfer Papers for Town's Approval

In response to a request from town authorities the Metropolitan District Commission is preparing papers relinquishing all title to Manchester Field in favor of the Town of Winchester, so that the field may be used by the high school for athletic contests at which admission is charged.

For several years now there has been dissatisfaction expressed with the playing surface of the Shore road athletic field, and this past year complaints became so insistant that the School Committee discussed the matter at some length and finally secured the services of a soil expert to examine the playing surface and determine whether it can be put in shape for use as an athletic field.

It is understood that the expert believes that the surface can be made suitable for athletic purposes, but with the present shortage of labor the possibility of doing a major reconstruction job at Shore road seemed remote. As the field stands today it would be impossible to have it in good playing condition by fall. With this in view it became necessary to secure a place to play the high school's home games, and since there was some doubt as to whether under the existing statutes governing the place Manchester Field could be used on an admission charge basis, the school authorities wrote the Metropolitan District Commission, laying the case before its members and asking for permission to use the field.

Before taking this step the School Committee consulted Coach Henry T. Knowlton, asking his opinion of the Shore road field as a place to conduct athletic games. Coach Knowlton has long felt that the Shore road surface is not only unsuitable for games, but is actually unsafe for football, at least, pointing to the fact that virtually all major injuries which his boys have sustained during his coaching tenure have been directly traceable to the condition of the field. Visiting coaches have openly expressed themselves as dissatisfied with it.

The Metropolitan District Commission received the School Committee's request sympathetically and through its chairman, Eugene Hultman, expressed itself as willing to give up its title to Manchester Field in favor of the town.

Its legal experts are now preparing the necessary transfer and title papers, which when ready will be submitted to the Board of Selectmen for study by Town Counsel Addison Pike.

In the event everything is satisfactory, and there is no reason to doubt that it will not be, the papers will be signed by the Selectmen and the field returned to the sole ownership of the town.

The title to the field is understood to be somewhat complicated and there are certain provisions to be ironed out before the field can be used as an athletic plant. That all the authorities concerned are approaching the problem in a sympathetic co-operative way would indicate that the technicalities will be met in a manner satisfactory to all.

TRADERS' DAY WEDNESDAY

Housewives and others interested in the family shopping will do well to remember that this coming Wednesday, Aug. 2, is Trader's Day and that it will be extremely difficult, if not virtually, impossible to buy much of anything in the way of commodities or other household supplies in the old home town on that day.

Business houses in Winchester will be generally closed all day on Wednesday in accordance with the custom which goes back a long way to the old Winchester Board of Trade when the merchants held outings with watermelon and everything and the east side traders played the west side traders in baseball.

"Them, of course, wuz the happy days," and they are gone, very probably beyond recall, but Traders' Day still remains, and the stores close to give their harassed help a day to spend as they choose. Don't forget next Wednesday. Plan your shopping ahead so you won't need anything that day.

FOOT—HULL

Former Winchester Girl Wed in Red Wing, Minn.

A marriage of interest to Winchester took place at Christ Episcopal Church in Red Wing, Minn., on Saturday, July 15, when Miss Virginia Carvell Hull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Hull of Red Wing, formerly of this town, became the bride of Silas Buck Foot, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Foot, also of Red Wing. Rev. Monroe Baillie read the double ring service at 8:30 in an attractive setting of cylobium ferns, white gladiolas, palms and white tapers in branched candelabra.

Miss Hull was given in marriage by her father and had as her honor attendant her sister, Miss Elizabeth H. Hull of Red Wing. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Wellhelmina L. Foot, cox-swain, USCGR, sister of the bridegroom; and Miss Ruth E. Walker of Owatonna, Minn.

The bride wore a gown of traditional ivory satin, buttoned from neckline to hem and having a full skirt extending to form a long train. Her veil of nospoint was worn over a tulle and arranged with a Juliet cap of the same lace, and she carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis centered with white orchids.

All the bridal attendants wore identical dresses of heaven blue hammered satin, having fitted basques, bracelet-length sleeves and bouffant skirts of marquisette. They also wore tiny matching Juliet caps and carried cascade bouquets of blue delphinium with yellow daisies and brianeliff roses.

Lt. Richard A. Hull, Jr., USNR, of Norfolk, Va., brother of the bride was Mr. Foot's best man, and the usher corps included Howard B. Hull of Red Wing, Robert L. VanFossen of Minneapolis, Richard F. Pietsch of Crozet, Va. and Carl H. Holmburg of York, Pa.

Mrs. Hull, the bride's mother, wore jonquil yellow crepe with gold sequins, matching Juliet cap and a shoulder corsage of peach tuberous begonias. Mrs. Foot, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dusty rose and cream print with black accessories and her shoulder corsage was of shell pink and white tuberous begonias.

HAMILTONS MET IN ENGLAND

Father and Son Both in Quartermaster Corps

The Star received a welcome letter from our Shellie Hamilton this week in which the former linotype operator, now a lieutenant in the United States Army Quartermaster Corps, tells of meeting his father, Lt. Col. Robert M. Hamilton, USAQMC, during the week of July 9 somewhere in England.

"Shellie" has been overseas nine months now and when he left the States his dad was at Camp Edwards on the Cape, one of the top QM officers there. Since then, "Bob", former Winchester High and Lowell Textile athlete, has been at Camp Lee, and finally gotten overseas.

Shortly before the two got together Lt. Col. Hamilton wrote his son, stating that he was in England and though regulations forbade his giving his location, "Shellie" put two and two gether and started out to look his father up.

His deductions were good but his luck not so hot, for he found upon arriving at the place he figured he'd find his dad, that the latter had been shipped about 100 mile further along. One hundred miles? Pooh, nothing a-tall for a member of the old Tourists Club, so Shellie simply kept on going and eventually caught up with Hamilton there.

He found him out walking through some especially beautiful English country. The officer driving Shellie asked his father if he wanted a lift. Shellie carefully keeping his face averted. When Bob accepted the invitation and started to enter the car, his son opened the door for him!

Needless to state Bob was amazed and both he and his son, delighted Shellie writes his father looks very fit, though a bit overweight, which he assured the Colonel he would not be long in shedding.

Col. Hamilton is in charge of the salvage and reclamation for the area covered by his unit. His son is under the 9th Air Force Service Command. He writes that no one need worry about the Britishers making "Limey's" of the Yanks, because the making-over seems to be just the other way around. Everywhere the Yanks go the English kiddies hail them with "Any gum, chum?"

COMPLETED 25 MISSIONS

Lt. Ralph T. Collander, USAAF, pilot, and well known Winchester boy has completed 25 missions over Germany and German occupied Europe during the past two months. He wears the air medal, three oak leaf clusters and the E. T. O. ribbon with two silver stars, one for distinguished flying and the other for the part he played in the combat flying during the invasion of France on D-Day.

Lt. Collioander has met plenty of enemy opposition and during one mission had an engine shot out over Germany. When he reached his base in England his bomber was punctured with as many holes as you would find in a tea cent strainer.

Commended for his operational flying, a citation which he received, says in part: "For meritorious achievement in accomplishing with distinction several aerial operational missions over enemy occupied Continental Europe. The courage, coolness and skill displayed by Lt. Ralph T. Collander, in the face of determined opposition, materially aided these missions. His actions reflect great credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States."

Lt. Colliander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Colliander of 18 Forest street, will be 21 years old on Sunday, July 30. He graduated from Winchester High School in the class of 1940, enlisted Oct. 5, 1942, and went overseas in April of this year, making his first mission May 22. He married the former Helen Swymer of this town during last December.

HARRY TUFTS WINN

Harry Tufts Winn, a member of the Winchester firm of James H. Winn's Sons, watch-band manufacturers, and former Assessor, died Sunday morning, July 23, at his home, 17 Swan road, after a two years' illness.

Mr. Winn was the son of James H. and Julia A. (Cummings) Winn. He was born in Winchester July 24, 1877, on the birthday of his father, and grew up in town, attending the local schools and graduating from Winchester High School.

Although he had prepared to enter Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Mr. Winn went instead directly from high school into the watch-band manufacturing business which his father had founded with Bardwell A. Goodell in Waltham in 1868 and which after a few years in Waltham moved to Winchester.

After the death of his father Mr. Winn was associated in a partnership with his brothers, Rev. Arthur L. Winn, and the late Frank Winn, in conducting the business, continuing his connection with the firm until his death, although he had been forced by illness to retire from active participation in its affairs a few years ago.

Aside from his business connections, Mr. Winn was especially well known in town as a member and long-time chairman of the Board of Assessors. From 1921 until 1942 he was a member of the board, serving as chairman from 1924 to 1938. He had been a town meeting member from 1929 to 1942. Flags on the Common and Town buildings were displayed at half-staff in his honor.

Mr Winn was a Mason, a member of William Parkman Lodge and of Winchester Royal Arch Chapter. He was a charter member and past president of the Winchester Rotary Club, and actively identified with the Unitarian Society, which he had served for many years as deacon and of which he was deacon emeritus at the time of his death.

He was a former director of the Winchester Trust Company and a life member and for many years active in the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics Association of Boston. He was active in civic affairs, formerly for many years leading the Salvation Army drive as well as participating in other similar affairs of a community nature.

Mr Winn was twice married. On June 12, 1900, he married Edith May Blank, who died June 18, 1901. On Sept. 26, 1903, he married Flora Alice Stover, who survives with two daughters, Mrs. Edward L. Newhall and Mrs. Ernest B. Dade, both of Winchester; a brother, Rev. Arthur L. Winn of this town; two sisters, Mrs. George H. Lochman of Winchester and Mrs. Francis Smith of Wakefield; and three grandchildren Nancy and Patricia Newhall, and Jason Dade.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. Henry E. Hodge of Melrose, former pastor of the First Baptist Church in this town, officiating assisted by the interim pastor, Rev. Clark T. Brownell. Favorite selections were played by Hope Wright, violinist and Helen Bedford, harpist. Members of the Deacons' Board of the First Baptist Church, Lewis Foster, Fred S. Emery, Martin S. Swanson and Leonard O. Waters acted as honorary bearers. A large number of employees of the Watch Band Company attended the services, with many town officers and delegations from the Masonic Bodies and Rotary Club.

Interment was in the family lot at Wildwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Oscar B. Vossler, the former Olga E. Rolli, of 189 Washington street, has been notified by the War Department that her husband, Sgt. Oscar B. Vossler, was killed in action on June 1. According to a letter received from the young soldier's "buddy", Sgt. Vossler was shot by a German sniper during the push for Rome while serving with the 36th United States Infantry.

Sgt. Vossler enlisted in the Army some time ago and had been considered a very good soldier despite the fact that he was only 21 years old. He came originally from San Antonio, Texas, and besides his wife, leaves his parents and a sister in Texas. His wife is at present with his mother in San Antonio. Sgt. Vossler and Miss Rolli were married at Camp during October of 1942.

YOUNG MARKSMEN INTERRUPTED

Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock an excited gardener called from Cross street reported that boys were shooting a rifle altogether too near the spot where she was working for comfort.

Officer William E. Cassidy went to investigate, but unfortunately arrived on the wrong side of the rivers to pick up the young marksmen who were shooting from the rear of the Puffer property.

The youths took to their heels at the approach of the officer, but a bit of reconnaissance in the bushes brought their guns to light and it developed that they were firing, not air guns, but .22 caliber rifles, one of which was a vicious acting repeater.

The rifles were taken to Headquarters and Officer Cassidy, after a bit of scouting around talked with a 17 year old boy who admitted that he and a 19 year old companion had been doing the shooting. What the next step will be remains to be seen, but it is fortunate that the slugs from the rifles went over the heads of the people working in the garden.

ROTARY MEETING

The regular summer meeting of the Winchester Rotary Club was held yesterday with the new president, Harry Bigelow, wielding the gavel. At the stroke of the bell, Ralph Bonnell led a wild period of singing, accompanied by Joe Folsom at the piano.

CAMP FELLSLAND

Camp Fellsland, the local Boy Scout camp situated in Amesbury, is under full swing with a capacity group. As a matter of fact, word has been received from the Scout office that applications have been turned away for quite some time for a three week period and at present only a few vacancies exist in the next to the last week and the last week, namely the second and third weeks of August.

The camp is once again under the direction of Mr. Edward W. Nelson, the local Scout executive, serving as the camp director for the 10th consecutive year. Mr. Francis X. Mac-Feeley, local field executive, is serving as program director, and assistant camp director. Mrs. Della Fahey, Medford, has returned again this year as cook and it goes without saying that the boys are being well fed as they were last season. Mrs. Anna Gilson, former nurse of the Medford School system, has returned again and the medical and of the camp program is well handled. Mr. Clayton Oberg who was waterfront director last season is also among those who have returned. In addition to these and some 18 other counsellors the camp was very happy to have Mr. Earl Doyle, who for many years was in charge of advancement, return to camp this summer. Mr. Doyle was only able to stay for the first two weeks of camp, however, and everyone was sorry that he had to leave, but as he is engaged in important war work it was natural that he could not get away for a longer period of time.

Bud Dill of Stoneham is in charge of athletics and up to the present time the ball team has won three and lost one game. The swimming team under Mr. Oberg has won two swimming meets and the basketball team has broken even in their games to date. Games are being conducted weekly against both Camp Powow, across the river, and Camp Beaucrest on the other side of Amesbury.

Many of the boys are having their first experience of doing outdoor cookery as once or twice a week everyone in camp has a hand in preparing a meal for themselves in a group outdoors.

An additional flush toilet is now an added part of the equipment at camp and plans are now getting under way for the reception of a national representative from the National Boy Scout engineering service to come into the camp the first part of August to make a survey of the complete equipment of the camp. It is understood that a number of individuals are keenly interested in having a new recreation hall built and if the data is sustained by this national engineering representative there is a possibility that work will get under way immediately to make plans for a recreation hall for the following year.

The advancement program is going ahead very strongly with a great majority of the boys advancing in rank while they are staying at camp. This has been due to a great extent to the efforts of Mr. Doyle and he has been ably assisted by Paul Fahey, who is also editing the camp paper.

The camp paper is put out weekly comprising some six to eight pages of mimeographed camp news.

Camp is scheduled to close on Aug. 21

The Police were called early Sunday morning to take to the hospital a woman who sustained a bad cut over her left eye when she fell while entering the bathroom of the house. Dr. Philip J. McManus had to take four stitches to close the wound, after which the woman was taken home by the Police

RED CROSS NOTES

The Winchester Chapter of the Red Cross, together with the co-operation and support of the Winchester Fortnightly, sponsored an outdoor picnic for 50 patients of the Veterans Hospital at Bedford on Wednesday, July 19, starting at 4 p. m.

Sandwiches of the popular brand together with the fixings, coffee, ice cream and cake was served after which games were participated in.

Seven representatives of the local Chapter acted as hostesses and the apparent pleasure and appreciation of the patients proved that the undertaking was a great success.

At the urgent suggestion of the field director of the new Government Boston Area Station Hospital in Waltham the local Red Cross Chapter financed and constructed 11 pair of very attractive draperies for one of the mess halls of the hospital and on Friday, July 21, four local representatives spent the entire day adding the final touches to their artistic hanging.

The hospital was officially taken over by the Government on Saturday the 22nd and was open for the inspection of the public on Sunday, the 23rd.

EXHIBITION OF HELICOPTER DELAYED

Wm. Filene's Sons Company was notified last Sunday that the Helicopter rotor blades were damaged while training a new pilot at the factory and could not be replaced in time for the scheduled showing in Cambridge and Belmont on Tuesday.

This information, of course, came after the Winchester Star was printed so that we were unable to correct this notice excepting through advertisements in the Boston newspapers.

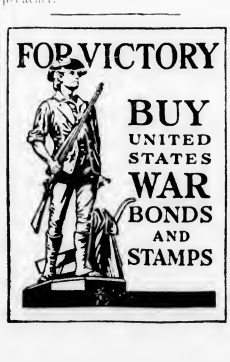

Filene's has been assured that as soon as new rotor blades have been installed, the exhibition program here will be carried out as planned.

PARTICIPATED IN TEMPLE SERVICE

Three residents of Winchester participated in last Sunday's services of morning worship, held under the auspices of the Ocean Park Assembly in the Temple at Ocean Park, Me.

Miss Dorothy G. Swain, who is also director of Camp Ataloa, read the scripture lesson, and Mrs. Lillian Whitman sang the duet arrangement of "The Lord Is My Shepherd" by Smart with Mrs. Clara Taylor of Lawrence.

Cecil Pride directed the Ocean Park Chorus in the singing of the anthem, "Lord of Heaven" by Rossi. Rev. Harold John Ockenga, D. D., of Park Street Church, Boston, was the preacher.

WAR PARENTS

The meeting of Winchester Chapter, No. 16, War Parents of America, Inc., held at the Winchester Public Library Hall on July 19 was well attended and several new members were added to the group.

Mr. Richard B. Cunningham, of the State Aid and Pensions Board, was the speaker of the evening. His talk was informative, interesting and covered a wide field. The chapter is looking forward to hearing him again at a later date.

Mr. William Hodge presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, Mr. George A. Saltmarsh, who was ill. Mr. Hodge reported having had a very interesting conference on the morning of July 19 with Commander Tague, head of the Civil Readjustment Office for honorably discharged Navy men. The chief function of this office is to endeavor to get the veterans of World War II started off in the right direction in civil life, advising them along the lines best suited to the individual concerned. It also assists the boys in deciding whether to continue their education or to enter an occupation for which they seem best fitted.

Similar offices have been opened for other branches of the service, as follows:

Coast Guard: Lt. Comdr. Payne, 10 Broad street.

Army: Personal Affairs Service, Major Sherman, 80S Commonwealth avenue, all in Boston.

Mr. Edwin Whittemore, a local war parent, also spoke on the advantages of organizing in the interest of the boys and girls in the service and cited the work being done by the local Canteen Committee.

DON'TS TO OBSERVE WHEN YOU PRESERVE

Don't can wilted, overripe or partly spoiled food . . it won't keep.

Don't prepare more than your canner will hold. Food spoils if it stands around.

Don't pack too tightly . . . especially corn and greens. Tightly packed jars heat through too slowly.

Don't lose track of time . . . follow reliable time-tables to the minute for successful canning.

Don't stand hot jars on their heads . . . you may break the seal.

Lt. Farrell is a graduate of Winchester High School, class of 1943, and a former schoolboy athlete, having been a member of the varsity football and basketball teams. Coming to Winchester from the West, he had played considerable basketball and as center was one of the key men on the local team that won an invitation to compete in the Interscholastic tourney at Tufts in 1943. He entered the service shortly after his graduation.

"DOC" LOST HIS TENDER

Robert F. "Bob" Guild of Cabot street was the guest last week of Dr. Richard W. Sheehy at the latter's summer home on Buzzard's Bay. "Doc" took his guest for a spin in his sailboat, during the course of which the pair had a good swim in the bay.

Upon returning to where they had left their tender they found it had drifted away and they had to get ashore as best they could.

The "Doc" finally found out that the Coast Guard had picked up the missing tender half a mile away and the Sheehys and Mr. Guild drove over to get it. Naturally "Bob", an old Stone School and Harvard freshman oarsman, rowed the boat back, and we understand arrived as soon as his hosts could make it overland.

STATE NEWS GUARD

The 16th Company, 23rd Infantry, M. S. G., returned to its home station in Winchester last Saturday afternoon after spending a week at Camp Chase Military Reservation, South Hingham. The Company, while in camp, served in Provisional Company, No. 1 which was composed of men from Arlington, Somerville and Winchester. Except for a few blisters produced by new army shoes which were issued just before entraining for camp, no ill effects were felt in the change from civilian to soldier, and every man returned glad that he had participated even though in many cases it meant giving up their vacation.

One of the things that made this reporter feel good was the number of war veterans (even from World War II) who are devoting some of their time to the defense of their country by belonging to the State Guard.

In one of the military problems the officers of both the Woburn and Winchester Companies combined to set up a machine gun nest, which was afterward declared to be one of the best ever thrown together.

Only one long hike was taken, a total of nine miles at the end of which all who wanted to had a swell dip in the ocean. (At this point we should of course mention the hike started at 3:30 a. m.)

We believe the week spent in camp was well worth the time and know that we are better soldiers for having gone.

The company is now open for additional enlistments, and any man, between 17 and 50, who is interested should stop in and make the acquaintance of the company. Drills are held Wednesday evening in the Town Hall and there are opportunities for advancement.

Following is the summary:

R. H. Bonnell	79	68
H. H. Ford	79	73

CORRECTION

The article appearing in last week's Star concerning the award of the Purple Heart Medal and Citation to Rocco DeTeso for wounds received while fighting with the U. S. Combat Infantry during the Italian Campaign was incorrect in that the name should have been Pvt. Dante E. DeTeso. The decorated soldier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore DeTeso of Olive street, who have already received the handsome medal. The Star regrets the error on names and any confusion it may have caused.

KENDRICK OVERSEAS

Charles N. "Bus" Kendrick, former Winchester High and Millionaires star pitcher, now serving with the AAF Eighth Fighter Command somewhere in England, he been promoted from private to private, first class.

"Bus" is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Kendrick of Holton street and before entering the service was assistant trainer with the Boston Braves baseball team. Overseas he is serving as a parachute rigger and repair man with the highest scoring P-47 Thunderbolt outfit in Europe.

ON MISSIONS BEHIND GERMAN LINES

Second Lt. Whitelaw Wright, Jr. of this town has been flying his twin-engined P-38 Lightning fighter on high-level bombing missions behind the German lines.

The 8th Fighter Command group with which the fighter pilot flies was the first operational P-38 group in England, and was the first American unit to make a combat flight over Berlin. Now led by Col. George T. Crowell of Chicago, Ill., it is one of the first groups to employ the new technique of precision bombing.

Lt. Wright is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Wright, 14 Fletcher street, and is a graduate of Winchester High School. He also was a former student at Tufts College, where he studied chemical engineering.

Before coming into the AAF he was a tool and die maker for the General Electric Company. He began his cadet training in January of 1943 and was commissioned at Williams Field, Arizona, Nov. 3, 1943.

MET DURING FRENCH INVASION

Sgt. Patsy Guarino, son of Mrs. Carmella and the late Ralph Guarino of 11 Irving street, has written home that he met a fellow townsman during the invasion of France in Capt. William D. Barone, USA Medical Corps, attached to the Air Forces. Needless to say the pair were delighted to meet.

Sgt. Guarino, who is in the Corps of Engineers, was proud to have Co. Barone assure him that he was the first Winchester boy to land in France on D-Day. He has been in service for the past two years, previously having been employed at the Winchester Theater. His brother, Pfc. Dominick Guarino, QMC, Baking Co., is now home on furlough after three years service in the Canal Zone.

We are glad to see the Town taking steps to take over control of Manchester Field. Ever since the field was taxed over to the State it has been a pain in the neck to Winchester. Who ever originated the bright idea of giving it to the State we never could find out, but it certainly never added anything to Winchester's enjoyment of the playground. Whether the field is fenced in or not is something Winchester can decide, but the field will always be open to Winchester for its enjoyment, however it decides to operate it.

If it were not so typical of New Dealism, the latest controversy echoing from the New Deal-Democratic Convention would be absurd. As it is, it is quite in keeping with the incident of the convention's attempt to neutralize the accredited Texas delegates who were opposed to the fourth nomination of our Great Soldier Ruler and its recognition of a self-appointed group of so-called delegates who would have Roosevelt or nobody. That incident was typical also of the present union strikes—we will get what we want anyway, war or no war. The telegram incident would be absurd in every respect if it were not for its petty trimmings. Our Great Soldier Ruler makes a law forbidding congratulatory telegrams. So that when Wendell Willkie, that stalwart Republican or New Dealer, we don't know which, desired to congratulate the Republican nominee Tom Dewey, he was properly squelched. No congratulatory telegrams allowed. But when our Great Soldier Ruler sends a similar telegram to his choice for the New Deal Vice-Presidency, it goes through with acclaim. The incident is picayune, but it is proper attention to these little details which holds the New Deal grip on the nation. "If the President had the authority to authorize the issuance of the ban, he has the authority to modify, alter or rescind it," Egan said in a statement. Sure—even to you and I. That's where our security lies.

STEP IN THE WRONG DIRECTION

To the Editor of the Star:

An article appearing in your issue of July 21 states that the Selectmen were negotiating with the Metropolitan District Commission to obtain releases on Manchester Field so that it could be fenced and made usuable for games and other purposes to which admissions may be charged, seems to be a step in the wrong direction for town betterment and purposes for which the field was intended. Such a move would involve additional expense and responsibilities on the Town and accomplish no purpose excepting to commercialize the field for a few weeks in spring and fall, during the high school games.

We already have the grounds on Shore road which have been fitted for all such purposes and should be used without prejudice.

Who wants to pass through our town over rail or Parkway and see an unsightly fence surrounding one of our beauty spots, 12 months in the year?

WANT WINCHESTER GIRLS FOR PIN-UPS

July 19, 1944

To the Editor of the Star:

Being tent leader in a group in North Africa for 19 months, I have noticed that none of the boys in the tent have any "Pin-up Girls." Just recently a new fellow moved into our tent who hails from Winchester, whose name for obvious reasons, we will withhold. We had the opportunity of reading your June 9 issue of the Winchester Star, and sincerely believe it to be a typical home town paper.

Getting back to pin-ups. We wonder whether Barbara Smith would consent to be the favorite pin-up of Sgt. Ray Clark. For my choice I'd like Ruth Tapley, and would enjoy hearing from them.

We hope we're not being too forward in writing this letter to you, but sure would appreciate an answer from the young ladies.

Sincerely,
Ray and Jim

ABSENTEE VOTING FOR PERSONS IN SERVICE

To the Editor of the Star:

Men and women serving in the Armed Forces, Merchant Marine, or persons serving in the American Red Cross, Society of Friends, the Women's Auxiliary Service Pilots or the United Service Organizations and attached to and serving with the Armed Forces, may vote at the Presidential and State Election on Nov. 7, by using an Absent Voting Ballot, which may be obtained from the Town Clerk.

If a person is in any of above named services or is a veteran of World War 2 and will be 21 years of age on Nov. 7, 1944, is a citizen of the United States and has been a legal resident of Massachusetts for at least one year and a legal resident of Winchester for at least six months prior to Nov. 7, 1944, he may have a complete State Ballot and vote for President and Vice President, Members of Congress, Governor and all other state and county officials. Persons serving in the Armed Forces and any of the services named in the preceding paragraph continue to retain their legal residence in the city or town which they held prior to entry into the Armed Forces.

The person in service may make direct application for an Absent Voting Ballot by a post card that is being furnished by the Army and Navy authorities or by sending a request to the Town Clerk giving the name, home address and the address where the ballot is to be mailed. Also a relative, who is a registered voter may go to the Town Clerk and register a person in service who is not a registered voter and then make application for the Absent Voting Ballot.

Absent Voting Ballots are expected to be ready for distribution the middle of August.

It is also possible for persons in the service, who are already registered voters to have their relatives make application to the Town Clerk for their Absent Voting Ballots.

Applications for registration and Absent Voting Ballots should be made immediately so that our service men and women will be sure to receive their ballots in sufficient time to get them back to Winchester before the polls close on election day.

AN ENEMY IN OUR MIDST

Ragweed we have with us every summer. Its inconspicuous green flowers begin to bloom in August and from then until frost its pollen is the most widespread cause of hayfever, from which in many cases the very serious disease of asthma develops. Thousands of men have been rejected by the Army and Navy because of hayfever, and by it countless workhours are lost to industry and to war production. There are 3,000,000 chronic cases of this distressing disease in the United States and over 20,000 new sufferers each season. Thus a simple weed is responsible for great economic and war work loss to our nation.

The United States is more afflicted with it than other parts of the world. It thrives particularly in a broad belt from the Atlantic coast to the Rocky Mountains. Because the pollen is carried hundreds of miles by wind we cannot be wholly rid of it, but it is proved that any community which systematically destroys the plants before they bloom contributes definite relief to the many susceptible persons living in the vicinity. The Conservation Division of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs urges all Massachusetts cities and towns to do everything possible to eradicate this menacing pest.

This year, with labor shortage resulting in neglected land in old gardens and along highways, noxious weeds will prevail unless we all do our share in destroying them. The Winchester Highway Department stands ready to do all it can to help but has only one man available for work this season. Now is the time to look over your land and pull or cut down all ragweed. Destroying at this stage of its growth prevents both the pollen threat for this year and the development of seed for next year.

FRENCH INVASION REGION, CAEN

Caen, Norman port city wrested from the Germans in a British-Canadian drive, is situated on the Orne River, about 10 miles from the river's outlet into the Bay of the Seine. Caen has owed its importance as a port to a canal linking the city to the bay, says the National Geographic Society. In general, the countryside is low and flat.

Railways and roads connect Caen with Cherbourg, on the north coast of the Normandy Peninsula, and with interior places in the path of the Allied forces. Prewar population was more than 52,000.

Meadows Yield to Industry

Farming and stock raising have been traditional occupations in the rural area. Grain, sugar beets, dairy produce, pigs and poultry moved regularly to market. Sales of cattle and horses boosted farm incomes.

Regional iron ore deposits have been worked since Roman times. Large scale development was put on a modern footing by German interests. Pig iron was first exported in 1919. Blast furnaces, coal dumps and slag heaps sprouted in the broad meadows of the Orne.

For centuries the fortunes of this Norman town were ruled by the ups and downs of the Orne. Silt-clogged and blocked by sand spits, the once navigable river trickled sluggishly to the coast. A canal began in 1858 by-passes the river and connects Caen with the coastal port of Ouistreham.

Once Caen was independent of the mud-laden Orne it resumed the export of agricultural products, dammed the river to make a basin for canal traffic, improved its harbor facilities to accommodate ore boats bound for England and the Netherlands.

A Royal Civic Booster

Trade with England was an old Caen custom, wine and ore went across the Channel, wool came back. Textiles ranked high among the city's industries, with linens and velvets local specialties. The so-called Caen stone quarried near by was shipped in considerable quantities to England for use by builders.

Caen's beginnings are obscure. It was a sizable town in 912 when it was ceded to the Normans by Charles the Simple. William the Norman, the Conqueror to be, and his queen lived in Caen, built two great abbeys, and turned the light of history on the town. The ancient university helped to give it the title, the Norman Athens.

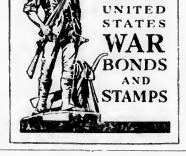

Invasion and war are old stories to the citizens. The English came in 1346 under Edward III and again in 1417 under Henry V. Religious wars brought misfortune. The French Revolution converted the city into a stronghold of the Girondins. From Caen Charlotte Corday set out to assassinate Marat. Local history carries a fashion note. Beau Brummel lived the last ten years of his life in Caen and died there in a lunatic asylum.

I Lost the Rubber But I Won a Prize!

WHEN I APOLOGIZED for trumping my partner's ace, I confessed that I was really thinking of the lovely house John and I had just looked at. I told the girls how much we wanted to buy it, but that we felt we simply couldn't afford to in these times.

Jane, my partner, came right back with, "Well, Mary, if that's your problem why don't you finance the house the 'rent-like' payment way?"

"Rent-like payment way?" I asked.

"Of course, you repay your loan monthly and your payments are figured to fit your income. It's a grand way and you'd be amazed how easily that home can be yours when you finance through . . . .

LYCK, LAKESIDE TOWN OF EAST PRUSSIA

Lyck, one of the first East Prussian towns likely to be entered by advancing Russian forces, lies ten miles inside German territory. A swampy area separates Lyck from the border. The main highway and railroad leading from Bialystok, Poland, traverses a virtual causeway to the town, says the National Geographic Society. This main route extends 100 miles farther northwest to the Baltic coast city of Konigsberg, capital of East Prussia. Lyck has ranked as the principal town in the southeast of Masurian lake region, with a prewar population of 16,500. It is a local highway and railroad center.

Prisoners Housed in Castle

Near the Polish town of Osowiec the road from Bialystok to Lyck crosses the Biebrza, a river of no great width but normally about 12 feet deep. It has proved a triple threat to advancing armies as it flows through a swampy valley with broad marshlands bordering both sides. Osowiec's position accordingly had been heavily fortified as a local Gibraltar.

The last Polish town on the highway before entering East Prussia is Grajewo, where Poland's highway bordering the frontier crosses the Bialystok-Lyck road, which beyond the border passes through the Prussian towns of Prostken and Neuendorf, swings east around Lake Lyck, and reaches the town of Lyck toward the northern end of the lake.

On an island in Lake Lyck the Crusading Order of the Teutonic Knights built a castle in the latter half of the 13th century. The castle was later converted into a prison and has remained such in modern times.

GHQ For Smugglers

Masuria is noted for its many lakes, forest-rimmed, island-studded. Thirty years ago, during the first World War the lakes proved the undoing of Russian forces. They were well known to Von Hindenburg, a native of East Prussia recaleld to active service to repulse the invaders. Partly because of these lakes and Lyck's frontier position, the town was long headquarters for an active band of smugglers.

The region is not lowland but a plateau whose swamps are in many cases drying lakes. Lyck has an elevation of 445 feet above sea level, and other towns in this Masurian region have even higher altitudes.

Lyck's waterfront follows the irregular shore line of the lake. The town is made up mostly of low buildings, many set amid trees.

For its size Lyck has had varied industries: machine factories, tanneries, brick yards, saw mills, and flour mills. It was an active market in grain and cattle.

Along with other towns in its lake-spotted area, Lyck had a good tourist trade in peacetime, as a center for Masurian tours. Steamer service covered the larger lakes of the district.

'Ride on a Rail' Punishment

One form of disciplinary punishment for soldiers in the early days consisted of sentencing them to ride what the men called the wooden horse. The sentence came from the commander and the men carried it out. They made the offender straddle a bent sapling and then tossed and jolted him until he was quite willing to say "uncle" to each man in the company—or say whatever it was they said in those days

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and in all of its branches, on Sunday, July 30, will be Love.

The Golden Text, Let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord which exercise lovingkindness, judgment, and right, in the earth: for in these things I delight, saith the Lord is from Jeremiah 9:24. Other Bible citations include And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him (1 John 4:16).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy. The divine Science taught in the original language of the Bible came through inspiration, and needs inspiration to be understood. A misplaced word changes the sense and misstates the Science of the Scriptures, as, for instance, to name Love as merely an attribute of God; but we can by special and proper capitalization speak of the love of Love, meaning by that what the beloved disciple meant in one of his epistles, when he said, God is love (p. 319).

PACIFIC, JAPAN, VOLCANO ISLANDS

The first land based bombing of Iwo Jima, in Japan's Volcano Islands, has brought some man-made fireworks to a spot where nature usually puts on the show.

Iwo Jima, or Naka Iwo, only 800 miles south of Tokyo, is the central member of the Volcano group of three islands, says the National Geographic Society. The cluster was named for volcanoes on Iwo Jima, and is famous among sailors for the strange and spectacular phenomena that occur in its neighborhood.

Disappearing Islands

From submerged volcanoes thereabouts mud and ashes are sometimes thrown high into the air, to the accompaniment of sulphur smell and ominous rumblings. There is an active undersea volcano just off the smoking and sulphurous north shore of Iwo Jima.

Islands appear and disappear mysteriously in this region. One Jack-in-the box bit of land that rose suddenly above the surface in 1904 was two and a half miles around. Within a couple of years, however, it had gone back where it came from.

The three Volcano Islands are all small. Iwo Jima, the largest is about five miles long, from southwest to northwest. With its big bulge in the north and tapering southern point, it resembles on the map a miniature continent of South America. Normally, fishing boats furnish transportation between the islands, and steamer trips were made to Iwo Jima on an average of once a month. Ships may anchor on the northwest and southeast sides of the island, the choice depending on the direction of the winds.

Iwo Jima (also called Sulphur Island) is generally barren and rocky, with only rain water for its drinking supply. An extinct volcanic cone rises in the southern tip to a height of well over 500 feet. Reefs and ledges, as well as a strong surf, make shipping dangerous along much of the Iwo Jima shore. In places there are steep cliffs.

Iwo Jima means Rock Island in Japanese. The alternative name Naka Iwo is translated as Middle or In-Between Rock, a practical description of its position between the other two islands, North Rock and South Rock. In spite of the physical disadvantage of life on this island, it had a population some time before the war of nearly 1000. The inhabitants of all three islands were reported to number about 1200.

SANDRA, SEEING EYE DOG

Sandra, a faithful "seeing eye" dog of the boxer variety, who guides her master to and from his war production job every day, today proudly wears the Army-Navy E for excellence pin.

The master, Lyle T. Hammond, 65 Grove street, Waltham, and Sandra, work at Raytheon Manufacturing Co., Waltham and follow employees of Mr. Hammond decided this week that it was high time Sandra received her her due recognition.

So they decided that award of an E pin would be appropriate and the presentation was made with fitting ceremony.

Mr. Hammond, who at one time was active in the advertising game, obtained Sandra at Morristown, N. J., several years ago. He took the special course at Morristown and is a familiar figure in Waltham, striding fearlessly and confidently across streets and along sidewalks, guided by the competent Sandra.

Mr. Hammond is a former president of the Waltham High Alumni Association and of the Guiding Light Club, an organization for blind persons. He has been employed at Raytheon for approximately nine months.

BIALYSTOK FACTORIES DIM EARLY GLAMOR OF ROYALTY

Bialystok, a Polish textile center of 91,000 residents before the war, is set amid wooded hills on the Russian pathway to East Prussia, says the National Geographic Society. It is 50 miles from the Prussian border, 110 miles northeast of Warsaw.

Bialystok's textile industry was the largest in Poland, except for that of Lodz. It employed thousands of workers in its cotton, wool and silk mills. Before the war, textiles made up Poland's largest export item with cotton goods leading.

Modern Bialystok has been described as a depressing industrial city, whereas before the first World War the Russian city was a quaint overgrown village of about 75,000 inhabitants, mostly Jewish. It was then a Russian army headquarters, strongly garrisoned.

Wrecked by Germans

Bialystok had fallen to the share of Prussia in the partition of 1795, and was ceded by Napoleon to Russia by the treaty of Tilsit in 1807. The city fell to the Germans in August, 1915, and before they withdrew they shipped most of the machinery to Germany and destroyed the mills. Bialystok had been Polish since 1919.

It was under the tsars that Bialystok had its share of glamor. Twenty-five years ago many of the buildings were low white structures which permitted the clock tower of the city hall to rise well above their tiled roofs, and to look down on the cobble-stoned market place where the farmers displayed their produce on stands set up in the open.

Symbol of the city's grandeur was the palatial residence of counts of Braniski, who long owned the city. The palace was later taken over by the municipality. Bialystok was often visited by the tsars. The large hotel built by French and English capital is today a rather drab memorial to the night life, made gay by brilliant Russian uniforms that once stirred the city.

Even then the Russian city had its factories, turning out carpets, blankets, leather goods, hats, soap and machinery. It was one of the early railway centers of this area, with direct rail connection with the Baltic port of Konigsberg, East Prussia. It was called the Versailles of Poland because of its municipal palace and park.

Bialystok was the Russian gateway to Bialowieza forest where the tsars and their favorites often came to hunt, as had the kings of Poland centuries before. It is one of the large forests of Europe, covering 370,000 acres, a part of which is now a national park. Here in primeval forests the rulers of society could hunt the European bison, bears, wild boars, wolves, lynx and deer.

BREST LITOVSK, FORTRESS ON ROAD TO WARSAW

Brest Litovsk, Poland's fortress-city famed in both ancient and modern times, lies in the path of the rapidly advancing Russian armies. In the Polish language the city's full name is Brzese nad Bugiem, indicating its location on the Bug River, says the National Geographic Society.

The city lies 118 miles east of Warsaw, with the Pripet Marshes, one of Poland's natural regions of defense for her eastern border, less than 30 miles to the east. The growth of the city as a river and valley distributing point has been due chiefly to its favorable location at the junction of the Muchawiec and Bug Rivers, and also to its main line railway connections with such cities as Moscow, Minsk, Wilno, Warsaw, and with sections of East Prussia. Its population before the second World War was about 50,000.

In the period leading up to the first World War the Russians fortified Brest Litovsk heavily and considered it impregnable but in 1915 it fell into the hands of the Germans who subsequently made it the headquarters for their eastern army. It was in Brest Litovsk in 1918 that Germany and Russia signed the peace treaty which removed Russia from the war.

Brest Litovsk has long known the terror of invading armies, the fire of incendiary torches and the pillaging of her treasures. In the early centuries it served as a bulwark against fierce Tatar hordes, barbaric Turks, and covetous Teutonic knights of the 14th century.

Before 1939, Brest Litovsk carried on a profitable trade in grains, timber, flax, hides, potatoes and sugar beets. The first World War caused such devastation that as late as 1926 a monumental railway station was one of the few important buildings in the city. For years a large refugee population lived in caves and improvised huts. Before the outbreak of the second World War, however, modern buildings had been erected.

SAGAS OF THE SKIES

by R. C. Oertel

Manager of Aviation Division Colonial Esso Marketers

NOT only does Democracy shed blood and tears in her fight for the Four Freedoms; not only is she determined that her high standards of thought, word and deed shall not perish, but Democracy also displays the desire and will to perform those little, kindly, human acts characteristic of her principles. The following simple tale furnishes a life-sized picture of Democracy at work.

Mrs. Jennie Anderson of Huntington Station, Long Island, New York, was not a young woman. She possessed neither specialized talent nor skill, but the urge to do her bit towards hastening the return of peace would not be denied, and she took a job in a war plant. Recently, however, age and ill health forced her reluctantly to give it up but she felt very badly about the matter.

Then a friend, serving as a civilian technical representative with a fighter division, heard of the situation and related it to the pilots of the United States Fifteenth Air Force fighter squadron . . . with results that can well be imagined.

Such an opportunity would not go unchallenged. Mrs. Anderson now has an active and deadly namesake adequately competing with Democracy's foes, for in her honor Lieutenant William Carswell of Pearl Harbor, Mex., named his Thunderbolt "JENNY A."

EUROPE, SOVIET UNION, OSTROV

Ostrov, almost engulfed by advancing Soviet forces after German occupation since 1941, is situated on the Velikaya River about 32 air miles south of Lake Peipus, water mark between Estonia and Russia.

Position of the town in Russia, about 10 miles east of the Latvian frontier, gave it an early importance as an outpost of the Pskov Republic, of which it was a part, says the National Geographic Society. Political changes ended the independence of the republic in the 16th century and joined it to the principality of Moscow. Under this arrangement, Ostrov long served as a western bastion of the principality. The walls of the old fortress were one of the sights pointed out to visitors.

Population before the present war was about 7300. Flax was grown in large quantities in the countryside, and was the town's chief source of trade and income.

In general, the ground around the site is low and flat. Railways link Ostrov to Pskov, market and industrial city 32 miles to the north; to Leningrad, Russian port on the Gulf of Finland, 190 miles to the northeast; to Riga, Latvian port, 160 miles to the west; and to Wilno (Vilna) Polish city once the capital of Lithuania, 215 miles to the southwest.

EUROPE, FINLAND, ALAND ISLANDS

The Aland Islands off the coast of Finland are reported to have been occupied by Nazi forces. The 6554 Finnish islands and islets lie at the mouth of the Gulf of Bothnia where it joins the main body of the Baltic Sea and form stepping stones between Finland and Sweden, says the National Geographic Society. There strategic importance was once commented on by Napoleon.

Except for a short period during World War I, the Alands have been demilitarized since 1854, when Britain and France reduced the Bomarsund fortress by naval bombardment during the Crimean War. Agreements between Finland and Sweden in 1920-21 retained the islands' previous nonmilitary status. Sweden feared their close proximity to Stockholm.

All Finland's Once Sweden's

The group is almost entirely Swedish in language and culture. In Sweden's heyday, when Finland was merely a province of the larger country, the Alands were governed as part of the Finnish section. In 1809 Russia defeated Sweden in war and annexed Finland, including the Aland group.

The main port, Mariehamn, was the last stronghold of the sailing ship in world trade. But for the war, its 30 square-riggers might still be making the run to Australia for wheat, a globe-circling trip of six months duration described in Alan Villiers' novel, Grain Race.

The 27,000 islanders farm and fish. One island, called the mainland, has almost half the area of the entire group. It has beautifully kept small farms. Only 300 of the islands are inhabited, but many uninhabited bits of land are in use by farmers who row from one insular field to another.

The League of Nations chalked up an assist for the dove of peace in 1921 when newly-freed Finland and Sweden were making warlike gestures over the Alands. The League commission recognized Finland's historic right to retain them, but ordered her to grant the islanders almost complete autonomy. To placate Sweden, Finland undertook never to fortify the group which Napoleon called the key to Stockholm.

The scenic islands became a popular vacation center in the recent interwar period. In the middle thirties, 10,000 persons a year visited them. Most were from Finland and Sweden, but some came from faraway Australia, lured by the desire to see the home port of the sailing vessels that touched the Antipodes yearly.

"FIECY" BACK WITH PARATROOPERS

Ol. July 5 word was received here that Staff Sgt. Gerald J. Ficociello, former Winchester High School football star, now in the U. S. Army Paratroops was injured in action in France on June 14. The Adjutant General stated that Sgt. Ficociello was hospitalized and that his wife, Mrs. Rose Ficociello, would be kept informed of his progress.

On Monday word was received from "Fiecy" that he had recovered and rejoined his Paratroop outfit. While he was recuperating he met Capt. Joseph McNally of Washington street and he said it surely was good to see some one from the old home town.

"Fiecy" landed in France early on the morning of D-Day. His outfit was in action from the first as the papers reported a few days after the invasion. His buddy, Sgt. Bob Burns of Chicago, Ill., had the misfortune to be injured that morning, but the third member of the "Musketeers," Sgt. Lionel Cole, had better luck and gave a good account of himself, performing his mission the manner expected of a Paratrooper.

"Fiecy" states that he has secured many German insignias which he is sending on home. He enjoys reading the Winchester Star which keeps him informed of his many home town friends. He is especially looking forward to a meeting with another former Winchester High and University of New Hampshire football star, Capt. John "Steamer" Hanlon of Bridge street.

RECEIVED PURPLE HEART

Mrs. Agatha Shinnick Tully, who with her infant son, Sidney Kennedy Tully, Jr., is in Winchester with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Shinnick of Washington street, was notified yesterday that her husband, Lt. McGann, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McGann of 19 Sheridan circle, is reported as somewhere in France as a member of the first Service Group of the Allies Expeditionary Air Force to land in Normandy after D-Day. His group has the all-important job of supply and maintenance for 9th Air Force fighter planes which operate from advance airstrips in Normandy.

Capt. McGann, a graduate of Harvard, was first commissioned in the Chemical Warfare Service at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., in October, 1942. Prior to entering the service he was a chemist with Remington Rand, Inc Bridgeport, Conn.

LT. CONLON PROMOTED

Thomas W. (Bill) Conlon, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Conlon of Canal street, was recently advanced to 1st lieutenant in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve. He received his original commission as 2nd lieutenant with his "wings" at Pensacola, Fla., in August 1943.

Lt. Conlon is a dive bomber pilot, attached to the Third Marine Aircraft Wing, which completed its combat training at Cherry Point, N. C.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Russell Mann are at Pleasant Point, Knox County, Me., where they will remain until Labor Day.

WINCHESTER BOY WITH ENGINEERS WHO "PUT UP" INVADING TROOPS

Pfc. Podgetz Iannacci, who is married and makes his home at 162 Swanton street is a member of the U. S. Army Engineers unit that had the unusual job of acting as "Hotel Men" for the liberating Allied forces invading France on "D-Day." They actually provided hotel service for the thousands of tactical troops massed in the marshalling areas before the take-off. Since all of the living equipment of the invading units had been fully packed, some one had to give them food, beds, sanitary facilities and other necessities.

Most of the camps had to be enlarged, in most instances their capacities being increased many fold. There was also the urgent need of camouflage them well so that they could not be spotted from the air. All this was straight Engineers' work and was done with the usual speed and thoroughness.

Later the Engineers took over as cooks, MP's, supply men, etc. There were platoons and companies of Engineers expert in waterproofing, fire fighting, water supply, engineering stores, etc. Some were there for emergencies, such as repairing damage resulting from possible German bombing.

And after the invading soldiers had gone there was still plenty of work to be done, cleaning up and readying the camps for new occupants. A major problem was the disposal of the enormous stocks of clothing and equipment the troops left behind, there being literally mountains of blouses, caps, overshoes and boots, all of which had been exchanged by the Engineers with precision for just the equipment needed for the great assault.

"BERNIE" STYGLES PROMOTED

Cpl. Bernard Stygles, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stygles of 35 Oak street has been promoted to sergeant in the U. S. Army Air Forces, according to an announcement received from his commanding officer.

He has served in the British Isles with the European Division of the USAAF Air Transport Command, for the past six months and at present is an aircraft mechanic at this base.

Delivery of the thousands of bomber and fighter planes now participating in the liberation of Nazi-held Europe is one of the major missions of ATC's European Division. As the trans-Atlantic aerial supply line between the United States and Great Britain, the Division delivers thousands of pounds of war materials and mail monthly.

Sgt. Stygles attended St. Mary's and Winchester High School where he was graduated and played varsity football. He was employed by the Economy Grocery Co. before entering the service.

Blanchard of 25 Everett avenue, was recently awarded the air medal and two oak leaf clusters for duty, as bombardier, with the 15th Air Force. The award was made by direction of the President of the United States and by order of Maj. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, commanding the 15th Air Force in Italy.

The citation reads in part: "For meritorious achievement in aerial flight while participating in sustained operational activities against the enemy."

Lt. Blanchard is a graduate of Winchester High School and later was employed as manager of a lumber company for the Geo. W. Blanchard Co. He received his combat training at Rapid City, South Dakota and Tampa, Fla., and has now completed 30 combat missions over enemy occupied Europe.

The courage and determination displayed in these operations were of an inspiring order."

Cpl. Wyman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wyman of this town.

DESTROYED ENEMY PLANE

Lt. Floyd W. Tremberth, Mustang pilot from Winchester, is rewriting those famous posters which invite you to: "Join the Navy, and See the World."

He is a member of the 8th Fighter Command Mustang group commanded by Col. William J. (Wild Bill) Cummings, Jr., Lawrence, Kansas, which operated over enemy territory extending from the Baltic Sea to Poland to the shores of the Mediterranean.

On a recent joint into-southeast-in France the pilots were able to see the Alps, the Pyrenees and the Mediterranean, simultaneously. Their battle itinerary has taken them to Schweinfurt, Augensburg, Munich, Berlin, Leipzig, Stettin, and points between and beyond, including a round-trip into Poland which was the longest operational flight ever accomplished by single engined fighter planes.

The outfit recently destroyed 20 enemy aircraft on the ground to take a firm hold on its place as third highest-scoring fighter group in the European theater of operations.

Lt. Tremberth's parents reside at 74 Woodside road. His wife, Mrs. Georgia Tremberth, resides at 371 Highland street, Newtonville. In a strafing spree by two squadrons of Mustangs from this base the lieutenant chalked up his first victory by destroying an Me 109 on the ground.

INTERESTING SOUVENIR

The Staff of Cross Street Hospital has the Star Office on display an interesting souvenir of the 200th Jubilee, held on Boston in June of 1889, four years after the Civil War.

The Jubilee, originated by Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore, noted band leader of that day, was held in the wooden Coliseum, and the entertainment included many of the noted musicians of the world.

The souvenir which Mr. Smith has is a brass coin, slightly larger than a 25 cent piece, bearing on one side a replica of the Coliseum and dates of the Jubilee, and on the reverse, Gilmore's name, as originator, and some interesting statistics concerning the coliseum.

The length of the building was 500 feet, width, 300 ft.; and heighth, 100 feet. Two million feet of lumber went into it, 28 tons of nails and 25,000 ft. of gaspipe. The seating capacity was 50,000.

The souvenir, which had evidently been worn either as a locket or watch-charm came to Mr. Smith among the effects of an aunt who died recently in Woburn at the age of 86 years.

A Reminder

While we are enjoying the relaxation of the vacation season let us not forget that over seas where the boys are fighting for our liberty and better way of life there is no vacation period, casualties are mounting and their needs are increasing, so perhaps our part in the struggle should mean giving a little more blood, devoting a few hours of time and collecting such articles as may provide entertainment and ease are for those in service.

HOUSE STRUCK DURING SUNDAY'S STORM

Winchester had two heavy thunderstorms on Sunday, the worst of the two coming shortly after 6 o'clock. At 6:27 the Police were notified by a resident of Sanborn street that the home of Mr. A. T. Sisson at 10 Sanborn street had apparently been struck by lightning during one of the heavy crashes.

The Fire Department was notified and Engine 1 answered the call. The firemen found upon arrival that lightning had actually struck the house and ripped a few shingles from the roof. The damage done was slight.

During the second of the two heavy showers the rain fell exceptionally heavy and there was a high wind at times, especially just as the rain commenced.

TO REPLACE LAUNDRY STACK

Workmen commenced the first of the week to rig a big hoist to replace the 90 ft. smokestack at the power plant of the Winchester Branch of the New England Laundries on Converse place.

The old stack which is of steel sections riveted together, has worn through. It will be replaced by a stack of similar construction and Plant Manager Crosby expected the new one would be put in place over the week-end.

WAR STAMPS AND BONDS SOLD BY WINCHESTER SCHOOLS

Supt. of Schools James J. Quinn, reports that our schools have sold $865,868 worth of war bonds and stamps during the past school year, 1943-44.

Nearly 90 per cent of the students have been regular purchasers. Although no comparative figures are at hand for other communities, this has all the earmarks of being an exceptional and outstanding performance.

PACIFIC MARIANAS ISLANDS, TINIAN

Tinian, third Marianas Island to feel the weight of American arms in the current west central Pacific offensive, flanks recently-captured Saipan, and lies directly between that latterly-defended island and Guam. Full possession of Tinian and Guam would mean that only Rota, of the Marianas "big four", remains in enemy hands. Saipan and Tinian are separated by a channel only three miles wide.

Tinian is largely a low tableland devoted to sugar cane raising, says the National Geographic Society. It is more nearly level than adjacent islands and has areas suitable for additional bomber runways. A few high hills reach only 400 to 564 feet, while Saipan's Tapatchou Mountain towers 1554 feet and southern Guam has a range averaging some 1100 feet.

The island's relatively heavy population, especially in the town of Tinian, was almost exclusively Japanese. Many Japs immigrated to work in the sugar plantations. For many years during Spanish and German owner-ship, Tinian Island was all but deserted. Tradition said that a terrible plague once devastated it, causing the islanders to shun it thereafter. Another account blames the policy of certain Spanish governors for depopulation.

In the 1920's the Japs started clearing tropical jungle, and planting sugar cane in Saipan, Tinian and Rota, the islands in the west indented by main suitable to the crop. Tinian's only port for exporting sugar and its by-product alcohol, was a wide, unsheltered bay on the southwest. The island's area is 40 square miles. It is 12 miles long by six miles wide at its widest point.

Before the Japanese era of civilization, Tinian was overrun with wild cattle and hogs. It supplied near-by islands with meat. The island has been known for its beauty since Admiral George Anson, British circumnavigator, praised it after his voyage of 1741-44. Comdr. John Byron, who was with Anson, headed his own expedition around the world in 1764-66 and stopped for nine weeks on Tinian while his men recovered from scurvy and epowsion I the chips.

HERE'S A WINDOW DISPLAY DESIGNED FOR YOU!

. . . At Kennedy's, 32 Summer St., Boston, all this week, is a full-sized window display, demonstrating how easy and clean war work is. The display shows girls actually operating machines used in the manufacture of electronic tubes for our armed forces. The demand for this type of equipment is so great that Kennedy's has contributed their window to let us show you how pleasant and interesting this work is—in the hope that you will offer your services—full or part time—at profitable wages—to the war effort. Don't miss seeing this window—today—and then determine to do your part to help bring our men in service home quicker.

John P. Marquand has suggested the following pledge for Loyalty Week:

"If I am doing war work, I shall give the best that is in me, every minute, every hour, every day that I am needed, until the enemy is crushed.

"If I am not so engaged, I shall offer my service for war work, full or part time.

"If I can do neither, I promise our leaders to do all which they may ask of me to hasten our final and decisive victory."

WOMEN

Practically any woman or girl who can thread a needle will find light, clean, interesting work at Raytheon. From girls 16 to women of over 60, thousands of patriotic Americans are helping the war effort — and making profitable wages doing it. Why not investigate —today!

TEELE SCINTILLATES

It hasn't been often since human sense, that Royal "Paper Trade" Teele, doughty president of the Palmer Beach Horseshoe Association, has shown more than occasional flashes of pitching form, but at the "irregular matches of the organization last week-end he is reported to have been very much on the ball.

Considering the fact that Royal's pitching has admittedly been pretty elementary all year, it is just too bad that when he was having a good day the matches couldn't go into the records. Technicalities however do not permit his sterling work on the courts to go onto the "book for posterity."

One of the most inflexible of all Palmer Beach Horseshoe regulations is that which states four members shall be necessary for all recorded matches. Unfortunately there were but three warriors present during the heat of last week-end so the best Mr. Teele can do is have his victorious flinging listed as "unofficial". We are sure Mr. Butters, sometimes called the State of Maine Champ, and now sojourning in the Pine Tree State until the opening of school this fall, will concur in this statement. Mr. McLaughlin, too, that famous "Wild Willie" who is the Pride of Stowe and Champion of all Nabnasset, went on record after the pitching as opposed to having the Teele victories entered in the official records of the Association. Mr. Pridham, the other member of the trio present, was too disgusted with his own lack of pitching prowess to issue a statement, except to say tersely that in his opinion the President was "lucky."

The games played were not such as the Association usually indulges in. Only ringers counted and the trio engaged each other as individuals, Mr. Teele lost only once during the entire session, being set down that time by Mr. McLaughlin, who broke out in a rash of double ringers. Mr. Pridham's high shoe, so useful in picking up odd points, was of little avail when only those landing around the stake were good for anything.

It was during last summer that Mr. Teele, while on a business trip in Northern New England, visited a horseshoe court in a small town with an associate and threw four consecutive ringers. Although he had his feat attested by eye-witnesses and the paper notarized, doubts have been freely expressed by his confreres at Palmer street, and it must be admitted in view of the Teele showing this spring those doubts have not been too unreasonable.

It was therefor with considerable satisfaction that Royal duplicated this feat at the "irregular" matches last week-end, and if you chanced to be disturbed by a loud and raucous noise just after the fourth shoe landed on the upright, it was n't as you might have supposed war prisoners rioting with the public. It was simply Mr Teele's whoops of unbridled joy. Royal was very happy to have vindicated himself, much happier we might add, than were his companions in crime, Mr. Pridham and Mr. McLaughlin, both of whom were, according to reliable eye-witnesses, consid erably confounded by Royal's pitching skill.

Needless to state the four consecutive ringers were tops for the session though Mr. McLaughlin got on three of a row during the game he won from Mr. Teele. Absentees were Messrs. Wittet and Walsh, and the Secretary.

LEAVES ARLINGTON GASLIGHT COMPANY

Brayton B. Fisher, well known to many in Winchester through his long connection with the Arlington Gas Light Company, was the recipient of congratulations and best wishes last week upon his transfer to other work entailing greater opportunities and increased responsibilities.

Mr. Fisher has been with the Arlington Gas Light Company since 1921 during the last seven years holding the position of sales manager. His success in that capacity resulted in promotion to a similar position with the Narragansett Electric Company, another New England Power Association affiliate, located in Providence, R. I.

While in Arlington, he made many friends both through his business contacts and also through the active interest which he took in many civic affairs.

This interest is shown by the fact that at the time of severing his connection in this area, he was secretary and past president of the Arlington Lions Club, treasurer of the Arlington Community Chest Inc., director of the Arlington branch of the American Red Cross, vice chairman of the Arlington Committee on Public Safety, secretary of the Arlington Advisory Committee, director of the Arlington Social Service League, and vice president of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce.

WINCHESTER SALVAGE COMMITTEE

WINCHESTER SCORED AT CRYSTAL LAKE

Swimmers from the Winchester Swimming Club rolled up 11 points at the meeting held at Crystal Lake, Newton, last Saturday afternoon.

As usual, this year, Joy Pray, Palmer Beach lifeguard, was Winchester's star, annexing the 50 yard freestyle senior event for women in the Bay State Division and finishing a good third in the feature 440 yard freestyle women's NEAAU championship competition. Clara Lamore, outstanding swimmer from Olneyville Boys' Club auxiliary and her teammate, Louise Sherlock, placed first and second, the winner's time being 6 min. 4 secs. Joy did 34.5 secs. in beating Barbara Milliken of Olneyville and Carol Curley of the Boston Swimming Association in the Bay State 50.

Beverly Gay was Winchester's other winner in the women's events, finishing second behind Louise Sherlock of Olneyville in the 25 yard freestyle for girls. The winner's time was 14.4 secs.

Bob McGrath, who has been meeting with consistent success in open meets this summer, was Winchester's winner on the men's side of the tourney, playing second in the Bay State 25 yard freestyle, for boys under 15. Victor Cardwell of Wanshuk was the winner in 12.2 secs.

ATTENDED BALL GAME

Some 25 or 30 boys from the Leonard Field and Loring avenue playgrounds went in to attend the big league baseball game between the Pittsburg Pirates and the Boston Braves at Braves Field Monday afternoon. Instructors Natalie Cox and Ann Dolan accompanied the boys, and it is announced that a "good time was had by all," in spite of the fact that old Red Soxer, "Fritz" Ostermueller, let down the Bostons with a couple of hits.

The Legion held another of its popular social nights, with games, cards and refreshments at Post Headquarters last evening. These nights are held once a month and attract many Legionnaires who enjoy sociability and competition with their buddies.

"Old Charter, Old Discovery, Old Rocking Chair, Old Baby Carriage!" What? Has the New Deal gone back to the Old Horse and Buggy Daze?

Even our famed and astute Boston cops go off the beam occasionally. Wednesday's paper informed us that "two are shot in the hip push and severely wounded."

Some years ago a town committee was appointed to take up mosquito control. In a quiet way this committee went to work and did an excellent job, for until lately Winchester was largely free of this pest. Last summer mosquitoes again appeared. This year they have returned in greatly increasing numbers. During the recent hot weather householders throughout the town have been unable to sit outside and enjoy the cool of the evening. The mosquitoes have become a major town pest. While the season will have long passed before another town meeting will take place, it might be an excellent idea if memorandum were made for the appointment of another committee for mosquito control, that active steps may be taken for another summer. If members of the old committee, which did such an excellent job are available, they might well come forward with their past experience and aid materially in freeing the town of this pest.

We note in the current issue of a national magazine an editorial on pampering war prisoners. We quote a little: "... we should on no account lower our present standards of decent, good natured and generous treatment of prisoners of war ... by treating ... prisoners humanely we shall at least not incite (our opponents) to treat American prisoners any worse ..." As we get it this close to some of these pampered prisoners, no one here has any desire to treat prisoners anything but humanely. We have never heard any clamor or suggestion for anything else. But there is a difference between "pampering" and humanity. As we see it we are at war and not conducting a reception center for the edification and pampering of our enemies who are killing American boys and who have not thus far hesitated to go to every endeavor to do the same to us as a nation. Pampering no! Humane treatment yes! Is it possible that we are already entering the universal state of "milk and honey?" Americans here at home are enjoying social security, union wages, short work hours and every New Deal advantage we thought up, but at least these prisoners are not entitled to anything our own boys cannot receive. It took a big clamor of protest over Italian prisoners receiving gasoline for outings, invitations to parties, wine receptions and what not just to get a little gasoline for our own boys returning from that same battlefield. Will that little gasoline doled out to American soldiers is to be used as cap for a continuance of riches and the life of Riley for captured prisoners, we for one, think it should stop. If it takes a protest over this pampering—which it certainly is, just to try out an additional lowering of the bars for American servicemen, what are we coming to?

MONDAY MORNING WAR NEWS

We've given up hope of war's end today, we all look eagerly for the big start on Monday morning's paper. But it's always just the same. There is little change over the past two years of the New Deal. Call our Great Ruler by any title you choose—The Indispensable Man, The Great Humanitarian, The Great Commander-In-Chief, Our Great Soldier, or any other grandoise term, but you can't change the old New Deal Monday morning news. Here is an obscure item taken from last Monday's edition:

Industrial production, already slackening with more than 16,500 workers idle, today faced possible further reduction by a predicted walkout of 5000 General Motors employees in Detroit.

Nester B Dossy, president of Local 235, United Automobile Workers (CIO), said he expected that 7000 employees of five Chevrolet factories producing warplane engine parts would not report for work today, which would mean a complete shutdown of the plants.

A dispute at the General Steel castings company's Commonwealth plant, Granite City, Ill., kept about 1500 workers off the job.

At Roebling, N. J., the executive board of Local 2111, United Steel Workers of America (C. I. O.) prepared for a mass meeting to attempt to end the walkout of 3000 wire plant employees of the John A. Roebling and Sons.

If you like this invigorating war news to start each week off with, you have our sympathy. If you do not like it, you don't have to vote for it next November.

WANTS BUSSES ON HIGHLAND AVENUE

To the Editor of the Star:

If we are properly informed, Highland avenue is the third longest street in Winchester. It has 456 residences. But the most important residence, if we may call it so, is the Winchester Hospital, with a capacity for 95 patients and also it 78 employees. If the hospital is filled to capacity, as it is in 9 of the time, there are probably at least an average of 100 visitors a day. Probably 50 percent of these visitors go in cars of their own or friends, but those that have to walk or climb either one of two long and steep hills, if they travel by bus.

Main street and Washington street, the two longest streets in town are well serviced by busses and they are on level ground. Any resident of Highland avenue, whether coming from the center of the town or beyond Main or Washington streets must climb long, steep hills to reach their homes. There are many elderly residents of Highland avenue who have no cars and also many middle aged, who because they are more economical than some of the sweet sliders do not have cars, therefore must hire taxis to climb the long hills. We will admit that climbing a hill is good exercise, especially after some have sat in offices all day, but on rainy, snowy days, especially to those who have weak hearts, bus service would be a great boon.

Busses pass both ends of Highland avenue every half hour. Why can't a schedule be worked out by the bus company so that at least every hour a bus can pass through Highland avenue and give service to the most inaccessible street in Winchester?

My dear Mrs. Miller:

This is to acknowledge the 17 stump socks which you sent to this hospital on July 20. We noted that 11 of these were made by various women and that six were made by Mrs. Newell Page.

We are writing a separate letter to Mrs. Page and would appreciate your passing along our thanks to the other ladies. This is, indeed, a big thing that these women are doing as these socks are in constant demand.

Sincerely yours,

YOUR ATTENTION IS INVITED TO A RECENT ORDER OF THE OPA

Beginning Aug. 1 all applicants for supplemental mileage for home-to-work driving shall be required to carry three riders in addition to the driver in order to qualify for either B or C rations, after a probationary period of 30 days.

If, however, at the end of the probationary period, the applicant still does not have a satisfactory ride-sharing arrangement, the board must determine whether he has made every reasonable effort to form such an arrangement and has failed through no fault of his own.

The full burden of proving inability to form a ride-sharing arrangement rests with the applicant. The presumption must be that the operator can form a car club and no additional supplemental rations should be granted unless he is able to present full and conclusive evidence to support his claim that he is unable to obtain a full quota of riders.

In the event adequate public transportation is available, the applicant shall be refused supplemental rations in the absence of a ride sharing arrangement.

"Man-Power" of a Nation

"Man-Power" of a nation really refers to the number of men available for service in time of war, says London Answers Magazine. We arrive at it by taking the total population and estimating how many of these are men between certain ages—say, eighteen and forty-five. From the figure this gives, we must deduct a certain proportion of weaklings of all kinds. The remainder left may then be called the "man-power" of the nation. Speaking broadly, a nation can put ten per cent of its population in the field. That is its man-power.

NEW VOICE ON STATION WKY IS FAMILIAR ONE "BACK EAST"

By Madelaine Wilson

When Helen Barr sends her first greeting via radio to Oklahoma City woman Monday morning it will be a new voice for local listeners.

But back east, around Boston and New York, her cheery "Hello, friends" has been a familiar sound several years.

There, at various times on different programs, she has been heard introducing all types as "Nancy Lee" and "Nahor Nell" as well as under her own name.

Here, on her "Six Keys to Better Homemaking" program which begins over WKY at 9:45 a. m. Monday, she'll be broadcasting under her own name, Helen Barr.

The "Six Keys" tag for her six-days a week program is no idle title. Actually it is a revelation of Mrs. Barr's life itself.

Following her graduation from Lowell, Mass., finishing school where she majored in languages and music, she went seriously into the study of concert singing, studying with Metropolitan and Boston Opera Company teachers.

So it's no accident of fate that her speaking voice is charming, well-modulated and clear.

She has appeared with Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees over the NBC network, and as soloist with several New England radio stations.

Later, recognized as an authority on personal charm, gained during her association with a nationally known cosmetics firm and as a buyer for an eastern department store, Mrs Barr appeared frequently as fashion commentator before clubs and on radio programs.

Interior decoration is one of her hobbies and she has designed and decorated two homes of her own.

"Fashions in homes change as they do in dress," she says. "But nothing takes the place of good cheer and comfort. Armed with a few lengths of chintz and a bucket of paint, any woman can work wonders with a tired-looking house."

Then, budget-wise, she adds, "and it doesn't take a fortune, not even a very small one."

Vivacious and alert herself, Helen Barr meets situations, and people, quickly and easily. A room seems to come alive when she walks in. She's inherently friendly. She's attracted to people because she finds them so intensely interesting. As might be expected, people are attracted to her for the same reason.

She discusses the times she was soloist with the Boston Symphony concert broadcasts with the same fervor she tells you of her Boston baked beans recipe.

But nothing prompts her to action like the query, "I don't want to spend much money, but what could I do to sort of give this room a lift?"

When Oscar Monrad, a fellow New Englander, called on the new director of women's programs at WKY, he confided, surprisingly, that Boston baked beans are not one of his favorite foods.

The former concert singer smiled a wisely feminine smile and said, "Oh but you haven't tasted the kind of baked beans I make."

Wednesday testimonial meeting 8 p. m.
Reading Room, 5 Winchester Terrace (off Thompson street). Open daily except Sundays and holidays from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m.

We have received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is of God, that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God. This passage from the Bible, I Corinthians 2:12, comprises the Golden Text to be used in the Lesson-Sermon, which will be read in The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and in all of its branches, on Sunday, Aug. 6.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be Spirit, and included in the Bible selections is Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day: the darkness and the light are both alike to thee (Psalms 139:7, 11, 12).

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included in the Lesson-Sermon: The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-all. . . . The Scriptures also declare that God is Spirit. . . . He is all-inclusive, and is reflected by all that is real and eternal, and by nothing else (p. 331).

Jackson by No Means Lacking in Education

John Quincy Adams declined to attend the ceremonies at Harvard college in 1833 when the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon Andrew Jackson, then President of the United States.

His reason, according to his diary, was that "as an affectionate child of our alma mater, I would not be present to witness her disgrace in conferring her highest literary honors upon a barbarian who could not write a sentence of grammar and hardly could spell his own name."

Adams' estimate of Jackson has been challenged by Dr. Archibald Henderson, who tells in the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer, the result of his exhaustive researches regarding Jackson's early life. He finds that Jackson, as a boy, received a better education than the average child of his station in life.

Later he attended Waxhaw academy. He continued his studies in that part of Carolina known then as New Acquisition. An account of the life of Rev. Francis Cummins, once a teacher at Bethel, S. C., shows that Jackson was one of his pupils and there is evidence that for a short time Jackson attended Queen's museum in Charlotte, N. C.

How Lightning Affects Trees

Although lightning frequently strikes trees there is usually no damage to the trees or else the injury is limited to the path of the electrical discharge, occasionally stripping off a narrow piece of bark or splitting the trunk or limb. However, in rare cases the lightning may be accompanied by St. Elmo's fire which gives a flaming or brush discharge from every twig and leaf. In such cases the tree usually dies within a few days or, if the St. Elmo's fire should miss part of the tree, it may kill the greater part and several years may elapse before the remainder of the tree succumbs.

Cats as "Retrievers"

The ancient Egyptians are said to have killed wild ducks with throwing sticks, to have made use of decoys and to have trained cats as retrievers. They also hunted with trained lions, which belong to the cat species. There have been also hunting coupés used as long ago as the reign of Edda Khufu (Cheops).

Ohio Once Had Many Snakes

Snakes once were so numerous in many sections of early Ohio that the settlers would organize snake hunts. Armed with clubs, axes and guns, the farmers would comb a section of the forest from morning to night, leaving hundreds of poisonous serpents dead in their wake.

JOSEPH M. HOBAN

Joseph M. Hoban, a lifelong and well known resident of Winchester, died early Saturday morning, July 29, at his home, 37 Elm street, after a six weeks' illness which followed a long period of failing health.

Mr. Hoban was the son of Patrick and Catherine (Farr) Hoban. He was born Nov. 16, 1873 in Winchester, the family homestead having been located on Cross street where his father owned a sawmill when he sold it to the town for $700 as a site for the old Washington School. Later the family lived in the N. End for a time, but for the past 20 years Mr. Hoban had made his home on Elm street.

Educated in the Winchester schools, Mr. Hoban as a young man was a farmer and florist. He later became a painter and for many years followed this trade, having his own business. Although retired for several years, he continued to be active and only three years ago helped with painting his own house despite the fact that he was in the late 80's.

Mr. Hoban was the last of seven brothers. On Feb. 21, 1882, he married Annie Gillespie of Woburn at St. Mary's Church. She survived, with three sons, Luke J. of Boston; Patrick W., of Winchester; and Thomas F. Hoban of Cambridge. There are three grandchildren.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning from the Moffett and McMullen Funeral Home with requiem high mass celebrated at St. Mary's Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

COUTANCES, FRENCH INVASION REGION

Coutances, just ahead of the American breakthrough on the western side of the Normandy Peninsula, is a highway and railroad junction town of 6400 people, 12 air miles south of Cherbourg, says the National Geographic Society.

Coutances spreads over a conical granite hill seven miles inland. Highways from Valognes, Carentan, and Bayeux join at Coutances to continue 17 miles southward to Normandy's west coast resort-port of Granville.

A railroad branching from the Cherbourg-Paris line west of Valognes serves the western towns of the peninsula and passes through Coutances.

The hilltop of Coutances is crowned by a 13th-century Gothic cathedral, one of Normandy's architectural gems visible in clear weather from the Channel Isle of Jersey, 25 miles northwest. From this town, the Constantin of Roman occupation days, the Cotentin Peninsula (commonly referred to as the Normandy or the Cherbourg Peninsula) takes its name.

Austin F. Hitchcock, one of the day crossing tenders at the B. and M. crossing in the center, commenced his vacation on Monday. His place is being filled by Tom Parker, well known resident of this town and one of the school traffic officers.

SWIMMER CUT FOOT AT LEONARD BEACH

Paul Maiullaro, 8 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Maiullaro of 19 Holland street, sustained a deep cut on the instep of his right foot Wednesday while in the water at Leonard Field Beach. What caused the injury is not known, but the cut was a clean one and evidently made by a sharp object.

Paul was taken by Officer Edward Bowler of the Police Department to the Winchester Hospital where he was treated by Dr. Richard W. Shore. Several stitches were necessary to close the wound.

154th Anniversary U.S. COAST GUARD 154th Anniversary

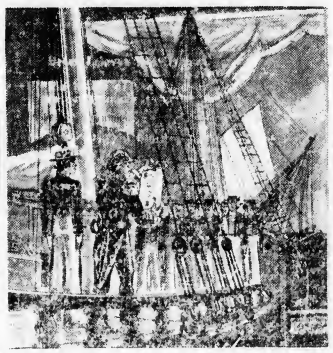

August 1790

A stout boat and a strong back, plus the ingrained seamanship and courage of the Coast Guard serfman has written a long record over the years of thrilling rescues under hazardous conditions.

It was from the surf station crews such as shown above that the women who manned the leeside barges of World War 2 were drawn a few days after Pearl Harbor.

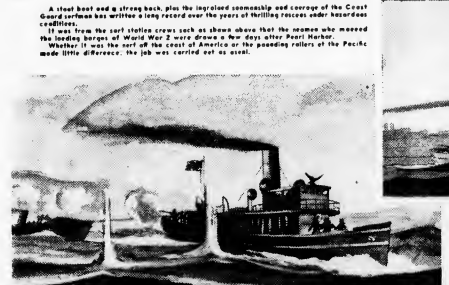

Whether it was the surf off the coast of America or the pounding rollers at the Pacific made little difference, the job was carried out as usual.

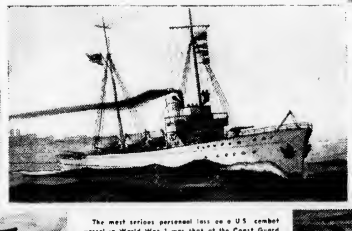

The commissioning ceremonies aboard the Revenue Cutter Massachusetts at which time Hopley Yeaton of New Hampshire assumed command and became the first commissioned Master of the United States Revenue Cutter Service.

Formation of the present day coastwatchers of the Coast Guard the Massachusetts and her sister ships of the were built and in 1790.

They were but 49 feet in length and of 31 tons displacement with a crew of eight officers and men.

The most serious personnel loss on a U.S. combat vessel in World War 1 was that of the Coast Guard cutter Tampa while on her way from Gibraltar to the British Isles.

Believed to have been torpedoed she sank with all hands, a total of 115 officers and men only a short time after having been commended in official dispatches for having completed 18 convoys between the British Isles and Gibraltar without the loss of a single ship or life.

The battle of Cardenas Bay, Cuba in the Spanish-American War saw the tiny cutter, Hudson, as a part of a Naval attacking force on the Spanish emplacements.

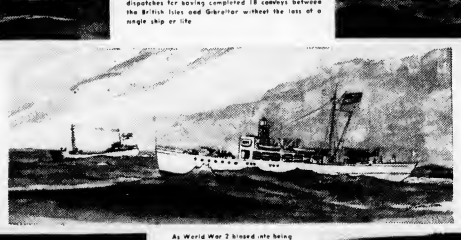

Lying about 1800 yards offshore, she poured a steady fire into the Spanish forts from her Driggs-Schroeder guns. The Navy gunboat, Wilmington and torpedo boat Winslow were lying closer inshore at their battle positions when it was observed by the Hudson's commanding officer, Lieutenant Newcombe, that the Winslow had been hit and was out of control. Newcombe maneuvered the Hudson in under the guns of the Spanish forts, suffering several hits on his cutter, took the Winslow in tow and brought her to safety outside the harbor.

The Navy attack force commander's report on the incident read "without the combined efforts of those on board the Hudson the surviving members of the crew of the Winslow would have been lost".

World War 2 started for the Coast Guard on a sunny mid-September day in 1941 when the cutter Northland (right) under command of Commander Tex Paulsen, overhauled and captured the armed Norwegian trawler Seska, which had been landing Nazi weather station parties on the Greenland Ice Cap.

The next day, after questioning at the Seska's crew had revealed the location of the Nazi radio station, Lieutenant Commander McCloskey with a landing party attacked and captured the station, taking prisoners the crew under command of a Norwegian Quisling named Jacob Bradley.

The first action against Nazi Germany had been carried out months before the actual declaration of war.

A part of a combined Navy and Army expedition against the Confederate forts at Hatteras Inlet in the Civil War, the cutter, Harriet Lane carried out a brilliant rescue operation.

In company with three transports, with 800 men aboard, she moved on the Confederate positions and started landing operations. When 200 men were on the way to shore a sudden storm forced the transports to abandon operations and proceed to deep water. The commanding officer of the Lane realizing he could not operate in the shoal waters promptly jettisoned his guns and heavy equipment and steamed out, the later where he carried out rescue operations, amongst the landing craft and then carried them to safety offshore.

On the morning of December 7 1941 the Coast Guard cutter Taney went into action at Honolulu. Her anti-aircraft guns blazing at the Jap attack force planes, she gave an heroic account of herself on that memorable morning.

As World War 2 blazed into being the Coast Guard became a part of America's battle fleet overnight. Cutters went on a wartime basis and for the sixth time in history, the Coast Guard joined Navy forces to fight the nation's enemies.

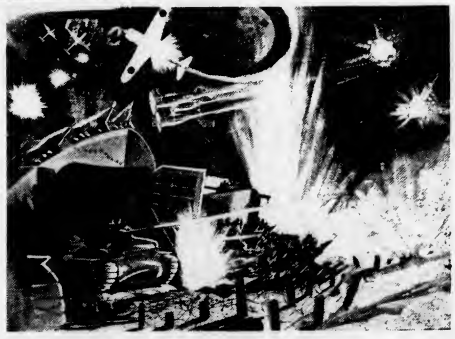

The surf stations were emptied of their best men who were to write history on the bloody shores of Guadalcanal, Tulagi, Casa Gloucester, New Georgia, Tarawa and Saipan. Men who had spent their lives as life savers became overnight, skilled mariners and seamen of the leading barges in the Pacific.

The Nazi wolf packs struck in the Atlantic and again it was a Coast Guard job. Everything the service had that could stay afloat was at sea. Hastily armed with depth charges and light guns they struck again and again at the raider and renders.

The ices drew first blood off the Carolina Capes when the 165-foot cutter shot it out with a sub twice her size and won. Later the Campbell, the Spencer and the Icarus were to have their bloody moments in far northern waters, a protecting convoys.

D-Day dawned off Normandy's shores and the Coast Guard played a big part in transporting troops, operating transports, supply ships, landing barges and rescue craft which were the 83 footers.

As the 154th year of its existence closes on August 4th, the men of the Coast Guard are carrying on, living up to the motto of the service "Always Ready".

EUROPE, POLAND, SIEDLCE

Siedlce, about half way between Brest-Litovsk and Warsaw, is 90 miles east from the former Polish capital, says the National Geographic Society. It had a prewar population of 37,000, about two-thirds of whom were Jews.

An excellent highway was built from Brest-Litovsk 60 miles west to Siedlce by the Germans during the first World War. Lined with silver birch trees, the road runs through woodland alternating with wide open spaces long noted for their production of grain. West of Siedlce an equally good highway extends through relatively level land to Warsaw.

The city never fully recovered from the depredations of the first World War, when Poland was robbed by the German invaders of all movable property. It was also disrupted by the Russo-Polish war that followed.

Siedlce had never attained the industrial or commercial importance promised by its position on trunk railway lines. It relied largely on trade with its surrounding fertile farming area.

The show place of Siedlce is the palace and gardens established long ago by Prince Oginski, of a famous old family of Poland still commemorated by the Oginski Canal to the east, connecting the Szczara and Niemen with the Jasiolda River. At one time the Oginskis were powerful enough to split the country by their factional feuds. The old town hall also has long been prized by the residents of Siedlce.

The large Jewish population of Siedlce and other Polish cities resulted partly from the fact that Russian Poland had been a part of the so-called Jewish Pale, under an edict issued in 1890 by Alexander III, compelling all Jews to migrate from the interior of Russia to the western provinces.

EUROPE, POLAND, RADOM

The Polish city of Radom, 60 miles south of Warsaw and 25 miles southwest of the Wisla (Vistula) River near the point where Russians crossed that stream, had 78,000 residents before the war. The city was founded in 1350 by Casimir the Great, King of Poland.

Modern Radom's industries were shaped largely by its position at a railway junction, in a potato-growing area, on the border of Poland's cattle-raising country to the southeast, and not far from iron mines says the National Geographic Society.

It had railway shops, large alcohol distilleries, a leather tanning industry, iron foundries and machine shops, tin-plate mills, agricultural implement factories, vinegar works, and other food-processing plants.

The city had been in Russian Poland for a century before the first World War; the Russians were driven out by the Germans, 30 years ago, in July 1914. From 1918 the city was a part of the Republic of Poland. It was retaken by the Germans in September 1939.

There is considerable marshland about Radom, although it has an elevation of 550 feet. The road southwest to Kielce traverses low-lying country, most of the way running over a causeway. There is also much fertile farmland in this area which, in addition to potatoes, grows grain and sugar beets, as well as Poland's ever-present pigs.

The town of Radom, Illinois was settled in 1874 by Polish families from Radom, Russian Poland.

SHOT BIG TURTLE

While on a fishing trip at Kezar Pond, Me., last week, Lou and Ward Goddu and Dick Fenno were startled to see what they first thought was the head of an enormous snake or small sea-serpent suddenly protrude from the water some distance from them.

Lou and Ward immediately got their guns and although the light was bad these experienced marksmen succeeded in hitting the "critter" which as it thrashed about they found to be an enormous turtle.

It took quite a while and considerable ingenuity finally to kill the big reptile which finally came ashore for the "coup-de-grace." In circumference his shell was about what a man's arms would circle, and not too short arms at that.

Between Ourselves

Rarely do the loyal citizens of Winchester need to be reminded of their duty. Generally they are in the front line eager to do their part, but the number of local blood donors last month dropped to a startling figure.

If you were in the armed forces, and had been wounded in service, how would you feel if you were told that there was no blood plasma available to save your life because the folks at home had fallen down on their job? If you have not been on your vacation give some blood before you go and you will enjoy your relaxation more fully; if you have just returned can't you spare a little now? If you don't take a vacation, a trip to the blood center will give you a thrill when you realize that it may bring home some boy who otherwise might never return.

Please get in touch with the local Blood Donor Office so that when victory has been achieved you will feel that your blood has helped bring it to pass.

SIX STAR SERVICE FLAG FOR JOYCE FAMILY

Winchester's one and only six star flag for six sons in the armed services from one family, was ordered this week by the service flag committee of the Winchester Legion Post and will be presented to the boys' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Joyce of 19 Richardson street.

The boys are Kenneth in the Navy and James, William, Samuel and Thomas, in the Army. The latest to join up is Roger who received his orders to report to a Navy station on Aug. 1.

The Legion Post has now distributed well over 1000 service flags to the homes of Winchester men and women who have reported for duty in the various branches of the armed services. The stars on the flags now represent more than 1500 individuals. In some instances as many as five flags have been sent to one family starting with first member to "join up" and successive two, three, four and five star flags as additional sons or daughters in the same family have donned a uniform.

There are now six Winchester families displaying five star flags, 12 with four stars, 42 with three stars, 172 with two stars and over 800 with one star flags gratuitously distributed by Winchester Post, No. 97.

The Service Flag Committee has received hundreds of letters expressing appreciation for this continuous service now entering its third year of activity.

FARRELL CITED

The Presidential Unit Citation and ribbon bar with star has been awarded to Staff Sgt. Arthur G. Farrell of 6 Sargent road for actual combat duty with the First Marine Division, reinforced at Guadalcanal before Dec. 9, 1942.

A member of an infantry regiment during the heaviest American Division action, Sgt. Farrell was cited by the late Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy in the name of the President of the United States.

The citation reads in part; "The officers and men of the First Marine Division reinforced . . . not only held their important strategic positions despite determined and repeated Japanese naval, air and land attacks, but by a series of offensive operations against strong enemy resistance drove the Japanese from the proximity of the airfield and inflicted great losses on them by land and air attacks. The courage and determination displayed in these operations were of an inspiring order."

Sgt. Farrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Farrell also of 6 Sargent road.

WRIGHT WINS AIR MEDAL

Lt. Whitelaw Wright, USAAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Wright, of 14 Fletcher street, has been awarded the Air Medal for exceptionally meritorious service in aerial flight. He is attached to an 8th Army Air Force Fighter Station in England.

His citation read, "The courage, coolness and skill displayed by this officer reflects great credit upon himself and the Armed Forces of the United States."

Lt. Wright a 22 year old pilot, has flown varied missions to earn his award. Assigned to the veteran fighter group commanded by Col. George T. Crowell of Chicago, Ill., he has flown on high level bombing and dive bombing attacks, high altitude escort missions and fighter offensives.

A graduate of Winchester High School, Lt. Wright attended Tufts College, and before entering the service was employed at the General Electric plant as a tool and die maker.

COLLINS PROMOTED

Postmaster Vincent C. Ambrose has announced the promotion of Dennis J. Collins to the grade of special clerk at the Winchester Postoffice.

Mr. Collins, who is in the postoffice money order section, has given 25 years of loyal and faithful service, and is popular alike with his associates at the office and the public. His promotion advances him to a supervisory position.

PLANE FAILED TO RETURN FROM MUNICH RAID

Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Smith of Mystic Valley Parkway have been notified by the War Department that the B-24 Liberator Bomber of which their son, Lt. Lucius Smith, Jr., is navigator, had failed to return from the big combined raid of English and Italian based Allied planes over Munich, Germany, and targets far in the interior of that country on July 19.

Lt. Smith, who wears the Air Medal with Oak Leaf Clusters, had previous to the Munich raid completed 42 of the 50 missions which constitute a tour of duty, and recent letters which his parents had received from him spoke of his anticipation of being at home in time to enjoy the World's Series.

He was commissioned in the Army Air Forces last September in Sacramento, Cal. and went overseas in February. He has been attached to the 460 Bomber Group, known as the "Black Panthers", included in the 15th Air Force based in Italy under General Twining.

Following the receipt of the official Army communication Mr. and Mrs. Smith have received several unofficial reports which have encouraged them to believe that their son may after all be ultimately reported as safe.

TWO BREAKS THIS MORNING

There were two breaks on upper Main street last night or early this morning, though in neither case did those who made them get anything for their pains.

Officer Stanley Mullen discovered at 3.45 this morning that some one had broken into the Tydol filling station at 955 Main street, operated by Earl Rice of 53 Madison street, Somerville. A checkup found nothing missing as far as could be learned.

At 6.50 this morning Albert Thorne of 59 Sheridan circle notified Headquarters that some one had evidently attempted to break into the store of Nelile Connors at 883 Main street.

Officer James F. Noonan investigated and found that some one had forced the store bulkhead, but had been unable to get upstairs into the store.

LT. DONAHUE AT SAIPAN

Lt. Fred J. Donahue, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Donahue of Mystic avenue, is reported as stationed with the Allied forces on the Island of Saipan in the Pacific, arriving there on the day of the invasion.

He writes that he is hale and hearty, his worst mishap to date, being stung by a big hornet. He said it was necessary to get into foxholes rather quickly at times. Flies, mosquitoes, ants, lizards and heavy rain are a few of the joys experienced by the boys on Saipan, but apparently they are taking them very much in stride.

SWIMMERS' CLOTHES TAKEN

Five Arlington boys, between the ages of 16 and 18, had the doubtful pleasure of visiting Police Headquarters for their clothes last night after enjoying a swim at Palmer Beach.

Park Supt. Tom McGowan found the quintet at the beach long after the closing hour and simply took their clothes to Headquarters from the Chevrolet roadster in which they had driven to Palmer street.

The boys finally arrived at Headquarters and after having their names taken were given some good advice by Sgt. Thomas F. Cassidy and Supt. McGowan. This done they were given their clothes and permitted to go.

CHAMPIONSHIP SWIMMING MEET SATURDAY

Stars Expected to Compete in Events at Leonard Field Pool

Several of the better known swimming stars, both men and women, have been invited to participate in the sanctioned State championship swimming meet to be staged here tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at Leonard Field pool by the New England Amateur Athletic Union under the auspices of the Boston American-Record and the Winchester Park Department.

This is a real opportunity for Winchester residents to see some good swimming right in the old home town. The NEAAU has staged one or two events here on several occasions previously in connection with local swimming meets, but tomorrow will be the first time an all sanctioned meet has been held here. It is a real tribute to Winchester's Red Cross Swimming Instructor and coach of the Winchester Swimming Club, Helen Jay Carroll, that the NEAAU has consented to put on a big time meet at the local pool, and everyone who can ought to attend. Especially those who have never seen the layout at Leonard Field pool ought to go up just to see what really fine facilities exist there.

In addition to the swimming competition members of the Winchester Swimming Club will do a water ballet; those swimming being Edith Dover, Anna Murray, June Record, Joy Pray, June Moffette, Barbara Donaghey, Helen McGowan, Rose McGowan and Patricia Highland.

Featuring the women's competition is the Massachusetts 440 freestyle championship, in which Dorothy Kendrick of the Metropolitan Swimming Club is expected to provide some stiff competition for such local swimmers as "Edie" Dover, June Moffette, Joy Pray, Anna Murray and June Record.

In the women's NEAAU junior 110 yards backstroke event entries have been received from June Moffette, Joy Pray and Helen McGowan of Winchester and from Mary Rezendes of the Providence Boys' Club Auxiliary. Winchester entries in the women's 50 meter freestyle, which is an open event, include Althea Grace, Barbara Donaghey, Rose McGowan and Edith Dover.

In the 50 meter freestyle for girls 13 and under Coach Carroll, has entered Barbara Young, Mabel Henderson, Veronica Carpenter, Beverly Gay and Virginia Gaffney.

Bob McGrath who has been doing well in championship competition this summer, is Winchester's entry in the men's Massachusetts State 440 yards freestyle championship event. Swimming against him will be John O'Brien of the Bunkerhill Boys' Club, who did well at the recent championship meet in Medford; his teammates, Fred Sullivan and Harry Murphy, Stewart Evans of Newton Y. M. C. A. and William Carver and John Sarson of Brockton High.

Stewart Evans and John Sarson are also entered in the 100 meter freestyle, another open event, with Vincent Barnard of the Olneyville Boys' Club, now in service; and Winchester's Bob Wilson and Mike Gambino. In the 100 meter backstroke, also an open event, entries have been received from Vincent Barnard, William Carver and Francis Moran, the latter of the Bunkerhill Boys' Club.

Three Winchester entrants, Bob McGrath, Tom McGowan and Wellington Burtnett, are swimming in the 50 meter freestyle for boys 13 and under with Richard Wilkins of the Bunkerhill Boys' Club. Entries have already been received from Paul McGowan, John Power and Gordan Foskitt for the 25 yard freestyle for boys 11 and under.

Besides the above entries which had been received the first of the week it is also expected that swimmers from the Wanskuck Boys' Club, Olneyville Boys' Club and Auxiliary, Worcester Boys' Club and Boston Swimming Association will be received.

Members of the Winchester Park Board, Messrs. George T. Davidson, William S. Packer and Fred C. Alexander, will act as honorary referees for the meet.

Coach Carroll has invited a group of well known and capable officials to handle the events. Lawrence J. Johnson of Boston will act as referee and starter, others being James S. McCullough, Brookline; Albert T. Hart, Boston; Robert F. Gould, Boston; Paul B. Richardson, Cambridge; Joseph Watmough, Olneyville Boys' Club, Providence, R. I.; Roy Watmough, Wanskuck Boys' Club, Providence, R. I.; Ben Levias, Boston Swimming Association; Kirby Johnson, USN, Harvard A. A.; Thomas P. McGowan, Robert F. Guild and Louis E. Goddu, the last three named of Winchester.

REUNION IN HAWAII

Three well known Winchester young people had a pleasant reunion in the Hawaiian Islands recently when they met by chance at an officer's dance being held on the Island of Maui.

Warrant Officer Charles Arthur Farrar, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Farrar of Myrtle street, and Miss Marion Bancroft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Raymond Bancroft of Highland avenue, were among the dancers. Both were surprised and pleased to note that the orchestra was being led by Tech. Sgt. Richard Barksdale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon D. Barksdale of Chester street.

Needless to say the trio got together as soon as possible and had a pleasant time talking over Winchester and their mutual friends here. Warrant Officer Farrar is in the Field Artillery while Miss Bancroft is a Red Cross field secretary. Sgt. Barksdale is doing quite a lot of orchestral work in the Army and both "Skitch" and Marion claim he leads a fine band.

HOME HOSPITALITY FOR SERVICE MEN

A committee from the Winton Club under the leadership of Mrs. Clark W. Collins had charge of placing service men in Winchester homes during the month of June. Following is the list of hostesses who entertained boys in June either for the week-end or for Sunday dinner:

Mrs. William A. McLaughlin, Mrs. Thomas F. Cassidy, Mrs. William L. Davis, Mrs. Charles W. Morrill, Mrs. Lyman B. Smith, Mrs. Leslie A. Tucker, Mrs. George M. DeCamp, Mrs. George A. During the month of July the Women's Republican Club had charge of placing the service men. Mrs. Chester F. Wolfe was chairman with Mrs. Roger M. Burgoyne as co-chairman. The hostesses for July are as follows:

Mrs. John M. Kingman, Mrs. Stanley D. Howe, Mrs. Raymond C. Strawbridge, Mrs. W. Dudley Cotton, Mrs. Gerald R. Barrett, Mrs. Richard T. Morey, Mrs. Frederick L. Hicks, Mrs. William A. Cassidy, Mrs. Chester F. Wolfe, Mrs. Alfred G. Nelson, Mrs. John K. Converse, Mrs. Whitelaw Wright, Mrs. John Carruthers, Mrs. William C. Cusack.

Recently the number of men to be placed has increased and as many of the hostesses keep having their guests come back to visit them as long as they are in this vicinity, it becomes increasingly hard to find homes for the new boys to visit.

Consequently the committee would like to have additional names to add to its list of hostesses whom they may call. Mrs. Charles A. Underwood, representing the Florence Crittenton League, is chairman for the month of August. If anyone would like to try entertaining servicemen for a week-end or for Sunday dinner, or for a mid-week evening, please call Mrs. Underwood at Win. 2302-M. It really means a great deal to the men to get away and have a bit of home life when they are far from their homes.

FORMER WINCHESTER GIRL HONORED

In announcing its 1941 awards "to leaders in agricultural and rural life", the University of Connecticut at Storrs, Conn., last week included a former Winchester girl as one of two thus cited for this year. The award of interest was given Mrs. Philip H. Jones of Shelton, well known and remembered by a host of Winchester friends as the former Joan Newell. She received the award together with William Curtis of Bridgewater.

The purpose of the honorary recognition is to signalize outstanding devotion and fruitful service by men and women who have made noteworthy contributions to agriculture and rural life in Connecticut. Mrs. Jones received the award at the State Farm and Home Week, Aug. 2.

In commemorating the event, the University printed the following in its souvenir distributed for the occasion:

Mrs. Philip H. Jones was born Joan Newell at Winchester, Mass., March 10, 1891. She was educated in the Winchester grade schools and high school and later attended the Bishop-Thorpe School in Bethlehem, Penna., and Miss Fisher's Kindergarten Training School at Boston.

Before marriage she taught for two years in settlement houses of the New York Kindergarten Association. She also served on post graduate studies with the association Aug. 18, 1911, she was married to Philip H. Jones and went to live on a 300 acre dairy farm at Shelton, Conn.

Since coming to live on a Connecticut farm Mrs. Jones has been an enthusiastic supporter of all progressive movements in agriculture, homemaking and civic affairs. During World War I she co-operated in Extension Schools, canning projects, 4-H Club work and various other war-time programs. Since that time she has been leader of local projects, director-at-large in the Farm Bureau, chairman of the County 4-H Club Committee, and prominent in home economics projects.

Mrs. Jones has also played a prominent part in the work of the Connecticut State Farm Bureau Federation, Inc., and has served as a director. She has represented Connecticut as a delegate to the American Farm Bureau Federation convention. In 1938 she won first prize in the state speaking contest sponsored by the Associated Women of the A. F. B. F. She has been Home and Community Chairman for the state farm bureau federation and is a member of the State Agricultural Planning Committee and of a sub-committee on post war agricultural plans.

In the civic affairs of her town and community Mrs. Jones has always been active. One of her first ventures on moving to Shelton was to organize a Sunday School in the Episcopal Church near her home. For several years, she helped conduct Americanization classes for foreign born women. She has been senior president of the Derby Chapter of the C. A. R. and has for three years been state president of the C. A. R. She has led a troop of Brownies for five years and has served on the council of the Derby-Shelton Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Jones is the mother of two sons and two daughters. In 1942 the Jones family received the Gimbel National Award as a "typical American family."

Bay of Fundy Tides

The famous Bay of Fundy tides are, even under normal conditions, the greatest in the world, the average variation along the Noel shore being 44.3 feet. The Noel shore sees the highest tides due to the fact that Copequid bay receives the fullest force of the tides. The bay opens onto the Minas basin and tides pouring into the basin from the Bay of Fundy through the Minas channel surge into the smaller bay and can go no farther. To a somewhat lesser degree the same thing holds true for the narrow, easterly part of the Minas basin where the Avon and Cornwallis rivers empty into the basin.

STEVENSON—DOBBINS

A marriage of Winchester interest took place at the North Congregational Church in North Woburn on Sunday afternon, Aug. 6, when Miss Marjorie Taylor Dobbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Dobbins of Pearl street, Woburn, became the bride of Clarence O. Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Stevenson of Hemingway street. Rev. Elton Kennedy Bassett, pastor of the church, officiated at the 4 o'clock ceremony, and the bridal music was played by Mrs. Dorothy Simons. J. Raymond Graham, tenor, sang "I Love You Truly", "At Dawning", and "Because". White gladiolas, ferns and candles made a most attractive setting.

Miss Dobbins was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of traditional white satin, having a v-shaped neckline of net outlined with seed pearls, long full sleeves and a full skirt extending in to a train. Her fingertip veil of tulle was caught to a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses and babies' breath.

Mrs. Thelma Baker of Woburn was her sister's honor attendant, and the bridesmaids were Miss Virginia Harper, Miss Virginia Bergerson, Miss Clara Kyser and Miss Beulah Priestly all of Woburn.

Mrs. Baker wore a dress of white net with matching skullcap and carried a bouquet of red roses. The bridesmaids wore dresses of white, having jersey bodices and full skirts of net. They too wore skullcaps to match their dresses and carried mixed bouquets.

Clarence E. Stevenson of this town was best man, and the usher corps included Bertram Gurley and John Stevenson of this town and John McHugh and Clarence Kelly, both of Woburn.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors, and it is of interest that among the guests was the bridegroom's brother, Pvt. William H. Stevenson, Jr., who came home from his station with the Quartermaster Corps at Fort Bragg, N. C. Another brother, Franklyn Stevenson, seaman, first class, USNR, was unable to attend, being on sea duty somewhere in the Pacific area.

Upon their return from a wedding journey through the White Mountains, Mr. Stevenson and his bride will make their home in Woburn at 6 Buel place.

The bride is a graduate of Woburn High School and of Malden Commercial College. She is employed as a stenographer at the Raytheon plant in Waltham. Mr. Stevenson, a graduate of Winchester High School, is associated with Arnold Fisher, florist of Woburn.

A RED CROSS INVITATION

Some day when everything borders on the "drab" and you feel the need of some real inspiration to set you right and bring out the highlights of life, drop in at the Winchester Town Hall where you will find the door wide open during working hours, and there view a cheerful gathering of some of the first ladies of our town, in uniform attire making red cross surgical dressings which are so much needed at the front to relieve suffering and save life.

These workers give freely of their time and are happy in the knowledge that they are doing their bit to further the cause and bring about a hard earned victory.

Theirs is a service born of devotion patriotism and a love for humanity; the one reward they seek is the satisfaction of knowing that a patriotic duty has been cheerfully performed.

If any one asks you what you want just smile; they will understand.

As you leave the cool spacious auditorium, the temporary quarters for these busy workers, you will carry with you the mental picture of a noble work, nobly done and your mental attitude will have soared to a point where you can see the sun which is beginning to break through the clouds and you will go on your way rejoicing.

LITTLE THEATRE PREMIERE

SONS OF ITALY NEWS

Here we go again boys. It's been some time since you last heard from us. We are sorry but it couldn't be helped as you fellows were not giving us enough news. Apparently some of you forget that this is your column. That it is dependent upon your contributions in the form of letters. With lodge activities at a standstill during the summer months it has been impossible to dig up enough news to make a column. We shall try in the future not to let you fellows down if you will try to do the same for us.

We were all quite pleased to find Jim Figlioli in our midst once even if only for a short time. As you know we have been expecting him for quite some time. Jim, who was decorated while in the Pacific Theater of war, has lost some of the excess weight he used to carry around. On him it looks good, or should I say it looks good not on him. (Corny gag No. 00764) Jim says for you guys to hurry up home, the corner is awful dead.

Billy Fulzano has been discharged and is having quite a time renewing old acquaintances. He say this gas rationing sure cramps a fellow's style.

A very welcome letter was received from Frank Provinzano in which he tells of meeting Gabe Vespucci in England. He tells of knowing the whereabouts of other home towners but was not successful in making arrangements to meet any of them. Says he enjoyed a pleasant stay in England and looks forward to the same "somewhere in France."

Jumbo Marrone (the new bridegroom) says he's enjoying the company of his two Indian pitchers Chubby Dean and Pete Scutis.

Dom Guarino sent a card on his arrival back in Camp Devens. More about this brother when he gets home and we get a chance to interview him. Yup! Going big time now.

We no longer just talk to them, we interview them.

Tony Gilberti sent a card apologizing for not having written sooner, and to show he meant it we received a letter also. He is now in Oklahoma from where he sends his regards to all the brothers. He also wants to make sure the Star reaches him at his new address. I wonder whether that or his conscience was responsible for the letter.

Well boys, Rugged Maraco has added another feat to his list of accomplishments. He now writes left handed and pretty good too, in fact I can read his left hand writing faster than my own notes after they've gone cold. We all hope you recuperate quickly Rugged. Oh yes, I almost forgot to mention that he put the blast on this column and brother what a blast O. K. fellow we shall endeavor to always have a column. Rugged would appreciate hearing from some of the boys. His address is Sgt. G. Maraco 11087292, Base Hosp., Ward D, D. A. A. F. Douglas, Arizona.

Al DeMinico is quite pleased, as through this column he received a letter from Mary Tucci and she has kept him pretty well informed. Maybe if Mary wrote us one of those very interesting and informative letters we would be just as appreciative. How about it Mary. By the way, Mary isn't there another member of your family named Anita? If she still knows how to write you can't prove it by us. Al also says he's playing softball and beat the Marines twice, three Navy teams and the C. B.'s once. They have lost two so far.

Capt. Barone tells of meeting Ralph Guarino in France and G. Vespucci in England. Just to put you straight Captain we had quite a number of Winchester boys who landed in France on D-Day. It was great to hear from you, let's hear again soon.

Here we are back to Gabe Vespucci. As in everything he ever does, Gabe has been quite thorough in his communications with us. He has an interesting letter which I shall tell you fellows about later as space is limited.

Sam Corbi was home on furlough this week. He is quite pleased with the life so far.

Al Subrizio is enjoying a brief furlough with his family. He has a son now you know.

So long fellows, see you next week.

What you didn't see your name? That's probably because I didn't receive your letter.

FORD GOLF WINNER

Horace Ford had a 57 to win the best selected 15 holes golf tournament with three-quarter handicap, at the Winchester Country Club last Saturday afternoon. Ralph Bonnell had a 60 for second money and Alfred Bond a 62 for third.

In the Class B division, which was 15 up, W. Ferguson's 60 was the best figure, with G. Pacetti and C. Lee having 62's.

METHODIST MEN'S CLUB OUTING

Last Saturday afternoon the members, friends and families of the Sherman M. Hodge Men's Club, took a trip to Hood's Cherry Hill Farm at North Beverly for their first annual outing. The visit to this farm was an educational feature for young and old, as well as affording the usual social spirit for a group of this kind.

Headed by Dr. Arthur E. Fay, the bacteriologist for H. P. Hood and Sons, the group immediately went on a tour of inspection of the farm. Cleanliness and very rigid sanitary features were outstanding everywhere.

The pasteurization plant alone was certainly of interest to the older people, while the children delighted in seeing the cows being milked by the electric milker. One of the outstanding features at this farm and of particular interest this time of year, is the very large number of electric fly killers. Every door and window is screened with a charged wire mesh, which kills the flys instantly on contact, one really enjoys watching it work.

The unusual torrid weather kept most of the group under the trees where it really was quite comfortable, but some of the men and boys (and a couple of girls) played a game of soft ball. In this game Chester Koontz, president of the club sure "went to town" both in pitching and batting, while Ralph Hatch of course showed his old form in taking them off the bat. Harris Heverly, the new minister of the church, showed that he likes to play ball, and he sure can play.

The picnic grounds are well equipped for all forms of entertainment. Being located on top of a hill overlooking plenty of countryside, it also afforded wonderful inspiration for an artist in the group. Miss Edna Sherman, a visitor from North Tonawanda, N. Y., took the opportunity and rendered a beautiful water color of the surrounding scenery. There was even a place to play horseshoes. This game was played by three "third or fourth raters" with Howard Wittet, the same "Foul-line Wittet of the famous P. B. H. A. Two games were played, but had it not been for Mr. Wittet, the second game would have lasted well into the evening. However, there were possibilities in the other three, Alonzo Nicholas, Lew Curtis and Fred Dodge. Maybe some day this group will be able to "take 'em" some of those P. B. H. A. boys! Anyway it is food for thought.

Well to get back to the outing, the ladies were there, too. And when we speak of the women-folk we naturally think of eats. It was intended to be a basket lunch arrangement, but these women just couldn't see it that way. The result was an elaborate banquet with plenty of everything, and Hood's milk to drink.

Needless to say, this outing was a success and it proves that the old "picnic spirit" is not lost completely.

IMMACULATES LOST TO BENEDICTINES

Although he lost his game, 8-3, Guy Washburn, Winchester High right-hander pitched good ball for the Immaculate Conception All Stars last Sunday afternoon against the Benedictines of Somerville on the Woburn High School diamond.

The Benedictines brought a first-class team to Woburn, including two or three all scholastics. They have been over-powering most pitchers they have faced, yet they got only seven hits off Washburn who fanned 15 and was the individual star of the Immaculates in their losing cause.

"CASEYS" LOST AT WOBURN

Dan O'Donnell's K. of C. softball team found the Cannon-Neelon Paper Hangers of Woburn too good last Sunday, dropping two games to the tanning city boys in Woburn, 12-7 and 6-0.

Dan didn't have much of a club to toss in with the experienced Paper Hangers and on the whole his boy did well enough. He is promising better things this week end when the teams are expected to meet again. There are some good soft ball players in Winchester and Mr. O'Donnell better round them up if he hopes to take "Joe" O'Brien's outfit.

Winchester's one and-only, Ed McKenzie umpired last Sunday's game, and needless to say was in several jams with Mr. O'Brien, who is not one to take kindly to decisions affecting his club adversely. "Joe" got exactly nowhere with Mack, who calls them as he sees them, or doesn't see them, without fear or favor, let the chips fall where they may.

O'Donnell shifted his lineup around in an effort to provide strength. Among those who played for the "Caseys" were Ralph and Bob Del Grosso, Francis Tansey, Harry Chefalo, Mex Kelley, Mitch Mawn, Collins, Flowers, Gibbons and Ralph Coakley, Jr., a Woburn boy who filled in.

For Cannon Neelon, O'Brien, Haggerty, Jimmy of the Times; Altavesta, Packard, Stokes, Mooney, Mahoney, Gaffney, Dunningan and Ralph Coakley were in the lineup. Those who saw the games seemed thoroughly to enjoy them, especially Mack's verbal tilts with Joe 'Cronin" O'Brien.

Daily as the tempo of the fighting increases in the European area, and as United States troops become more deeply involved, we at home must expect those heart-sickening reports of Winchester boys among the ever-growing casualty lists. Already there are many parents in town whose sons are wounded, invalided, missing or definitely lost to them through death in their country's service. Theirs is of course the heaviest burden, and yet it is one which all of us, who know these splendid young war casualties, can and do share. There may be a measure of comfort for the sorrowing parents in that. Nor can there be any doubt that the sympathy of the community is heartfelt and sincerely offered. No one could have known these fine young men and not feel very deeply the tragedy of what is happening to them and to those closest to them.

"The union attorney said the NLRB is to hold a strike poll at the plant on Saturday but he said that 'no matter how the poll turns out' the strike would be called.

"There is nothing in the Smith-Connolly act," he declared 'that forces the union to abide by the decision of the NLRB's strike poll.'

"The union will hold a special meeting Saturday night, he said, at which final plans for the strike and the throwing of the picket lines around the plant will be completed."

The strike news continues with unvarying monotony, and although the nation is now straining every endeavor in the midst of a war greater than the world has ever known, the strikes continue daily and hourly. This feature of present-day America is nothing new. It took the New Deal but a few months in power before they started, and it certainly has looked ever since as though these strikes had nothing but a green light waved in front of them. From a demand for ice cream to the firing of an office boy, excuses—if such are needed, are used. All the so-called machinery set up by the new Deal has availed little if at all in checking this blight. Seldom if ever do we read of any decision made by government agencies adverse to the strikers. Penalties are nil. The attitude is strike and you get it—at least some of it if not all. And rather than subsiding they seem to be rolling along as fast as our tanks and armor in Europe. It had been anticipated that these strikes would diminish as election approaches; that the unions would lay off and give the New Deal a chance to again smooth over the voters' ears by letbygones be bygones, but whether these Americans have got out of control or whether they feel they now have the upper hand, we do not know. When our army is called upon to take over transportation in a great city; when it is "felt advisable" that it take over a great trucking industry, and when strikes and threatened strikes are seen on all sides, it seems a poor time to compel companies to collect union dues, discharge colored workers or reinstate lazy loafers. But as nothing ever happens on the Union side it is tacticly admitted that all is well, and given time all will be forgotten. We read long, long ago that our great President cried that he would never give up his social gains, war or no war, and the new tactics now being opened, calling for extended social security and greater benefits for all, seem to be in keeping with this plan. The strikes continue, but the cry is greater and greater social benefits, and the idea seems to be that if these big grants are given there will be no need of strikes. But thus far even the strikers seem to have no faith in the "deal," for the strikes continue. Whether the fighting soldiers are with this home front or not we do not know. Their return in our opinion is the only hope left for an America free for enterprise and labor. Meanwhile those who are on the home front and who have watched the New Deal's endeavor to remake America, and who do not like it, are not required to vote for it this fall. Those who think it is swell and want to go along with it, have our sympathy—now and for the future.

ENEMY IN TOWN

To the Editor of the Star:

For the second time this year an enemy has entered our beautiful town.

I am referring to that insignificant but most destructive little pest, the elm tree beetle. It is up to the Tree Warden and Selectmen of the town to dispose of the mischief-makers.

One has only to walk along Cambridge street and look at the tops of the elm trees to see the destructive work he is doing, riddling the leaves with holes so that they soon turn brown and are blown away.

Please be on the alert before it is too late!

Sincerely,

B. L. B.

MOSQUITOES AND WINTER POND

Aug. 6, 1944

To the Editor of the Star:

Your editorial in last week's Star, with reference to the mosquito situation was timely—but

We do not need a Committee, nor a Sherlock Holmes, to discover where most, or at least a major portion, of the pests which infest our fair town, now originate and hibernate.

We already have a Committee, or a Commission, or some sort of official body which "investigated," "studied", or otherwise deduced regarding the most question of what became of the water in Winter Pond—or is it ponds? As I recall their astute deductions, liberally aired in the Star at their conclusion, they were going to divert some brooks or otherwise turn some additional natural drainage into these once pretty bodies of water. To date, judging by the results and activities (???) it's a visa-versa procedure. The water still is doing a disappearing act.

Before the advent of the Great White Father; the I-Know-Everything Bureaucrat; the Everyone's-a-Boob except-those in public office boys; the advent of "Commissions", "Committees," "Planners", "Engineers" and what-not now deemed necessary to dot an i or cross a t, we once had in New England, and of course here in Winchester, what was known as common-ordinary hoss-sense. This with our former Yankee ingenuity, coupled with a spirit of do-it-now, used to get things done—and well. In fact, as I recall it, our forefathers (and also a lot of the older of the present generation) built up quite a reputation, supported by a record of things accomplished, for New Englanders as a sensible, a resourceful and a get-things-done people.

Now, I am not an "engineer"; I can't read blueprints (which present day planners seem to think absolutely necessary before they can move or install a couple of sidewalk bricks) but I am familiar with a few fundamentals which even the New Deal, and all the things it, and other present-day dilly-dallying civic governments have "discovered," can't change.

These, I submit, can't be questioned or changed even by the deliberations and deductions of our modern "to-Hell with common sense procedure, we must do it the modern way" deducers, planners, engineers and so-called experts. These are:

1. Water still runs down hill, even despite the "discoveries" of engineering school graduates, theorists, planners, commissions, committees, etc.

2. Vegetation still absorbs moisture (i. e. water) and it follows, the more vegetation, the more water absorption.

3. Mosquitoes love to breed (and do) in swampy, stagnant, gooey places such as the northerly side of Winter Pond has been for two long years, and which the southerly side is now partially, and fast is becoming more so.

Thus, we arrive at some ordinary hoss-sense (probably termed quaint and unmodern by those who must plan with blueprints and "experts") conclusions which I submit, are quite probably true. Of course the hoss-sense method doesn't provide for the employment—and continued employment—of guys drawing blueprints or of canceling political obligations by getting some pouter-pigeon gentleman appointed on a Commission or a Committee so he can get his name in the paper and his wife can snoot the wife of the guy who didn't. But it has—and it still can—get things done.

Our quaint, and thrown to the planners and the politicians to be hooted down as old-fashioned, hoss-sense conclusions are as follows:

1. Based on the testimony of some of our older (and probably therefore more senile and stupid residents) Winter Pond (or ponds) quite frequently used to wander over Woodside road, when the water that drained in to them through the foresight of Nature, was more than their banks could contain.

2. The water hasn't done this since

Below Their Level—we started taking water from artesian wells to augment the supply necessary to clean our carcasses and furnish chasers for Cocoa Cola.

3. Thus, by our hoss-sense method of deduction, we arrive at the fact that the wells probably had something to do with the original disappearance of the water, despite "engineers" to the contrary. Facts usually are sounder than theories and water still runs down hill.

4. It rains quite frequently in Winchester and it snows here in the winter—sometimes quite hard and quite fast. Pools accumulate and the level of other bodies of water rise. But not Winter Pond (or ponds). Seems to us that anyone who has seen a sponge or a piece of blotting paper doesn't need a blueprint to arrive at the remarkable answer to that one. Winter Pond (or ponds) are now almost completely filled with vegetation, some of it as thick as the proverbial forest-primeval, perhaps not as tall, but growing thicker every day.

5. Their lurks your mosquito-breeding places and there is the perfect answer to the fundamental fact that if you don't pour enough water over a sponge to exceed its absorption limits, you'll never see any of the water. It will be inside the sponge; i. e. the vegetation.

A lot of Winchester folks, who still like the common, old-fashioned (???) hoss-sense method of procedure, would like to see what would happen if—

A bulldozer and a gang of men dropped into the northerly end of Winter Pond (or ponds) some morning and scooped out the vegetation and carted it away and then the Winter Pond Committee, or whatever it is, started their brooks or what-have you they are to "divert", dumping water in there. With the vegetation out (and if some one says "phooey this guy is a dreamer" we respectfully ask him or his committee to amble up and take a look at the accomplishments of the resident by the pond who has removed — permanently — the growth from a section of the pond near his home and has a nice clean bottom there waiting arrival of the water. (Can he live that long?)

With the vegetation out the pond would fill as it used to fill before the wells sucked enough of the water out, and an unusual drouth allowed the vegetation to get a sufficient start three summers ago so that the water never had a chance to fill and kill it again.

Rains and winter snows try to replenish the pond, as they did before the vegetation got its drouth-time start, but before rainfalls got normal again the vegetation had too much of a start.

Clear that vegetation out, and, hoss-sense tells us, you'll accomplish the remarkable feat (in these times) of one job-holder or planner or somepin' killing two birds with one stone.

You'll get a pretty pond back to the status of a pond and you'll remove the source of the breeding and continued propagation, of a majority of the mosquitoes which are now pestering all of us in New England's best town.

Doc Hoss-Sense and His Cronies.

BLANKET POSTPONEMENT OF DRAFTEES LIFTED

The Local Selective Service Board has been advised, as have all boards in Massachusetts, that, effective immediately, blanket postponements of induction for all men between the ages of 26 and 38 years of age, in effect in Massachusetts since the middle of April, are being lifted to permit the induction of registrants in the above age group who are not engaged in some essential activity, and of which the Local Board has been completely advised by the employer. The blanket postponements of induction have been lifted in order to resume inductions by classification and order a number of men engaged in non-essential activities.

When the Selective Service System in April adopted a policy of selection and induction by age groups occasioned by the urgent need by the armed forces for physically fit younger men, capable of the highest degree of efficiency under combat conditions, registrants in the upper age brackets, from 26 to 38 years, had their inductions postponed temporarily in order that the Local Boards might concentrate on the reclassification and induction of men under the age of 26 in order to fulfill the immediate requirements of the armed forces. At the same time new regulations were adopted which would release large numbers of the younger physically fit men for men in the older age groups who were engaged in war production or in support of the National health, safety and interest.

The regulations on occupational deferments provide that no registrant between the ages of 18 and 25 inclusive may be deferred on occupational grounds unless the State Director in the State in which the registrant is employed makes an individual exception and recommends to registrant's board that he qualifies under the very limited and rigid policies governing the deferment of men in this age bracket. For the most part, relatively few exceptions have been made and then only for men in the highest technical and professional fields where their services might jeopardize some important project directly connected with the war effort.

Men between the ages of 26 and 29, in order to qualify for occupational deferment, must be "necessary to and regularly engaged in" activities in war production, or in support of the National health, safety and interest. Men between the ages of 30 and 38 need only be "regularly engaged in" some one of the above activities to warrant occupational deferment.

This change in regulations is brought about by the serious indications that many men in the upper age brackets who have been engaged in essential activities have been being lulled into a sense of false security and are leaving their jobs in war production to engage in some non-essential activity which appears to offer some post-war opportunity, while the need for these men and their skills is urgent in other lines of production. Little consideration will be given at this time to the deferment of registrants otherwise available for military service, who leave essential for non-essential activities or to those registrants who fail to keep their Local Board advised as to their occupations or whose employers fail to advise the Board of the nature and essentiality of the employment of a registrant.

OPA NEWS

Car Pooling Program Underway

OPA's new program to step up the efficiency of car pooling is now in effect and local War Price and Rationing Boards in Massachusetts will refuse to issue full supplemental rations for home to work driving to automobile owners who have not formed a full car club. Instead, boards are issuing only enough gasoline for 30 days to drivers who do not have full ride-sharing arrangements.

During the 30 day period, all applicants who lack sufficient riders will be expected to recruit their car clubs to full strength. The mileage rationing regulations require home to work drivers to carry three riders, in addition to the driver, in order to qualify for supplemental mileage. Those who meet this qualification within the 30 day period will be granted full three month rations by their local boards. The kind of car club OPA wishes to encourage by this policy is that in which the members rotate the use of cars, ride together, and leave at home cars that would otherwise be using up gasoline, rubber and parts.

Ration Points Same to Aug. 13

July ration point value charts for meats, fats and for processed foods will remain in use at least until Aug. 13. The 16 point value for one pound of butter, established on July 23, continues in effect. Point value charts normally require two weeks for printing and for distribution to the nation's 60,000 food retailers. The extension was planned to allow for full consideration of possible changes in the meat supply and its effect on rationing.

Emergency Tire Board for Massachusetts

Because of a drastic reduction in the number of large-size truck and bus tires available in Massachusetts for rationing during August, all ration certificates will be issued by one emergency truck tire board in Boston. The August quota is too low to permit dividing the tires among all the rationing boards as in the past, the OPA explained. Local boards will continue to accept applications for large size truck tires (all tires with a cross section measurement of 8.25 inches or larger), and will forward approved applications to the emergency board.

Restaurants to Post 10 Items

Massachusetts restaurants must post a list of 10 basic food items and prices by Aug. 16, Local War Price and Rationing Boards will distribute to all restaurants an OPA poster with 10 blank spaces for posting. The ceiling price of hot coffee will be fixed at five cents per pot or cup including cream and sugar, unless a restaurant can show it charged more in October, 1942.

Red Point Bargain

Farm or country butter continues at eight red points a pound, making it a good point bargain in contrast to creamery butter now selling for 16 points. OPA explained the difference in point value as an attempt to check the buying of creamery butter as the demand was running ahead of the supply. On the other hand, butter churned at home will not only stretch the red points of the neighboring housewife who buys it, but will help stretch our total butter supply.

DOUBLE COLLISION

Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock a Pontiac coach owned and driven by Faith M. Foley of Parker street, Wilmington, while headed west on Forest street, was in collision with a Ford truck, owned by the International Cooperage Company of Swanton street, and driven north on Washington street by Carmen R. Tofuri of 4 Summer street. After this first collision the Pontiac continued for about 50 feet across the sidewalk and collided with a Hudson coach, owned by Mrs. Priscilla S. Shaw and parked in the yard of the Socony Filling Station at the corner of Forest and Washington streets. All three machines were damaged but only Miss Foley was injured. She sustained an abrasion of the forehead, for which she was treated at the Winchester Hospital.

K. OF C. SOFTBALLERS AT WOBURN

Danny O'Donnell will take his K. of C. soft ball team to Woburn again this Sunday afternoon for a return game with the Cannon Neelon club. "Joe" O'Brien's paperhangers were away too good for the Knights last Sunday and Danny is out for revenge. He is promising to have a good team ready for action this week, and he will need one as Cannon Neelon is no pushover.

The Star has been unable to verify the report that Mack will umpire the game, but the chances are he will, if he is on hand, he being the only arbiter around able to keep Joe "Cronin" O'Brien, or any of the other players for that matter, in his place.

Soul is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in The Mother Church The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and in all of its branches on Sunday, Aug. 13.
The Golden Text. My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from him. is from Psalms 62:5. Other Bible citations include, The Lord is my portion, saith my soul; therefore will I hope in him. It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord. Let us search and try our ways, and turn again to the Lord (Lamentations 3:24,26, 40).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy. Dost thou love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind? This command includes much, even the surrender of all merely material sensation, affection, and worship. This is the 2d Dorcas of Christianity It involves the Science of life, and recognizes only the divine control of Spirit, in which Soul is our master, and material sense and human will have no place (p. 9).

FRENCH INVASION COAST. VANNES

Vannes, near Brittany's southwest coast, which has fallen before the Allied sweep across the Breton peninsula, was an ancient stronghold in Caesar's day and resisted his legions, says the National Geographic Society.
The small modern city has been built around old fortifications and towers of the original hill town. Like many a Breton community it is located on the estuary of a river A mile below the city, the Vannes empties into the island-dotted waters of the Gulf of Morbihan.
Vannes is the capital of the Department of Morbihan and is an important railway junction and manufacturing town. Its prewar population of over 17,000 was largely engaged in such industries as tanning and cotton-weaving; in the manufacture of rope and lace. In spite of a shallow river port that was closed to large vessels, Vannes has maintained shipyards and iron works.
The contrast is striking between the modern city with its port, public buildings, museum and squares, and the old town believed to be among the most ancient of all towns in Brittany. On the banks of the old moat are wash houses where the women of the town daily assemble to turn out the family washing. The high roofs of many old houses appear to be tiredly leaning against the roofs of their neighbors.
In early centuries the Veneti, a powerful sea-faring Celtic tribe, inhabited the town and so strongly fortified their capital that they were able to hold Roman legions in check for over half a century. After Vannes was captured, the Romans made it the hub point for six roads fanning out to other parts of Brittany.

Ingersoll's Fine Tribute

Probably the quotation to the effect that a man would sleep under a mound of flowers were each good deed a blossom is the one from Robert Ingersoll's address at the grave of his brother. He added to the sum of his remarks and were every one for whom he did some loving service to bring a rose sure to his grave he would sleep tonight beneath a wilderness of flowers.

Franklin Originator

The great French revolutionary watchword, "ca ira," is said to owe its origin to Benjamin Franklin, the words being his cheerful reply during our War of the Revolution, to a query about the new republic's chances of success in that struggle.

Napoleon Ate Too Fast

Napoleon was a fast eater and this habit of eating fast and carelessly is commonly supposed to have paralyzed him on two of the most critical occasions of his life, at the battles of Borodino and Leipsic.

Discovered Lake Michigan

Jean Nicolet is credited with being the first white man to navigate Lake Michigan. Sent west by Champlain on a voyage of exploration, he threaded his way in a birch canoe from Georgian bay through the Straits of Mackinac and thus discovered Lake Michigan in the summer of 1634.

MISS LILLIAN ISABELLE PRATT

An Appreciation

Miss Lillian Isabelle (Belle) Pratt, who passed away last week in Swampscott had been a non-resident of Winchester in recent years, but her love for her home church, her old friends and her native town endured to the end.
From childhood until her death at three score years and ten her unselfishness and devotion to duty were outstanding and her chief joy came from ministering to others.
Her friends will never forget her untiring devotion to her father and uncle during their declining years, especially as she was carrying heavy business responsibilities at the same time with characteristic fidelity.
Then came a period of failing health and enforced idleness and now she has entered into rest.
"She hath done what she could"—"Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

EMERGENCY!

Donald Nelson WPB Chairman States (7 15 44) "Waste Paper of all kinds is the most critical raw material today."

SAVE EVERY PIECE (Including Basket Waste)

PACK IT DOWN TIGHT Lay it in a box as flat as you can and tread it down every time you add to it.

TIE IT WELL Tie Magazines and Newspapers as usual flat, unfolded.

Question: Why must paper be packed tight and tied so well?

Answer: Packed tight to save shipping space. Tied well to save labor in handling at the trucks, the car and in the mills. It saves manpower all around.

Our Question to You

Will You Do Your Best?

Note: We will know your answer when the truck comes for your paper.

NEW STACK IN PLACE AT LAUNDRY

Riggers set the new smokestack in place at the Winchester Laundry plant last Sunday afternoon, it taking about four hours to complete the entire job and set the 105 ft. stack in place.

The lower 35 feet of the stack extends into the laundry boiler-room and it was the upper 70 feet of pipe that was interesting to watch being put in place. This section was placed and bolted down in about one hour and a half.

When the old pipe was cut through with acetylene torches and swung through by the big boom it struck against the lower stump of the stack and the entire immediate landscape was blotted out with soot. Even the firemen, watching the job from the Central Station across the way, were impressed and they are of course quite used to heavy smoke and soot.

BRITISH WAR RELIEF

Robot bombs destroying homes, more than 20,000 homes, and damaging homes, more than 200,000. The news takes just a line of print, but when a woman sets her imagination to work on that line, and turns it into houses which she knows, in Boston, and Newburyport and Portland, she is glad if there is something she can do right here in her safe Winchester home for English homes and hospitals. And there is. Old sheets and pillow cases, any soft white or near-white cotton, can become hospital squares.

Mrs. Cornelia Lindstrom doesn't stop this thrifty work of mercy and it takes pounds of worn articles every month. Yes, it was hot a good many days in June and July, but even so, Mrs. Lindstrom made and sent 1746 of her hospital squares for Britain.

Worn cotton may be brought to Mrs. Lindstrom any Tuesday in Epiphany parish hall, and any day a package marked with her name or B. W. R. and left inside a door of the parish house will soon be turned to use and started overseas.

BURNING TAR CAUSED HEAVY SMOKE

Heavy smoke from a burning tar kettle at the rear of the business block at the corner of Swanton and Washington streets caused many to believe a fire of major proportions was in progress there at 12.45 Monday afternoon.

Tar was being heated in the kettle by workmen of Ralph Ciampa of 56 Broadway, Somerville, who were fixing the roof of Violante's Garage on Swanton street behind Purtle's Pharmacy. The fire spread from the the burning kettle to an old unused car and truck in the yard, but aside from this did little damage.

A big crowd was attracted by the dense smoke and the area had to be roped off, Patrolman William E. Cassidy and Motorcycle Officer Irving Reardon taking care of traffic.

ENGINE BLEW CYCLINDER HEAD

A through train on the main line of the Boston and Maine Railroad was held up for about 45 minutes Sunday night shortly before 9 o'clock, coming to a stop just south of the Cross street bridge in the Highlands.

The engine blew a cyclinder, making a terrific noise and incapacitating it. The engine was uncoupled and run onto a siding, a new one being sent out from the North Station. Meanwhile the passengers so minded had an excellent chance to view the nearby swimming setup at Leonard Field Beach. Had the accident occurred Saturday night some of the travelers might well have sampled the water themselves.

PAPER BOY KNOCKED FROM WHEEL

John Reynolds, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Reynolds of Brookside avenue, while delivering papers on Chisholm road Monday evening, was knocked from his bicycle which was struck by another bike on which two boys were riding down the hill.

Reynolds got the name of one of the boys and his parents reported the matter to the Police. Officer James E. Farrell interviewed the parents of the boy who had the other bicycle, telling them of the regulation which does not permit two persons to ride on a single machine. The father of the boy involved agreed to see the Reynolds boy's parents about the damage done the paper boy's bike.

TWO FIRES TUESDAY

The Fire Department answered two alarms on Tuesday, the first coming in at 11.25 for a fire in the woods near Fallons, off Chisholm road.

At 1 p. m. a fire suddenly broke out among some burlap bags on a moving truck which had stopped for the traffic lights in the square on Main street headed north at the junction of Mt. Vernon street. The firemen made quick work of the fire which aside from destroying two or three of the bags, did little damage. Careless smoking was blamed by the firemen for the trouble.

The truck was owned by Abraham Spilling of 44 Dwight street, Boston, and driven by Artie Wilson of 34 Emerald street, that city.

Nation's Many Divisions

Ancient Greece had no national flag since it was divided into many separate kingdoms. The standard of Attica bore a white war horse; that of the Corinthians, the winged horse; the Lacedemonians, the letter L; that of the Thracians, a death head; that of the Thessalonians, the immortal sorrel horse Xanthes; that of the Messenians the letter M.

Look! Listen! Live!

Too many automobile drivers apparently can't see danger, even though their eyes are wide open, when they are approaching a railroad crossing.

If you think that reads like a riddle, what else does the actual accident shown here mean to you? Here's the report on it:

The driver's view of the crossing was clear and unobstructed for a distance of three miles. Flashing light signals warned of the approach of a train.

But the driver, with two passengers drove onto the crossing. Result: Two occupants of the car killed, one injured, car wrecked and train delayed.

The surviving passenger of the car said the three were sober and were not drowsy from tiredness—but had been talking.

In other words, distraction of the driver by conversation with passengers blinded him to deadly danger, even though his eyesight was good.

The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these accidents which every day delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a shattering blow to the nation's war transportation effort.

To help win the war — to save yourself and others needless suffering—the Council asks you to be sure the track is clear before you start across.

ROTARY NOTES

Despite the heat of the day the attendance at the regular Thursday noon meeting of the Rotary Club almost reached the 100 percent mark.

A former Winchester young man, Lt. Col. Harold F. Ambrose, AGD, was the guest speaker and he brought an interesting story of the handling of soldier's mail by the Army Post Office to the Club. During his more than two years of service in the Army his duties have carried him to every major theater of the war throughout the world.

At the present time he is in direct charge of the Casualty Branch of the Adjutant General's Department at Washington, D. C., and he explained in detail the handling of all casualty reports as they are received by his echelon daily by armed couriers who are flown from the fighting fronts to headquarters at Washington with the morning reports of all casualties.

In the course of his remarks he paid high tribute to the Air Transport Command for their vitally important work in keeping the much needed supplies, food and ordnance materials flowing in an unending stream to our fighting units.

The extent of the mail handling problem can best be understood when it is known that over 30,000,000 pieces of mail matter are cleared through the port of New York each week for the European theater. Also, it is not difficult to understand the painstaking effort required in handling all casualty reports with 76,000 soldiers in the Army answering to the name of Smith.

There will be no meeting of the Rotary Club for the next two weeks, but the weekly meetings will be resumed on Aug. 24.

The Red Cross feels justified in asking the citizens of the town, from time to time, for various items as they may be needed in its humanitarian work for it is the one instrumentality through which these needs not only may be made known but also satisfied due to the gratifying response which generally follows.

The three beach umbrellas asked for in our request of July 28 were promptly donated and have been delivered at the hospital where they are being appreciated during the hot weather.

In addition to the solicitation of our citizens by the Red Cross when the need arises, the Red Cross is ever ready to serve the citizens of the town in such matters as may come under its jurisdiction.

WINCHESTER TO HAVE CANTEEN FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

At last it is to happen! After months and years of talking about it, Winchester is to have a Canteen or Club for its young people. Those who have had high school age sons and daughters know that after a basketball game, or in fact any evening after store closing hours there hasn't been a place in Winchester for young people to gather.

The new Red and Black Canteen will really be a clubhouse. There will be a juke box dancing; a game room with billiards, dart games, checkers, magazines, cards. There will be a piano, comfortable chairs to lounge in, a coke bar, and every so often there will be special nights when their will be talent contests, truth and consequences affairs, group singing, etc. Fundamentally it is to be a club for good fellowship, a place where groups of boys or girls can drop in and have a good time, or a place where couples can drop in, have a few dances, a couple of cokes and perhaps a game of table tennis.

The Red and Black Canteen is a town project, having been approved in principle by the Selectmen and made possible through the assistance of the Park and Recreation Department. It is to be administered however by two volunteer committees, the Canteen Committee consisting of young people, and the Canteen Advisory Committee, of adults. The committees will be expanded as demand requires, but at present are made up as follows:

Canteen Committee: Jim Ware, Roy Monson, Jane Russell, Nancy Ford, Frank Lambiase, Bud Wray, Joe Ferraro, Pat Eberle, Sam Buzzota, Libby Fenno, Ed Hicks, Myrna Zamanakos.

Canteen Advisory Committee: Edwin C. Whittemore, W. H. D. Townsley-Tilson, Mrs. Samuel Graves, Mrs. Theodore C. Browne, John J. Keefe, Robert A. Johnston, Mrs. Frederick B. Craven, Mrs. Robert A. Drake, Carmino Frotcello, Angelo F. Tofuri, Harry A. Moulton, Robert H. Sibley, Mrs. Angelo W. Ghirardini.

Both committees have been working throughout the summer and arrangements are now being completed for quarters close to the center of the town. It is now planned to have opening night Saturday, Sept. 15 to celebrate the first football game of the year, and Bob Perry of the famous 920 Club on Station WORL has been invited as special guest master of ceremonies.

At the beginning of the season, the Canteen will open daily to those attending Winchester High School, or those who would be in high school if they were not working over the noon service. Later both afternoon and evening sessions will be arranged for other age and interest groups in Winchester. There will be no dues or membership fees.

Neighboring cities and towns such as Medford, Arlington, Belmont, Concord and others are finding great interest in similar organizations in their own areas and there are great hopes that the Red and Black Canteen will soon be high spot in the lives of our local young people.

NEAAU SWIM MEET AT WINCHESTER

Winchester Competitors Among Winners

Although the terrific heat kept the numbers of both the competitors and spectators well below what was anticipated, last Saturday afternoon's NEAAU sanctioned swimming meet at the Leonard Field Pool brought out some good competition and proved distinctly worth-while. Especially did it act as a stimulous for the town's young swimmers who had a chance to see some of the better competitors in action and learn by experience what it is like to compete against champions.

Some of the top flight swimmers didn't show up, but two of the outstanding girl natators, Louise Sherlock of Olneyville Boys' Club Auxiliary and Dorothy Kendrick of the Metropolitan Swimming Club, were on hand to strut their stuff, the former adding the New England Junior 110 yards backstroke to her growing list, while Miss Kendrick won the Massachusetts State 440 yard freestyle crown, beating Winchester's Joy Pray.

Joy, one of the lifeguards at Palmer Beach, placed in two events, finishing third in the 110 yards backstroke as well as second in the 440. In the former race the Winchester entrant wasn't helped any by twice getting considerably off her course, she having an outside lane with only a single set of lines to guide her. In the 440 Joy stuck to Miss Sherlock well for a while but when the Metropolitan star finally opened up there was no doubt about the outcome, her condition being far superior to that enjoyed by Miss Pray.

Barbara Donaghey, evidently in top shape, gave Winchester a real chance to cheer when she annexed the 50 meter freestyle open race with Edie Dover of the Palmer Beach lifeguard crew in second place. Edie finished third behind Joy Pray in the 440 yard event with Junie Moffette, who had been ill most of the week, placing fourth.

On the men's side of the meet Winchester didn't do so well, getting no places in the senior competition.

Bob McGrath looked good winning the 50 meter freestyle for boys 13 and under. Wellington Burtnette and Tom McGowan, both of Winchester, finishing second and third respectively.

John Power of Winchester gave the local fans another chance to cheer when he won the 25 yard freestyle for boys 11 and under, beating James O'Brien of the Bunker Hill Boys' Club and Richard Allen of the famous Olneyville Club.

To Helen Jay Carroll, Winchester Red Cross swimming director and coach of the Winchester Swimming Club, goes a major share of credit for bringing this meet to Winchester. The fact that the NEAAU was willing to promote an all sanctioned meet here is a real tribute to Helen's popularity in local swim circles.

Park Commissioner William S. Packer presented the medals to the winners of the various events, and Park Supt. Tom McGowan acted as meet director.

BROWNS WIN FATHER-SON GOLF

74 Scored Friday Best of Two Day Tourney

Rodney Brown and Rodney Brown, Jr., North Andover pair, carded a 74 during the late afternoon of Friday's competition to win the annual Father and Son golf tournament at the Winchester Country Club last weekend, none of Saturday's smaller field being able to duplicate or better their figures.

In winning the Browns made tournament history, being the first team to win the event a second time following a ten year lapse. Several teams have repeated in the tourney notably the Monahans, formerly of Belmont, now of the home club, but the Browns' win last week-end marked the first time any combine has repeated after so long an interval.

Last week-ends' tournament was also notable for quite another reason. It is doubtful if this popular event was ever played under more trying weather conditions, the heat being terrific, 99 and something Friday and 100 plus on Saturday, with high humidity for added discomfort. In view of this the 58 pairs who played constituted a good showing, especially when those playing in the special fields brought the overall total to 138 competitors.

Winchester teams seemed rather conspicuous by their absence, but a lot of local boys are in the service or on jobs that permit of no days off so it wasn't to be wondered at that there were fewer home club competitors than usual.

The Browns last won the championship bowl in 1934. At that time they were representing the Country Club, and for a time Saturday it looked like another Country Club pair, Charles E. Mason and son, John might get under their leading figures of Friday.

The Masons were good on the outward nine and on the way in it wasn't until the 17th that they faltered. Sinking their putt there with a par four on the 18th would have permitted them to finish with a 73 and the tournament in their pockets. They however, missed both the first put and the short one that followed, a put that had it been good, even then would have given the Masons a tie.

As it was The Country Club team tied for second gross with Howard and Dave Paul of Bear Hill, who led the field all the way Friday with a 75 until the Browns came tearing home late in the reeking afternoon. On their inward nine the North Andover winners carded a 1-under par 35, picking up four stroked with fours on the last three holes.

TOWN HALL STRUCK MONDAY

Lightning struck the spire of the town hall during Monday afternoon's brief thunder storm that brought welcome relief from the heat and humidity in which Winchester had been stewing since the previous Thursday afternoon. The glass had been at or near the 100 degree mark during practically all the time Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and though not so high on Monday forenoon, there was still enough humidity around to make the slight drop hard to notice.

Monday's thunder storm was a strange one. For a time it looked very threatening, then it looked as though it might break and go around the town as so many storms do. When it finally did arrive it amounted to little, heavy rain falling for only a few minutes while there were not many heavy claps of thunder.

There was one especially sharp clap and it must have been at that time that the town all was struck. A bolt evidently struck the spire, tearing away a few tiles and entering the steeple running part way down after and going out again. Chief John J. Gorman of the Fire Department, who personally investigated the incident, found that aside from the tiles and tearing a few timbers inside the spire there had been little damage done. Town Clerk Mabel W. Stinson stated that Monday afternoon marked the second occasion she had been in the town hall when it was struck by lightning.

Besides the strike at the hall there was wht the Navy calls a near miss at the Bacon Felt Company on Grove place, where a bolt got near enough to tear away some tar paper on the wall of a building and blow all the lights. At 4.11 Mr. Harold F. French of 371 Main street notified the Fire Department that the storm had evidently damaged the lighting system at his home.

Bill being a lieutenant stationed with the Signal Corps in the Aleutians. Bob is a warrant officer in the Quartermaster Corps and when last heard from quite recently was in England.

ROTARY NOTES

There was no meeting of the Winchester Rotary this week and will be none next week, the Masonic Apartments where the club meets regularly being closed for cleaning and redecorating.

MEN WITH STOLEN CAR CAPTURED

Two men with an automobile allegedly stolen from East Boston were picked up by the Winchester Police early Tuesday morning on Main street at the Texaco filling station.

Patrolmen Clarence Danbury, James Flaherty and James Noonan had their attention attracted at 3.45 by a car which was headed south on Main street and which pulled into the Texaco Station at 621 Main street. Going there, they found a Buick sedan in which were two men. They gave their names as Frank C. Russo of 388 Roseclare street, Revere and James J. Foley of Loring street, South Boston.

Foley, who the Police say had been driving the car, was questioned and said he and his companion had pulled into the station to get some air. Asked by Officer Danbury for his license, Foley said he did not have one but was driving on Russo's license, which the latter produced.

Neither could show a registration for the car, which Russo claimed belonged to his brother. At Headquarters the pair was further questioned by Sgt. James P. Donaghey who also checked on the car.

He found the machine was the property of John J. Ferra of Maverick street, East Boston and according to the East Boston Police, had been stolen from there Monday night.

Foley and Russo were placed under arrest and held at local headquarters until the arrival of Police from Boston who took them in charge.

Russo appeared in East Boston district court Tuesday morning, at which time he was held in $2500 for appearance in Superior Court where he will answer the charge o larceny of an automobile. He was turned over to Naval authorities pending his appearance in court.

Foley was returned to Winchester and given into custody of the local police who had him in court Wednesday morning at Woburn charged with driving after his right to do so had been revoked.

He was sentenced to ten days, with sentence suspended, and returned to the Lyman School from which the Police say he escaped last December. The authorities state he was committed to the Lyman School last fall for using an automobile without the consent of the owner.

Carl Bolter, Jr. son of the Carl Bolters of Lexington and former Winchester boy now serving with the United States Army Signal Corps somewhere in India, writes home of a pleasant reunion he had recently in a town near his camp with Mrs. Jacob Bond, the former Barbara Corwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Corwin of Ridgefield road.

Mrs. Bond is in the Red Cross field service with a unit in India. Both she and Pvt. Bolter were delighted to meet a friend from the "old home town" and enjoyed getting over and getting up to date on mutual acquaintances in Winchester. Pvt. Miss Polly Kimball of Cabot street and Miss Genevra Underwood of Salisbury street gave a shower Wednesday evening at Miss Kimball's honor for Miss Bonnie Wilson of Rangely road, whose engagement to Pvt. Richard A. Hakanson, USAAF, of Lincoln street, was recently announced.

The affair was a complete surprise to Miss Wilson who was invited to the Kimball home to play bridge, remaining to open packages containing many useful and attractive gifts, grouped about a miniature umbrella in the center of a table.

After the packages had been opened, refreshments were served and a pleasant evening enjoyed.

GIBBONS 50 YEARS WED

There is Winchester interest in the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gibbons of 40 Central street, Woburn, because of the fact that this well known couple were married Aug. 15, 1894, at St. Mary's Rectory in this town by the Rev. Henry Madden. Although making their home in Woburn the Gibbons have many friends in this town, as well as a daughter, Mrs John Dineen of Chester street and a son, William H. Gibbons of Wendell street.

As a matter of fact the actual anniversary celebration took place in Winchester at the Dineen home with all six of Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons' children present, Mrs. Dineen, William, James M., of Wakefield; John P. of Woburn; and Charles Gibbons of Malden; Mrs. Annie Prechong of Malden as well as 12 grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Relatives and friends from Woburn, Winchester, Stoneham, Lynn, Reading and Boston added to the general gaiety of the party.

The house was attractively decorated in gold and white, a catered buffet luncheon was served and an impromptu entertainment program featuring favorite old time music and stories was greatly enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons received their guests in a bower of flowers, being assisted by members of their family.

MRS. MARY A. RICHBURG

Mrs. Mary A. Richburg of Fryeburg, Me., who died Sunday, Aug. 13, at the Winchester Hospital, was a former well known resident of this town and the sister of Miss Kathleen G. Trainor of Eaton street.

Mrs. Richburg was the daughter of the late John and Annie (Russell) Trainor. She was born 60 years ago in St. Stephen's, N. B., but lived for many years in Winchester before taking up residence in Fryeburg, Me.

Besides her sister in Winchester, she leaves two brothers, Ray Trainor of this town and Ralph Trainor of Rockland; also several nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held Thursday morning from Miss Trainor's home on Eaton street, with high mass of requiem celebrated at St. Mary's Church. Interment was in St. Stephen's, N. B.

TWO ACCIDENTS FRIDAY

Two automobile accidents, neither of which was serious, were reported to the police last Friday.

Shortly before 3 o'clock a Chevrolet being driven north on Cambridge street by the owner, Edward J. Monahan of 18 Murray road, Burlington, struck a tree opposite the old Winchester Conservatories greenhouses, damaging the right side of the machine. No damage was done the tree and Monahan was not injured.

At 5.40 in the afternoon a Ford sedan, while being driven north on Main street by Luther B. Hunter of 29 Hammond street, Boston, was in collision with a Ford convertible coupe, parked opposite Thompson street. The coupe, owned by Grace D. Donehue and in charge of Charles V. Donehue, both of 525 Andover street, Lowell, was unoccupied at the time. Both machines were damaged but no one was injured.

NO MONEY FOR RETURN TRIP

The parable of the Prodigal son found no counterpart in the experience of a 20 year old local young man who got stranded with a friend and without funds in New York last Sunday.

Through the Travelers' Aid Society he appealed to his parents for funds to get back home, the message being taken to the family dwelling by Motorcycle Officer Irving Reardon.

The latter found a certain lack of sympathetic interest apparent at the young man's home, especially in the case of pater familis, whose reply to the request for funds was brief, to the point and emphatically in the negative. The reply was further embellished with the father's opinion that the walking is good between New York and Winchester, an opinion in which the stranded son may or may not have joined.

CAR AND TRUCK CRASHED

Tuesday afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock a DeSoto sedan, driven west on Wildwood street by Louise A. Kneeland of 99 Wildwood street was in collision at the intersection of Yale street with a Ford truck, owned by Richardson's Market and being driven north on Yale street by James D. Farnsworth, 3rd, of 9 Bacon street. There were no injuries reported but both machines were so badly damaged they had to be towed away.

LONG WASH JOB

One of Winchester's well known pharmacists notified the Police Sunday afternoon shortly after 4.30 that on Saturday he had given his car to a 15 year old Winchester boy to wash and that up to the time he called it had not been returned. Would the Police see what they could do, etc.?

The Police checked and found that the boy was 15 and therefor could have no driver's license. They were checking further when a call came in during the evening that some boys had abandoned a car in the driveway of a home on Stone avenue.

Sgt. James P. Donaghey and Officer James F. Noonan went to investigate and found the abandoned car to be that reported missing by the local purveyor of drugs. Shortly thereafter they picked up the boy to whom it was entrusted for beautifying, he and a companion from West Medford being taken to Headquarters for questioning.

The boy stated that he had a 17 year old friend drive the car to West Medford Saturday night and that another licensed operator had returned it to Winchester Sunday evening. For rather obvious reasons he had been unwilling to return it to the home of its owner.

The Pharmacist was called to Headquarters and after looking over his returned property gave it as his opinion that one of the fenders had been dented during the absence of the car from town. He felt rather strongly that he should be reimbursed for this damage, but was unwilling to prosecute, taking a broad and tolerant view of the whole affair. The Police brought the matter to the attention of the mother of the boy who had originally contracted to clean up the automobile.

AN APPEAL FROM THE WAR AND NAVY DEPARTMENTS

The War and Navy Departments are exerting every effort that every soldier and sailor overseas may be permitted to receive a Christmas package from home. Only through the wholehearted co-operation and assistance of the mailing public, the retail stores, and all others concerned will it be possible to handle this year's record volume of holiday package mail.

It is most urgent that these gift parcels be selected and mailed as early as possible within the 30-day period from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15, in order that no last-minute backlog occur at any of the several ports of embarkation.

We owe it to our armed forces overseas to shop early, wrap securely, mail early and, above all, address legibly and completely these holiday gifts which mean so much to fighting men' morale. au18-4

WEEK-END FIRES

The members of the Fire Department got something of a break over the sweltering week-end, being called only once, at 5.57 Saturday evening to put out some burning tree stumps on Hemingway street.

The men missed a run in response to a false alarm shortly after 10 o'clock Sunday night when Officer William E. Cassidy spotted six youths attempting to pull Box 33 at the corner of Washington and Cross streets.

Sgt. James P. Donaghey and Officer James F. Noonan picked up the youths and took them to Headquarters where their names were taken by Sgt. Thomas F. Cassidy. They ranged in ages from 15 to 19 years, one came from Malden and the others from Woburn.

One of the boys admitted he turned the handle of the fire box, but said that when the bell rang inside he became frightened and decided to let the box alone. All said they did not want to get into trouble.

Trouble was just what Sgt. Cassidy promised them in the event there was any repeat performance, and after a lecture the youths were permitted to go, with the warning that there still might be prosecution.

BROKEN GLASS!

Saturday evening Officer Walter Murphy called from a west side box reporting that there was a quantity of broken glass on Everett avenue which he was informed had gotten there when some glassware fell from a local delivery truck. Officer William Callahan picked up the driver of the truck in question and took him to Headquarters. He admitted, the police say, that the glass fell from his truck, but he also stoutly affirmed he had cleaned up the glass. Sgt. Thomas F. Cassidy remained unconvinced, and giving the truck driver a broom, advised him to return to Everett avenue, and do a more finished job. The advice was taken!

CASEYS AND PAPER-HANGERS DIDN'T PLAY

Just in case you have wondered how that soft ball game scheduled for Sunday between the Winchester K. of C. and the Cannon Neelon Club of Woburn came out, the teams didn't play. The game was scratched by mutual consent, it being too blamed hot for soft ball, or most any other kind of ball.

"Mack", who was down to umpire, went in town to the double-header. It is never too hot to keep "Mack" from a baseball game, but you'll have to accept the baseball.

WINCHESTER SWIMMERS AT CARSON BEACH

Coach Helen Jay Carroll has entered several members of the Winchester Swimming Club in the N. E. A. A. U. championship swimming meet at Carson Beach, South Boston Sunday afternoon, Aug. 20, commencing at 2 o'clock. This meet sponsored by the Boston American-Record and Advertiser and the Park Department of the City of Boston is featuring New England outdoor men's and women's swimming championships.

Coach Carroll has entered Janie Moffette, recently back from acting as swimming counselor at a New York day camp, in both the women's 100 meter freestyle and backstroke. Barbara Donaghey, Winchester's only girl first place winner at the NEAAU meet here last Saturday will swim in the NEAAU women's junior 50 meter freestyle championship event, with Edith Dover and Rose McGowan. Mabel Henderson is entered in the 50 meter freestyle for girls 11 and under, with Beverly Gay, Veronica Carpenter, Barbara Young and Virginia Gaffney competing in the same events for girls 13 and under.

On the men's side of the meet Mike Gambino is entered in the men's 100 meter freestyle, and John Power and Paul McGowan, in the 50 meter freestyle for boys 11 and under.

Tom McGowan and Wellington Bartnette will swim in the 50 meter freestyle for boys 13 and under, and Charles Lizotte in the same event for boys 15 and under.

PLAYED WITH TWO GRANDSONS IN TOURNEY

Mr. Francis E. Smith of Wolcott terrace, a member of the Board of Library Trustees, had the distinction of being the only father in the Father and Son golf tournament at the Winchester Country Club last weekend who played with two grandsons.

Mr. Smith had as his own partner one grandson, David L. Smith, 14 years old, and this pair had as opponents another grandson, Bobby Willing, 8 years old, and his father, Mr. James B. Willing of 16 Ledyard road.

The Star did not learn how this intra-family match finally came out, but win, lose or draw we imagine both teams had plenty of fun.

WHAT EVERY DOG SHOULD KNOW about traveling on the RAILROAD

We're doggoned if we would like to wear a muzzle, either, but if Rover, or Gerry, or Ginger, or a dog by any other name, plans a trip by train from now on, we've got to tell him to be sure and bring a muzzle and a leash or he just can't ride.

Thousands of dogs — from mongrels to top breeds — are highly prized and beloved members of thousands of railroad families in Northern New England. Hardly a day but you'll hear a trainman, a baggageman, a conductor, or some other railroad man reciting the cute antics of his "pooch", and his story always starts a round of — "but wait until I tell you what MY dog did yesterday." The point is that the great majority of railroad men like and understand dogs.

So, the following rule, which has been in the timetables for many years, wasn't put there because we railroad people don't like or understand dogs. It reads:

"PETS (accompanying passengers) — Small dogs, cats or other small animals (not vicious, odoriferous or otherwise objectionable) when carried in baskets or containers may be taken in railroad coaches or motor coaches; also in Pullman Car drawing rooms, compartments and bedrooms. Dogs, properly muzzled and provided with strong, securely fitting collar or harness on chain, or other strong leash, or enclosed in crates, will be checked in baggage service at tariff rates."

Love for his own dog has led many a railroad man to close an eye to this rule, especially when a traveling canine eyes him with a heart-melting look, plainly saying — "Aw, come on, fellar, I don't bite, how's about slipping that muzzle off me or letting me ride without one."

But these war-time days, when hundreds more dogs than usual are traveling, there are often a half dozen in the same baggage car.

Someone aptly remarked, "every dog has his day" and as several of our baggagemen have found out, even the best behaved dog has its moments. Maybe it's war nerves, or maybe it's a bit of show-off technique, but there have been too many cases of late when Rover has mistaken the baggage car for the dining car and started a meal from a baggageman's shins. Seems even the most mild mannered dog likes to impress his fellow canines when good dogs get together while traveling and it's a case of where a few dogs have given the dog a bad name.

For the protection of the dogs as well as of the baggagemen it has been necessary to instruct all our employees to strictly enforce the rule about traveling pets.

So, will you please remember that when your dog wants to travel on the train in the future he must bring along a muzzle and a leash, unless he is in a basket.

The teletype section handles between 40,000 and 50,000 words daily.

Billy Cusack and Swanson Brothers Win Three of Four Trophies

For the seventh straight year, skippers from the Winchester Boat Club hauled their boats to Marblehead for race week and brought back a majority of the coveted cups to be won in the International Snipe fleet races.

This year, Billy Cusack, who was sailing Bill Hall's Rondie was the top winner.

Billy copped both the Boston trophy and the highly prized Eastern Yacht Club cup.

Bob Swanson sailed his By-George to an impressive win in the Sunday race to win the Pleon trophy and his brother Ralph was barely beaten out by Allan Gullickson's Jeanne in the three days of racing for the Corinthian Yacht Club prize.

It goes without saying that the club is proud of the fine performance put on by Billy, Ralph and Bob. They take their place in our hearts alongside the other sterling skippers like George Wiswell, Jr., Don Simonds, Dave Merrow and the Blanchard brothers who have so gloriously defended the reputation of Winchester's fine "sweet water" Snipe sailors.

Snow Shakes Jinx

Jim Snow finally managed to come out on top, a feat he has been unable to accomplish since the start of the season, when he beat off a sterling challenge by Don Simonds and scampered across the finish line first. All through the Sunday snipe race Jim and helmsman Bart Sullivan had had the case all season, on the final lap, he guessed wrong and the wind temporarily left him down while Joan Powers, Youani skipped ahead of him. As a matter of fact, John crossed the finish line first, but was disqualified for an infraction of the rules earlier in the race.

Simonds' swell second, plus the fact that Ralph Swanson, the chief contender for the fleet championship was disqualified, all adds up to the fact that Jon may be the first skipper to win the fleet championship three times.

Club Chatter

The cribbage tournament is going full blast. Rumor has it that Don Simonds has a commanding lead but there are those of us who challenge that statement . . . Any of you youngsters who haven't played your ping pong matches still have a chance to get them played. It now appears as though the final matches will be held on or about Labor Day . . . Roger Curtis and Dave Merrow were the winners of last Sunday afternoon's Snipe races. Roger came through in Jones' Youani and Dave led the fleet in Bart Sullivan's boat.

DOC HOSS SENSE ANSWERED!

To the Editor of the Star:

We feel like giving three cheers that your anonymous Doc Hoss Sense has arrived in town. According to him there is one thing lacking in most of our citizens, which he possesses, and that is horse sense. Some of the good angels that have been looking after Winchester for a great many years must have skipped him. All the common sense that he exhibited in writing this piece certainly will make him an asset to the town.

The committee that was appointed to see what could be done in regard to the water in Winter Pond made a very clear report on the existing conditions. Irrespective of Doc Hoss Sense's statement that Winter Pond has only dried up since the wells were installed, Winter Pond has always been full during a series of wet years and very low during a series of dry years. We are now in a very dry period.

Doc Hoss Sense says, "I am not an engineer." Well that is very plain after reading his piece. We think one of the overgrown mosquitoes must have annoyed the gentleman spurring him on to this wonderful literary effort.

There is no question but that mosquitoes breed in swampy places. On account of the drought and low water all eastern Massachusetts is having an epidemic of mosquitoes. They are not confined to the Winter Pond area.

Unfortunately, Winter Pond does not belong to the Town of Winchester. It is a great pond and in the control of the State. Now Dr. Hoss Sense, if you will direct your energies toward the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and get the Public Works Department to do something with this pond, the town will be under great obligation to you.

The watershed of this pond is very small and produces very little water. There are a few things that the town can do. At the last annual Town Meeting $1000 was appropriated for work on the watershed to see if more water can be made to flow directly into this pond. The first thing we found out was that there is a war on, a fact that Doc Hoss Sense evidently hasn't grasped, and that it is almost impossible to get any work done. We hope to improve the drains into this pond between now and next spring.

It seems too bad that a man of such great ideas and literary ability does not acknowledge his own composition by signing his name. If he will communicate with me, as Chairman of the Winter Pond Committee, we shall be glad to add him to the committee. We are in sore need of his brilliant ideas.

Hoping to hear from him soon, and through his ability to solve the Winter Pond problem, I remain,

Edmund C. Sanderson,
Chairman of the Winter
Pond Committee

HIGH COST OF MARKING TIME

To the Editor of the Star:

Will you kindly reprint the enclosed editorial from the Boston Traveler which I am sure will have wide interest in Winchester at this time, and may set some idle mental machinery into motion.

Thank you from all who think.

Lorence M. Woodside

The price that yesterday's outmoded methods can levy on today's taxpayers is well illustrated in the Finance Commission's report on refuse disposal.

It costs Boston about $2,000,000 a year to do the job. The Finance Commission contends that much of this money evaporates in the search for places to dump the refuse.

Boston has little waste land sufficiently isolated for the purpose and the dead cat's long, last voyage down the harbor by scow is an expensive proposition.

In 1941 an investigation showed that the right solution for Boston is the one that other cities have found. It is to burn all combustible refuse.

A valuable by-product ingeniously contrived was suggested. By locating an incinerating plant on the city-owned lands on Albany street in the South End, steam, light and power might be generated for the hospital.

Naturally that raises the question of odors and other nuisances. We would gain nothing if we merely transferred them to another locality.

However, Finance Commission and city investigators found that the incinerating stations in New York and Cincinnati are entirely free from noxious fumes.

As things stand, the pervasive aura of Spectacle Island, the drab wastelands along Mile End road, Dorchester, the ancient abattoir area and the constantly recurring pollution of Boston beaches are a collective disgrace to a modern city.

An efficient and sanitary method of refuse disposition would make an excellent post-war project for Boston.

FOR A RECREATION CENTER

Aug. 11, 1944

To the Editor of the Star:

Why hasn't Winchester a worth while recreation center so necessary now in war time and, taking the long range point of view, equally as valuable for the peace to follow? Why hasn't something being done about it? Chiefly, I believe, due to the detriment of so many needless committees now hindering its progress, causing incompatibility throughout.

The groups appointed to deal in this matter is evidently making little headway in attaining the desired ends and is criticized for this reason. The persons responsible should secure assistance by consulting proper authorities able to give helpful advice by analyzing the problems involved. Consequently, the endless petty "dickering" characteristic of most all meetings would be eliminated. Plan now, build later.

And how about using logic, just plain "horse sense"? Using a vacant store as actually considered is absurd and indicates little foresight from a realistic standpoint of those concerned with this farce (as it certainly would be if carried through).

The above mentioned example represents the attitude taken by too many people it seems; typifies the common belief the solution lies in placing this on a small scale, tentative basis. So long as the public persists in assuming the project will cost little and any make-shift set-up will serve the purpose, no advancement can be realized. It is this very feeling, along with "too many cooks spoiling the broth" that handicaps accomplishment. So prevent these dangerous thoughts of illusion; why not face the fact—it will cost much. Although the initial outlay will be great, the satisfying benefits derived will compensate manyfold the money required for such an undertaking—with a resulting gratification which cannot be measured in monetary terms.

A spacious, well-equipped institution is essential, one adapted to youngsters of all ages. It must be practical and permanent with adequate facilities in order to meet the demand of the children in our community. As a residential town Winchester rates high; is compared with the best in Massachusetts in every respect. It is appropriate for us to pave the way for other towns to follow in keeping with our high standard. A recreation center in our town is desirable and feasible, let's do something about it.

P. S. I have felt for a long time, Editor, that something should be said in regard to this important center which, I believe, has been underestimated in importance. And if this letter will serve to waken and arouse interest in seeing it through, you are welcome to print it in the Star—if it will do any good.

Sincerely,
Arthur James Twombly,
17 Stevens street

RED CROSS APPRECIATION

We hear from time to time of the vast amount of work being done for and by the Red Cross and we often wonder what becomes of it and whether it really is needed and appreciated and it is quite gratifying when an acknowledgment is received as indicated by the letter which follows:

FORMER WINCHESTER MAN AF SUPPLY OFFICER

Major Elbridge Teel, USAAF, material head of a 9th Air Force Fighter Group in Normandy, was making his home on Grove street in Winchester when he entered the service in April of 1942. He was an ensign in the Navy during World War 1 and before being commissioned a captain in the present war was associated as sales manager with the White Motor Company. He was assigned to radar when he first entered the service but asked for an assignment with more action and got it, being now in France.

Major Teel has a reputation for doing the impossible and of 10 material heads and their outfits have to do just that. Not long ago he was given the assignment of procuring fittings for 1000 pound ombs for P-47s though such an item had never been used in the ETS. He came through within 24 hours, just as he has many times previously on assignments looking just as hopeless.

Besides the major, the Teel family is well represented in service. Mrs. Teel is active in Red Cross work in Boston, and Elbridge, Jr., is in the Army, ready to enter pre-flight training in the USAAF. Miss Cynthia Teel is doing research work for the Army in a laboratory at Mass. Institute of Technology. The Teel home is now at 175 Dartmouth street, Boston.

MAJOR GALE CAPTURED TOWN

The following news story written by G. K. Hodenfield, staff writer for the "Stars and Stripes," overseas servicemen's publication will prove of interest to Winchester friends of Major Paul Gale and his mother, Mrs. Marion Perham Gale, former well known residents of Yale street. Major Gale has figured in the overseas headlines before this, and apparently this latest exploit of his is right in line with its predecessors.

With U. S. forces in Normandy, Aug. 2. The next time Maj. Paul Gale of Lynn, Mass., gets a 18-hour furlough he will probably spend it in some quiet foxhole. His last one was pretty rugged.

Gale wanted to see what was going on at the front, so he had Pvt. Joseph Beckman, of Atlantic City, N. J., take him in the general direction of the fighting by jeep. It wasn't long until they found themselves in a town occupied by Germans, lots of Germans.

Gale swapped his revolver for Beckman's M1 and both started shooting, while Beckman also did some fancy driving. Beckman picked off one Jerry at a crossroad with the revolver and Gale accounted for five more with the Garand.

Then found a comparatively quiet spot for a moment and Gale sent Beckman hightailing it back to camp for reinforcements. Beckman did hightail, it but he paused long enough to get four more Jerries on the way out, the last three with a rifle taken from number one.

Beckman brought back reinforcements, but they didn't get through until the next morning. They entered the town figuring the best they could do would be find a body, but they found Gale in possession of the town.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kitchen of Water street and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Maxwell of Medford, returned last week from a vacation in the White Mountains, having been registered at the Eastern Slope, North Conway.

In The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and in all of its branches, a Lesson-Sermon will be read on Sunday, Aug. 20, on the subject, Mind.

The Golden Text, Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God, is from II Corinthians 3:5. Other Scriptural selections include O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgements, and his ways past finding out! . . . For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen (Romans 11:33, 36).

Also included in the Lesson-Sermon will be the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, A limitless Mind cannot proceed from physical limitations. Finiteness cannot present the idea or the vastness of infinity. A mind originating from a finite or material source must be limited and finite. Infinite Mind is the reader, and creation is the infinite image or idea emanating from this Mind. If Mind is within and without all things, then all is Mind; and this definition is scientific (p. 256).

SONS OF ITALY NEWS

A very nice long letter was received from Capt. Maietta. In it he tells of his battalion landing as part of the initial assault force at 9:30 a. m. on D-Day, remaining on the beach for 12 hours. He says: "I now learn that the landing on my particular beach was the most difficult. We had a very bad time. I was very busy on the beach that day doing what I could for the wounded. The indescribable horror of that day will live with me forever. Capt. Maietta voices the so often heard praise of blood plasma. He calls it the miracle of modern medicine. Every combat veteran to a man speaks of the wonderful life giving qualities of plasma, and the miracles it works on men who come in on the brink of death. Doc's outfit received its first batch of mail just 21 days after D-Day and he tells of the thrill of reading his issues of the Star. To answer some of your questions Doc, we will have some sort of function to observe Oct. 12 as we have in the past. The degree team song is up for acceptance by the Grand Lodge. It is quite sure to be accepted as the official song of the Mass. Lodge. Hurry home Doc. The rest of the state wants to see our degree team in action.

Just a line here to exchange the greetings Captain's Barrone and Maietta tried unsuccessfully to exchange in England.

Tony Chefalo writes from North Africa. He is enjoying the scenery and some occasional baseball. Dead Horse inquires about his former side kick Willie. I quote his comment on the Marine Corporal. "Them hell boys make good brig guards and that's all. Tsk! Tsk! Wait till he hears about Willie's exploits.

Here's Willie DeMinico's letter. He is in Saipan and has seen 20 consecutive days of at the front. Willie tells of lying in a fox hole all night with Japs counter attacking. They come at you with rifles, bayonets and knifes. You just lay in your fox hole and let them have it with machine guns and rifles.

When daylight finally comes you crawl out mud-soaked and gummy and count your kill. Willie's platoon captured 100 Japs. You say the native dress is interesting at first but I can appreciate your longing for the good old New England type of female beauty. Guess they're raising a very deadly type of bell hop these days aren't they Dead Horse?

Received a v-mail from T-5 Frank Cefali. He sends his regards to all you fellows out there. In your next Frank tell us where you are if you may.

Tony Penta was home but your correspondent didn't get an opportunity to speak to him. More about him next week.

Gabe Vespucci writes again. This letter was written from England before leaving for France. Boys Gabe has one of the most left handed gripes I have ever heard. He says that his biggest headache is handling a bunch of WAAC's he has working for him. Most any one of you boys would gladly relieve him of that headache wouldn't you? All right you G. I.'s stop drooling now and wipe off your mouth. Gabe speaks of being amused by Hitler's new toy and calls it intriguing. He says, "Have seen several floating through the sky spitting fire as well as landing and bursting. It can wreck terrific damage, but I don't see where it's ever going to get him anything. Gahe the sentiment which follows is very properly placed but hardly able to pass censorship of a respectable newspaper. Come to think of it the marital status of Hitler's parents never was clarified.

On the convention. It was held in Pittsfield on June 25, 26 and 27. Ven. A. P. Tofuri, Carmine Frongillo and your correspondent were the delegates. We had the best set-up in the hotel. Two adjoining double rooms on the first floor and boy did we use those rooms. Each night all the young crowd gathered here swapping stories. In these rooms we got the gang and as the evening passed and morning drew nigh we engaged in those activities which makes delegates unpopular with the non-convention guests at a hotel. With all our fun we did manage to get enough people to recognize the merits of our Sons of Italy song. After a rather lengthy speech on the floor by your correspondent a request was made to have the song sung.

We had a group who was supposed to join in on the singing but imagine my embarrassment when I realized I was singing it alone. The delegation decided that if it didn't sound any worse than that with me singing it, the song would be very nice when properly sung. It has been accepted subject to investigation by the Grand Council into the legal properties of the copyrights. So long boys, see you next week.

"Mummy, where's the wall that Daddy said he'd built around our house?"

LAST NIGHT SHE HEARD THEM . . . those murmured words of Daddy's, that sent his little daughter out bright and early, looking for a wall.

It was "Daddy's time" when it happened . . . the half hour they always spent together, before Mummy hurried her to bed.

Her cardboard fort stood beneath the elm tree, the last rays of sunshine glinting through the branches . . . together they bent eagerly above it, four busy hands piling a stout stockade of twigs . . .

"Build the wall higher, Daddy," Mary commanded, "to keep the naughty Injuns out."

Then Mummy called, and Daddy swung her up, with a hug that almost hurt . . . and a whisper, barely caught, as he carried her upstairs—"Thank God I've built a strong wall round this house."

AND SO HE HAD—a high, strong wall, invisible though it be to his daughter's eyes, a carefully planned life insurance program, to protect his family from the possibility of want.

As so many independence-loving New Englanders have done for over half a century, he took his problem to a long established New England company, the Boston Mutual, where he could count on neighborly understanding and advice.

Here protection is readily available, no matter how modest your income, on a weekly, quarterly, semi-annual, or annual basis. To-day this company serves over 364,000 New England families.

You will find your local Boston Mutual representative a friendly counsellor, thoroughly trained in insurance problems.

$400,000 is our ojective in the 1944-45 Greater Boston maintenanace appeal for the Salvation Army," said Arthur G. Curren, general chairman of the appeal, this week.

The Carolers for Christ Quartette, all from Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., will present a varied program of song and testimont Thursday evening, Aug. 31, at the Church of the Open Bible in Woburn, of which Rev. Carlton Helgerson is pastor.

Full Answers to Fair Questions

JUST ASK FOR YOUR SERVICE REPRESENTATIVE

WE want to answer all questions about wartime telephone service as completely as possible.

This isn't always easy when people plan to move, or take a house for the summer, and learn they cannot get a telephone at the new address.

The general answer to such questions is that war has about used up reserve telephone facilities. So we must make what we have give the best service we can to the greatest number.

Every customer has a different problem, a different set of questions—we can't answer them all here—a husband away in service, serious illness, a baby expected, important war work, dozens of other reasons why a telephone is wanted.

If you have a specific question, please get in touch with a Service Representative or the Manager at your local Telephone Business Office.

AIDED SWIMMER

A frequent attendant at Palmer Beach called the Star last evening to praise the watermanship and attention to duty displayed there yesterday forenoon by Helen Jay Carroll, Red Cross water safety instructor and coach of the Winchester Swimming Club.

Miss Carroll was in the midst of conducting a swimming class when a good sized boy got into difficulty near one of the in-shore course piers. Though the water is not especially deep there the lad was floundering about and rapidly getting tired.

Miss Carroll had her back to the boy, but with that second sense that good swimmers and instructors so often seemed possessed of, she swung about and saw him. Calmly she told her class to rest a bit and without alarming them or even letting them know what was wrong, she went to the boy's aid and quickly brought him to safety. This done, she returned to her instructing with few knowing what had happened.

The citizen who informed us of the incident feels that the town has an excellent instructor and capable person in Miss Carroll and further is of the opinion that more parents should see to it that their youngsters take her water safety course.

FINAL REPORT ON FIFTH WAR LOAN DRIVE

Back in June and early July there was, as you will remember, a spirited contest between our town and Winchester, Va., to see which could do the best job of absorbing 5th war loan Bonds. Just before the end of the contest and according to the then latest reports, it appeared that we had our rival beaten, not by much, but at least we were on top.

Final figures are now available and while there is no need to recite all the sad details, the fact is that our genial southern rival staged an 11th hour rally that left us far behind.

In short, they smote us hip and thigh. For example, they beat their Series E Bond quota with a figure of 117.5 per cent, whereas Winchester, Mass., didn't come even within good shouting distance of making its E Bond quota. It takes no three decker brain to realize that E Bond sales are what really count because they show the extent to which you and your neighbor actually dig down into your own pockets to buy, all the remainder of the bond purchases being those made by banks, local government and institutions.

The plain truth is that we did not do so well on E Bond purchases as we did in the previous War Loan Drive. The fact that we went slightly over the top on our total quota in no way excuses our poor showing on E Bonds and we ought all vow to do better on the next War Loan drive.

In admitting our own not so glorious record, let us at the same time heartily salute Winchester, Va. for its remarkable achievement, 117.5 per cent on E Bonds and 150.3 per cent on total quota.

Wendell R. Barney, War Finance Chairman for Winchester, Va. in submitting these figures to our own Maurice Bird, asks: "Can you top that?" No, Mr. Barney, we can't, you win by a mile, but watch our smoke the next time.

Miss Clare O'Loughlin of 18 Westley street has been spending the past week in Maine as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Corfield.

WINCHESTER FOOTBALL PLAYER INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Francis Lambiase, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Lambiase of Prince avenue, was seriously injured at 5.15 Sunday morning when the automobile in which he and three companions were riding struck a tree on Route 28 between Salem, N. H. and Methuen, about 100 yards from the Methuen line.

Lambiase, who played both in the backfield and line on last year's varsity football team at Winchester High School and who was counted upon as a regular guard on this year's eleven, was returning from a vacation at the Wiers, N. H. With him were "Sarto" Walsh, captain and quarterback of the high school eleven, Johnnie Stevenson, huge tackle; and a Lynn boy, named Harmon who plays fullback on the Lynn English eleven.

The car in which the boys were riding was being driven by Lambiase and it is believed that the accident was caused by the blowing of a tire. None of the other occupants of the machine was injured, but the car itself, a Ford coach, was reduced to a complete wreck, good only for junk.

Lambiase was removed by the Methuen Police to the Lawrence Hospital. His injuries were reported there as a concussion of the brain, fractured skull, injured elbow, ankle and knee cap. It was mid-morning Sunday before he recovered consciousness.

His father went immediately to Lawrence and by Tuesday was able to make arrangements to have his son transferred to the Winchester Hospital, Officer Cardon driving the ambulance to Lawrence, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lambiase.

On Wednesday Dr. Richard W. Sheehy reported that "Frannie's" condition is quite satisfactory.

C. for service overseas in the North African and Tunisian Campaigns, during which time he completed 50 missions as pilot of a North American B-25 Bomber, known as the Billy Mitchell. He already has the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters.

Lt. Wightman, who is married and is at present making his home in Monroe, La., entered the service in November, 1941, before Pearl Harbor. He has been back in this country for a year now and is serving with the Air Forces Training Command.

BREAKS AT TWO WEST SIDE HOMES

Breaks were discovered at two west side homes shortly after midnight Thursday morning, one occurring at the home of Dr. Harry S. Parsons at 73 Bacon street and the other at the home of Mr. James S. Murray at 9 Everett avenue.

The break at Dr. Parsons' home was discovered by his son-in-law, Mr. Malcolm Bennett of Elmwood avenue, who noticed as he was driving past the house about midnight that all the lights on the first and second floor of the house were lighted.

Knowing the family to be away, Mr. Bennett investigated and discovered that the house had been entered. He immediately notified the Police and Officer John Boyle and James Flaherty were sent to investigate.

They found that access had been gained by breaking a glass panel beside the front door, the intruder or intruders having to break the panels on both sides of the door to open it.

Inside everything on the first and second floors of the house was completely ransacked, but it was impossible to determine what was missing in the absence of the family who are in New Hampshire. They were notified at once of the break.

At Mr. Murray's home on Everett avenue access was gained by kicking in a handsome and heavy leaded glass panel beside the front door and opening an inner door with the key which was in the lock.

Mr. Murray has only recently acquired this property and is not yet occupying it, there being only a few pieces of furniture in the house. It is not thought that much of anything of value was taken.

Officer Stanley Mullen discovered this break, and it bore a striking resemblance to that at the Parsons' home, in both cases the lights on the first two floors of the dwellings being left lighted.

Officer Mullen notified Headquarters of his discovery and again Officers Flaherty and Boyle were dispatched to investigate the break with him.

WINCHESTER PARA-TROOPER PARTICIPATED IN CAPTURE OF NORMAN TOWN

Pvt. David J. Welch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Welch of 28 Lebanon street, was a member of the parachute infantry regiment of the 82nd Airborne Division, that covered itself with glory by capturing Ste. Mere Eglise in Normandy three hours before Allied landing forces touched the beachhead on D-Day. The regiment played an outstanding part in carrying out the mission of the airborne troops which was to prevent the Germans from throwing powerful forces from the west and south against the beachhead.

The men of Pvt. Welch's regiment had good reason to be proud when they took Ste. Mere Eglise, for this was the important junction through which the Germans were expected to move up reinforcements. It was this same regiment who also took St Sauveur le Vicomte, opening the way for mobile forces to drive on to the sea and thus cut off the peninsula and Cherbourg.

For them the Mayor of Ste Mere Eglise has asked the decoration of the Fourragere Francaise, extolling their exploits in terms of highest praise.

WON OAK LEAF CLUSTER

Staff Sgt. Edwin F. Carr, Jr., a radio operator in a troop carrier unit and former Winchester boy was recently decorated with an oak leaf cluster by Brig. Gen. Warren R. Carter, commanding general of all troop carrier units in New Guinea.

Staff Sgt. Carr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Carr, 3 Bay State road, Worcester. He is a graduate of Winchester High School and attended Holy Cross at Worcester.

The troop carrier unit of which Staff Sgt. Carr is a member is an integral part of Maj. Gen. Whitehead's 5th Air Force. The troop carrier is invaluable in this area to keep the men on the front lines supplied with food, medical supplies, equipment and ammunition.

Staff Sgt. Carr is a veteran of many missions in the Southwest Pacific area and now holds the Distinguished Flying Cross and the air medal with an oak leaf cluster.

AN APPEAL FROM THE WAR AND NAVY DEPARTMENTS

The War and Navy Departments are exerting every effort that every soldier and sailor overseas may be permitted to receive a Christmas package from home. Only through the wholehearted co-operation and assistance of the mailing public, the retail stores, and all others concerned will it be possible to handle this year's record volume of holiday package mail.

It is most urgent that these gift parcels be selected and mailed as early as possible within the 30-day period from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15, in order that no last-minute backlog occur at any of the several ports of embarkation.

We owe it to our armed forces overseas to shop early, wrap secure ly, mail early and, above all, address legibly and completely these holiday gifts which mean so much to fighting men's morale. au18-4t

ADAMS—HIGGINS

There is much Winchester interest in the marriage which took place at the North Congregational Church in North Woburn on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 19, when Miss Norma Esther Higgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy J. Higgins of Spring street, Stoneham, formerly of Cross street, Winchester, became the bride of Pfc. Paul Hubbard Adams, USA, son of Mr. Burtie Adams of Bergen, N. Y. The bridegroom has only recently returned from overseas duty with the First Division in Italy where he was for 18 months a prisoner of war.

Rev. Elton K Bassett, pastor of the church, officiated at the 3 o'clock ceremony, for which the bridal music was played by Mrs. George H. Lochman of this town, organist and choir director at the Second Congregational Church. The bride's brother, Allan Higgins, baritone, sang "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond. A reception was held immediately after the ceremony in the church vestry.

Miss Higgins' honor maid was Miss Jane Cleaves of Wilton, N. H., and the bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Pittman, also of Wilton, and Miss Shirley Sevrens of North Woburn. CANTEEN TO BE IN ODD FELLOWS BUILDING

Plans are rapidly developing for the opening of the new Red and Black Canteen, to be operated as a sort of club and community center for the young people of Winchester with juke box dancing, a game room, [illegible] etc.

The Canteen Committee consisting of high school students representing the different groups and sections of town is now organizing its subcommittees so that an active operating group will be functioning as house committee; program committee, coke bar committee, publicity committee, etc. Each of these committees will be backed up by a corresponding subcommittee of the adult Canteen Advisory Committee.

Arrangements have now been completed so that the Canteen will occupy the street floor of the Odd Fellows Hall on Vine street. Located only two blocks from the center, and only a few minutes walk from the high school, this building and location seem well suited for Canteen purposes. The large main hall will be fitted up as a lounge and dance floor with folding table tennis tables, and piano and juke box will be on the stage which can also be used for shows and special events. The adjoining large room on the first floor, usually used for lodge meetings, will be the game room, with dart games, checkers, table tennis, etc.

It is now planned to open the Canteen Saturday, Sept. 15. For the first few weeks it will be open on Friday and Saturday nights only and will be exclusively for the high school group There will be no admission charge or dues. Later the facilities of the Canteen will be extended in a similar way to other youth groups in town provided they are organized properly and represent the town as a whole

ALICE S. WOODBERRY

Alice S. Woodberry passed away Wednesday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Austin T. Bunker, 5 Worthen road. She was born in Charlestown, daughter of Margaret Tufts and A. Doddridge Farnum. The family soon moved to New Hampshire where her girlhood was spent in Warner.

In 1888 she married William H. Woodberry of Somerville and they made their home on Winter Hill. After his death in 1928 the family continued in the home until 1937.

A member of the Winter Hill Congregational Church for almost 50 years, Mrs. Woodberry was always active in the work of the church and the Woman's Society. Prominent among her interests in the city was the Somerville Home for the Aged of which she was a vice president for many years.

She leaves a daughter, Margaret Bunker.

Services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Broadway Winter Hill Congregational Church in Somerville.

LIFTS TO HAVE SCHOOL FOR VETERANS

To serve the educational and social needs of discharged servicemen beginning to enroll at Tufts, a School for War Veterans has been opened on the Tufts campus, it is announced this week by Dr. Leonard Carmichael, Tufts president.

The school, which is similar in administrative control to the School of War Service for the Tufts Naval College Training Unit and other service programs, is not a degree-granting school, but aims rather to serve as a "vestibule" for getting the veteran into one of the regular undergraduate, graduate or professional schools as rapidly as possible.

The school's program provides for giving special attention to the educational requirements of the serviceman who seeks a different type of educational and vocational training at the college level than does the student entering college immediately after high school graduation. It has been found that certain study tools of the returning veteran need improvement and revitalizing and that he must, in many cases, relearn subject-matter material basic to advanced study.

A guidance program will be a major department of the school, while a continuing testing program and free tutoring under the Tufts Institute of Educational Guidance, is also an integral function of the school's plan.

Because it is felt that the veteran entering or coming back to college wants to waste no time in getting started, he need not wait until the beginning of a new term for registration, but may enroll at frequent intervals. Refresher courses and adjustment or orientation seminars of a transitional nature will allow him, in a trial period, to bridge the gap in qualifying for courses in the regular college curriculum.

The accrediting of previous educational work will be judged in terms of achievement wherever practicable in conformity with the recommendations of the National Committee of the American Council on Education. This is particularly important in evaluating the veteran's past military training and education. For example, if a veteran has acquired a foreign language fluency during military service in a foreign country, as demonstrated by tests, his proficiency will be accredited, after consultation with appropriate Tufts faculty representatives.

Arrangements are being made to make available separate housing facilities, when desirable, so that veterans may live among students of their own age group, insuring them a more socially enjoyable time in college life which for them has been postponed by war. An adequate recreational program for the social adjustment of older men and women is likewise being set up.

A reception center with office and attractively furnished lounge has been opened in Braker Hall, the newest classroom building on the campus. Here the veteran receives a preliminary interview, followed by registration. In addition, the center deals with problems of general orientation, housing and recreation. Thus assistance is lent to the veteran at the outset that he will receive the social "treatment" which is his due.

VICTORY GARDEN HARVEST SHOW

The second Victory Garden Harvest Show will be held in the town hall on Friday, Sept. 8 from 2 p. m. to 9 p. m. and Saturday, Sept. 9 from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

It will again be sponsored by Winchester Civilian Defense and staged by the Winchester Better Homes Garden Club and the Winchester Garden Club.

Mrs. James A. Newman, president of the Winchester Better Homes Garden Club has been appointed general chairman of the show. Mrs. Harold M. Twombley and Mrs. John R. Wills, president of the Winchester Garden Club will serve as her vice chairmen. Mr. Marshall W. Symmes, chairman of the Civilian Defense Victory Garden Committee and Mr. Edmund C. Filler, last year's chairman, will serve as the general committee.

With the knowledge gained from last year's successful exhibition this promises to be even more interesting and worthwhile than before.

The committee would like to emphasize the fact that this is a town affair, open to everyone, and it is earnestly desired that all gardeners take part.

Classes of exhibits have been enlarged and simplified somewhat, but there will be an opportunity to display anything which is the product of your gardening.

On another page of the Star will be found a complete schedule of all the classes. Read it through carefully and see how many entries you can make.

There will also be a special division for boys and girls under the direction of Mrs. Alice Brown, associate Country Club agent. So juniors, bring your garden products, your hens, rabbits, etc.

Entry blanks may be secured at the public library or by calling Mrs. Newman (Win. 1068-W) or Mrs. Twombley (Win. 0181).

Mr. Chester F. Wolfe is chairman of registration which closes on Wednesday, Sept. 6. Mrs. Wolfe requests that all entry blanks be in by then as many planning naturally depends on the number of entries in each class. These registration blanks may be left at the public library or at civilian defense headquarters or mailed to Mrs. Wolfe at 12 Jefferson road.

Remember entries must be in by Sept. 6.

Exhibits may be left at the town hall on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 7, and must be there before 10 a. m. on Friday. The show opens at 2 o'clock and this allows the judges sufficient time to consider each exhibit carefully.

Judges for the fruits and vegetables will be Prof. Ray Knoss of the Waltham Field Station, Mrs. Knoss, and Mr. Robert M. Baker of Concord.

The flower arrangements and exhibits will be judged by Mrs. Chester Cook of Lexington, Mrs. Ralph B. Stratton of Melrose and Mrs. Paul Waldleigh of Boston.

Miss Edith West of the Middlesex County Extension Service at Concord will judge the canned goods.

The information booth, so helpful last year, will be repeated this year. Mr. Frederick W. Bunker, consultant for the Boston Victory Gardens, will be in attendance on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and evening, to discuss and help you solve your garden problems and Miss Dorothea Harrison of the County Extension Service will answer questions on Friday afternoon.

The Wishing Well, the proceeds from which go to a fund for flowers for the town hospitals in this area, will again be in evidence.

A delightful one-hour or will be the tea room, conducted by the Wincheste Better Homes Garden Club. The [illegible] you may [illegible] with sandwiches, cake and tea and order the colorful panorama of multi-colored fruits, vegetables and flowers. Mrs. Robert S. SONS OF ITALY NEWS

Hi fellows! here's one more of the converts. Supreme Venerable Judge Felix Forte had the pleasure of informing the assembly that the Order Sons of Italy in America had been awarded a certificate by the U. S. Treasury Department in recognition of our splendid support of the war effort by our purchase of war bonds. The Mass. Grand Lodge was the first fraternal organization in the state to invest money in war bonds. We bought an initial amount of $30,000 and up to the present time have a total of $185,000 worth.

It was only natural that a people of foreign extraction should take the initiative in a move of this sort. This due to the fact that many of these people who are illiterate are everlastingly grateful to this country for having spared their children the pains of illiteracy. They were so busy bringing up families and trying to give their children the education they themselves were denied that no time was left for self-education.

I trust that when you boys come back you will make every effort to try to correct the legislation which denies these parents of our citizenship because of their illiteracy. They were not indifferent to citizenship, they were too busy raising the many children who were to comprise our present fighting forces. Never be ashamed of their lack of education. Be always mindful of the high standards of courage set up by them and their many contributions towards the building of a better country. Shame will be yours only if your courage and behaviour fall below the mark they have set for you.

At the club things are going along pretty much as usual. A committee is now working on plans for Oct. 12 which as you know has always been the date of our annual banquet. Due to the fact that many of the members work on night shifts it is difficult to get enough men together to have a real big affair. However, in spite of these difficulties we intend to commemorate the day in some way.

I'll bet Tony Penta was surprised to read that he had been home. You see it wasn't Tony at all but rather his brother Larry. Sorry we didn't have a chance to see Larry as I'm sure he would have had something interesting to say to you fellows. Naturally I would have edited it so that it would get by the censorship.

Either the responsibilities of married life are greater than we think, or the mail man is playing tricks on us as we received no mail from Jumbo.

We don't remember whether or not you fellows were ever told that ex-Ven John D. Volpe is now stationed in Washington, D. C. If this hint doesn't work we guess we'll have to write a note to a certain individual asking him point blank to drop us a line.

A certain fellow asked us to refrain from mentioning his name. How're we doing?

If you fellows who have not as yet received a gift from the Grand Lodge would let us know I will gladly take it up at the next meeting of the Grand Lodge Servicemen's Committee of which I am a member.

Our victory party committee is looking into the cost of an honor roll plaque to be displayed at our club house. We now have 14 members in the armed forces.

Jim Figlioli left today for Camp Buttner, North Carolina, where he will be reassigned. While Jim was home he became engaged. Best of luck to you both Jim.

That's all for this week boys. Here's hoping I have some letters to acknowledge next week.

A VISITOR IN TOWN

Motorcycle Officer Irving Reardon picked up quite a character Wednesday forenoon in the person of a small Negro, whom he found soliciting food from local stores. Clad in non-descript and very ragged clothes, with a rope for suspenders and a felt hat, minus the crown, the 42 year old wanderer gave his name as Willie Davis and said he came originally from "Mississip". In reply to a question by Chief Rogers, he said he had nothing against work, and admitted having been arrested so many times he would not dare to give the number.

Willie agreed to get out of town at once if he was released from the Station House and said he would not have stopped in Winchester had it not been for the attention shown him by Officer Reardon. He was given a much better hat and coat than the ones he was wearing by the Chief and officers at Headquarters, and also some money for lunch, after which he got "on his way South" as he expressed it. He had come East from Chicago.

CURTIS AND SIMONDS WIN WEEK-END RACES

Roger Curtis, one of the club's most promising young skippers finally got his Dunlin moving, and won last Saturday's Winchester Snipe Fleet race. After leading the fleet for a lap and a half, Roger relinquished it to Ralph Swanson then came back with a stirring stretch drive on the last windward let and beat out Ralph by a generous margin. As a matter of fact, Swanson got tangled up with a couple of Comets and had to be content with third. Second place went to Comdr. Jim Newman who sailed his usual steady race.

No one has ever won a race on the Mystic in more sensational manner than did Don Simonds last Sunday morning. Well in the wake of the leaders for more than a lap and a half, he suddenly shot S'shad ahead as though he'd turned on an outboard motor, and swept through the Snipe Fleet like the Yanks are sweeping through France.

Not a boat was near him at the finish, but the race for second between Barr Sullivan and Ralph Swanson was a thriller. Barr picked up a beautiful streak of wind on the last windward leg, to wipe out a nice lead Ralph had, but as he neared the finish line, Ralph veered in on the starboard tack, forced Barr about, and then beat him across the line by an eyelash.

Club Chatter

Like the ping pong tournament, the cribbage tournament has also been extended to allow vacationing participants to return and get in a few extra games. You "15-two-ers" better come down to the club and get in a few more games before the tourney closes . . . The Winchester Snipe skippers engaged the Tech Dinghy sailors in a meet on the Charles Sunday afternoon. The less said about it, the better. But wait'll we get 'em on the Mystic . . . Air Cadet "Stretch" Simonds was home and sailed his famous Genghis Khan. It sure was swell to have him out there and we hope he enjoys his leave to the fullest.

PROVINZANO HAD GOOD SEASON WITH CASEYS

Sammy Provinzano has had quite a season with the Dick Casey Club of the Boston Park League, playing shortstop and the outfield for the leading team of the circuit.

During the regular season Sammy maced the apple for a cool .392 and during the championship playoffs with the Navy Yard hit for .352. He hied to the outfield when his throwing arm which got him out of professional ball last season commenced to bother him again. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pietro Provinzano of Florence street and brother of Frank Provinzano, former B. U. football and baseball star, now overseas with the Army Engineers. A younger brother, Peter, Winchester High School all around athlete who pitched for a Red Sox farm team until he entered the Army last year, is in the Army Air Corps.

WINCHESTER BOYS AT COURTLAND FIELD

Two Winchester aviation cadets, Ralph W. Jury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Jury of Lloyd street, and Robert Cummings, Jr., son of Rev. and Mrs. Robert Cummings of Yale street have reported at the Army Air Forces Basic Pilot School, Courtland Army Air Field, Courtland, Ala., to commence the second stage of flight training. The BT-13 which cadets learn to handle at Courtland is a faster and heavier plane than the one flown at Primary School, requiring a wider knowledge of all aerial sciences.

GRAHAM AT MAXWELL FIELD

Douglas J. Graham of 72 Bacon street, former Winchester High School football captain, is now enrolled as an aviation cadet in the pre-flight school at Maxwell Field, Alabama, where he is receiving nine weeks of intensive military, physical and academic training.

Cadet Graham captained the football team at Winchester High in 1938, graduating in 1939, and also playing varsity basketball. He attended Harvard College in 1939-40, leaving college for a job in a war plant.

WATER DEPT. EMPLOYEE WRITES BIG BOSS FROM ITALY

APO 464, Italy,
Aug. 13, 1944

Edmund C. Snaderson, Water Commissioner,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:

Your letter and little booklet arrived the other day and as today is Sunday I have a chance to get off a few lines to answer it.

It is nice to know that someone back home likes to read about our work. I suppose Mr. Weston (Lt. Col. Arvin D. Weston, Chief Engineer, Water Dept., if Health) would like to have a few of our units around in good time. I think it would be nice if the Department had a few around in the case of trouble.

It has been a lot of fun chasing the Army all the way up here from the 11th of May. We have put in and taken out water pipe so fast that we don't even see some of them before they were gone.

Our job I got a big kick from was making an investigation and a report on the damage to city and town water supplies. Some of course was the best of these. I didn't see it all but I did see a plan of the entire system. The day I went to one of the sources, the Germans were still firing from the hills above the river. The main pipe line still follows the course of the old aqueducts and the remains can be seen. I hope to get a picture of one of our plants with the Aqueduct in the background.

The city system in Rome was in good shape. The mains from the source were damaged and it didn't take long to get them in shape, so the city didn't really suffer for water. Some of the little towns and cities got it right in the neck. The Germans would blow the source, pumping and filter plants and reservoirs and the shelling would blow the mains apart. To try and repair many of the systems would be a hopeless task. It means they will have to rebuild all new systems. We were able to supply most towns because there were few people left in them.

I have seen all kinds of pipe used over here, cast iron, steel, concrete lined, and transite. The transite pipe used has a bell and spigot joint, not our rubber one. They use a lot of large sized threaded steel pipe. I have seen as big as 8 in. On one line I saw, about two miles of it, had all flange joints. Just think of the leaks they must have had.

Right now we are operating about 20 water plants and all except four are on wells. Most of the rivers are dry, right now. We are doing a lot of running around looking for good sources. One of our points is putting out close to a million gallons a week. Our average is 250,000 gallons a day right now.

All three of our drill rigs are out drilling for water. One of them is down 900 feet; they drilled about 23 feet through gravel and then hit blue clay and have been in that clay all the way down.

This is much nicer country than what we were in when we first got here. The people are of a better class too. Right now we are camped in a big farm up on a hill overlooking the sea. As I sit here now I can look out the office door and watch the sailboats. Reminds me of Marblehead.

Most all the water plants over here use a Wallace and Tiernan chlorinator either built in the States or England. Those built in England were made by the Permutit people. There are a few places using ozone in the water. I didn't get much chance to look those over as they were all blown apart.

I am still feeling fine and enjoying myself as much as I can away from home.

We are getting plenty to eat right now. Our diet is much improved with all the fresh fruit and vegetables we are getting. We get plenty of fresh meat and eggs from the States. Also fresh butter which is a big help in the mornings on our flap jacks.

Right now we stick pretty close to the radio waiting to hear that long hoped for news of the end. We all feel that it isn't too far away.

Remember me to all the family and the office force.

As ever,

Jim

SHINNICK ENJOYED "TEA IN BED"

Tech. Sgt. Jerry Shinnick, USAAF, son of Mr and Mrs. John D. Shinnick of 423 Washington street, recently enjoyed a recess from aerial warfare at an Air Service Command rest home a remodeled English manor house where America's airmen who provide aerial cover for the advancing Allied armies in France may relax between missions.

There Tech. Sgt. Shinnick put on civvies, clothes and lounged in the peaceful atmosphere of an old country home, complete with butler, tea in bed and every type of recreational activity.

After seven days, he went back to his combat station, ready to play his part once again in the air battle covering the Allied march across France. He completed 52 missions over Nazi-held Europe.

MRS. SOROKIN CHAIRMAN

Mrs. Perrin A. Sorokin of Cliff street is Winchester chairman for the big mailing effort, in which more than a score of Greater Boston communities will join on Sept. 14, seeking to collect 1,000,000 pounds of desperately needed clothing for immediate shipment to Russia. Most Russian families, now facing their fourth bitter winter of war, have had no new clothing since June 1941, when civilian factories were closed following the Nazi invasion.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION SPORTS NIGHT

A sensationally successful sports night was sponsored on Wednesday, Aug. 16 by the Immaculate Conception C. Y. O. of Winchester. A huge crowd thronged Loring avenue field to witness the festivities and they enjoyed hilarious evening of fun and song.

First, there were the usual ball games which have been taking place nightly during the past summer and spring. On the baseball diamond a ring day league game between the twelve of the parish 12 team entry in that league took place. In the match Coach Bobby Hagen's Villanova came from behind to defeat Guy Washburn' St. Mary's 7-6 in a fast moving finish. Dashing 6'2" 200 pound southpaw Capt. Jack Garvey's troupe of the many pitchers in Sport Hagen's fine delivery exhibition of hurling power that he usually has established on a local field.

On the soft ball diamond in all six games rolled from two parish and intermediate league contests in which C. Y. O. team Lexington by the score of 25 to 6. Rev. Father Collier, Miss Dorothy and Mary Rooney chalked out a total of 18 home runs and a pair of triples. Considering the fact that Lexington had a powerful club, it was a thrilling exhibition of power. The game, moreover, was only a four inning abbreviated contest. The Immaculate girls are eager to play on a "Greater Boston" soft ball team. Those desirous of playing should communicate with Fr. Kucera, or tel W. 1878.

Following the ball games the crowd repaired to the center of the field. There they formed a huge spiral. Automobile headlights flooded the night. While a makeshift orchestra retired to a corner of the field to practice its pieces, several boxing exhibitions and instructions were staged. Local instructors alternated swiftly between one set of boxers after another.

A few of the many contestants were the following: Charley O'Reilly vs. Jack Foley; Sock Dizzy vs. Jim Foley; the Riordy brothers, Joe and John; Joe McDonough vs. Tommy McKee; Paul Amico vs. Joe Dizzio; Tommy Foley vs. Tommy Cogane; Dan Cirone vs. Jim Pereira; Tommy McNulty vs. F. Breen. Their zest, enthusiasm, and willingness to slug it out, captured the hearts of the audience and the loud cheers were forthcoming. Finally Mc-Hugh vs. McKee match, a brisk-fire comedy-packed set-to, provided the most interest and humor.

In the meantime the parish orchestra leader had rounded up his musical talent. It was a make-shift affair, playing together for the first time. Consequently, they didn't always click as a unit. However, with practice, they intend to climb the musical scale of perfection during subsequent appearances. The orchestra comprised Johnnie Melaragno, Leo McGonigle, Dan Noonan, Phil Barrett, Richard Lynch, Rocco Ferraina, the McElhinney brothers, the Costello brothers, Dan Rosa, Paul Amico, Bob McHugh, and Carl DeFilippo.

The orchestra ran through all the popular numbers and the warm night air was filled with the notes of happy song. Ballads of yesterday and today were sung by the crowd and the cheers were interspersed with solos by local favorites. The renditions of John Rafferty and Florence Alberts were especially well received. Laughter and humor pervaded the entire program.

All of these fun fests will be held during succeeding weeks.

Of the 30 teams organized within the parish and several leagues sponsored by the Immaculate Conception C. Y. O. of Winchester, the intermediate league proved to be the most successful and attracted the largest following. Teams have been named after the various Catholic colleges. Started in the springtime, the league has just rounded out its second half.

Boys' Teams

Villanova (Capt. John Garvey) won eight and lost two.

St. Mary's (Capt. Tom Carroll) won 7 and lost 3.

Boston College (Capt. Bob Fiore) won 5 and lost 4.

Holy Cross (Capt. Jack McHugh) won 4 and lost 6.

St. Anselm's (Capt. Dan Cirone) won 4 and lost 6.

Georgetown (Capt. Joe McElhinney) won 2 and lost 8.

Teddy Livingston was in charge of the boys' league, with each team having two coaches. The same held true in the girls' soft ball league, where Charley Valcour was in general command.

Girls' Teams

Georgetown (Capt. Doris McKee) won 9 and lost 1.

Fordham (Capt. Milly Dineen) won 7 and lost 3.

Holy Cross (Capt. Kay O'Donnell) won 6 and lost 4.

Boston College (Capt. Mary Haggerty) won 4 and lost 6.

Villanova (Capt. Barbara Hovey) won 3 and lost 7.

Marquette (Capt. Nola Manderville) lost 10.

All star line-ups are culled from the league to play against outside teams. Generally the line-ups vary with each game. If a player is not himself during the preceding workouts he is chosen for a regular position. The Immaculate Girl All-Stars have been particularly successful. Thus far, they are undefeated.

MAJOR HARRIS CITED

The Presidential Unit Citation and ribbon bar with star has been awarded to Major James W. Harris of Belmont, former Winchester boy, for actual combat days with the First Marine Division, reinforced, at Guadalcanal before Dec. 9, 1942.

A member of an infantry regiment during the heavy American (CVE) invasion action, Major Harris was cited by the late Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, in the name of the President of the United States.

The citation reads in part: "The officers and men of the First Marine Division, reinforced . . . not only held their important strategic position despite determined and repeated Japanese naval, air and land attacks, but by a series of offensive operations against strong enemy resistance drove the Japanese from the proximity of the airfield and inflicted great losses on them by land and air attacks. The courage and determination displayed in these operations were of an inspiring order."

Major Harris has been overseas for 30 months and has served in Australia, New Caledonia, Guadalcanal, the Fiji Islands and Bougainville. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray W. Harris of 153 Pine street, Belmont and has a brother, Ray, Jr., who is a flight officer (pilot) stationed at Tallahassee, Fla., waiting for overseas orders.

Major Harris is a graduate of Winchester High School where he captained the football team. Later he graduated from University of Maine where he also played varsity football and captained the eleven. It is understood that the citing of Major Harris Division marks the first time in American history that an Army division has been cited by the Marines or Navy.

RED CROSS FARM PICNIC

We know that those of our readers who are always interested in the wonderful work which the Red Cross is doing will be glad to read the following copy of a letter of appreciation to the Red Cross.

Bedford, Mass.,
Aug. 16, 1944

Mr. & Mrs. Dutting,

We very much appreciate the good work of the Winchester Red Cross and the members of the Fourth grade Class in providing for a delightful picnic here on July 19. The children gave an extra party for me and I should say that every child was there carrying a wrapped gift, so nice and appreciative of their efforts.

The food was indeed fine — one of the most remarked, being ears of corn. As chief cook on that day, I was glad the frankfurters were browned and not burned.

We have had so many complimentary things said by the men of ward 2-D that we are convinced this was at especially fine piece of theraphy. Private Powers later said he had been to many outings and parties for patients in various hospitals but he thought this the source of the greatest good and benefit of any he had attended. He, you remember, is the soldier-attendant who assisted by supervising the games of baseball, horse-shoes, etc.

Everyone here looks forward to your assistance and attendance at outing for 2D and 2A on Aug. ... which is provided through Mrs. Blake's granddaughter and your R... Class.

GAUM OVERSEAS

Tech. Sgt. Albert F. Gaum, formerly of 176 Mystic Valley Parkway and a veteran of World War I, is now on overseas duty once more with the United States Army.

Formerly stationed at Lathrop Engineering Depot, Lathrop, Cal., he left there June 22 for Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, N. Y., his port of embarkation, leaving for the European Theatre after about three weeks, unattached and expecting his ultimate destination to be France.

The latest letter received by his wife, states that Sgt. Gaum had a fine trip across and was feeling "in the pink." Apparently the "old vet" can still show some of the young fellow the way.

Sunday services 11 a. m

Wednesday testimonial meeting 8 p. m.

Reading Room, 5 Winchester Terraces (off Thompson street). Open daily except Sundays and holidays from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and in all of its branches, on Sunday, Aug. 27, will be Christ Jesus.

The Golden Text, Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the Lord, and my God shall be my strength, is from Isaiah 49:5. Other Bible citations include, Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples. As the Father hath loved me so have I loved you; continue ye in my love (John 15:8,9).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, If that Godlike and glorified man were physically on earth today would not some who now profess to love him, reject him? Would they not deny him even the rights of humanity, if he entertained any other sense of being and religion than theirs? The advancing century, from a deadened sense of the invisible God, today subjects to unchristian comment and name the idea of Christian healing enjoined by Jesus; but this does not affect the invincible facts (p. 54).

George Andrew McFeeters of 21 Winchester place was found dead in his room Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 23 shortly after 4 o'clock by Officers Henry Dempsey and Edward Bowler of the Police Department.

The Police summoned Dr. Robert L. Emery who pronounced Mr. McFeeters dead, stating that he had been dead for at least 24 hours. Dr. Ira W. Richardson of Wakefield, medical examiner for that district, who viewed the body in the absence of Dr. John M. Wilcox of Woburn, local examiner, pronounced death due to natural causes and said that Mr. McFeeters had been dead for from 24 to 36 hours.

Mr. McFeeters' son, Warren G. McFeeters of Stoneham, was notified and ordered the body taken in charge by Charles W. Messer and Son, funeral directors, of Stoneham.

Mr. McFeeters had made his home in Winchester for many years. Born in Ireland, June 20, 1879 he grew up and was married in that country, coming to Winchester as a young man.

For many years Mr. McFeeters was employed at the tannery of Beggs and Cobb in Winchester. Latterly he had worked at jobbing and as a gardener. His wife, the former Annabella Morrow, died in 1920.

BOSTON MUTUAL GAINS IN 1944

The Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company's increase of $5,547,461 insurance in force for the first six months of 1944 approximates two-thirds of the gain for all of 1943. On this basis, President Jay R. Benton forecasts a record year.

Another factor indicative of progress is the increase of 12,207 policyholders, making a total of 264,264, with $125,230,449 total insurance in force June 30th.

During the half year period, gains exceeded disbursements by $1,043,841. Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries for the first six months amounted to $3663,728; total since organization, $39,677,769.

President Benton believes that the increase in policyholders is particularly significant of the confidence New Englanders have in the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company, because the insurance investments have been made in addition to large purchases of War Stamps and Bonds. It is also further evidence of the thrift for which this section is noted, inasmuch as insurance is the most practical way to provide protection and augment social security.

The company's policy of participating strongly in America's war effort has been continued with $14,949,741 of $17,190,662 investments in stocks and bonds now in U. S. Government Bonds.

In commenting on the situation arising from the number of employees in the armed forces, President Benton said, "The progress made by the smaller field force and home office staff is a tribute to the spirit of service and co-operation throughout the organization."

NEW FISHER CATALOGUE

Young women interested in a secretarial career will want the new illustrated catalogue recently published by the Fisher School. It features careers of seven graduates and gives details of career courses now available and unusual placement opportunities.

The catalogue also announces the appointment of Earlene Morey Cornell of Milford, instructor of world history, and economic geography. These subjects are a part of the foreign trade secretarial course which was announced for the 1944-45 season. Registrations in this professional course have been more satisfactory.

Carol Adams Landry of Stoneham, instructor in accounting has returned to the Winter Hill School after a year's leave of absence.

Ralph Sanborn, associate general agent of the Sanborn Insurance Agency of Boston, has accepted the appointment as chairman of the Metropolitan division of the 1944-45 greater Boston maintenance appeal for $400,000 for the Salvation Army. Mr. Sanborn, a graduate of Dartmouth College in 1917, was a second lieutenant in the 39th U. S. Infantry, AEF, in World War I. He entered the insurance business in 1922. His outside activities include serving as a member of the Boston Evening Transcript dramatic reviewing staff and the writing of several books on insurance and biography as well as numerous articles for trade publications. Mr. Sanborn is a member of the Salvation Army greater Boston advisory board.

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS AT HIGH SCHOOL FAIRLY GOOD

Despite the fact that all but two of the team that started against Woburn last Thanksgiving have either graduated or left school, Winchester High should not be too badly off for experienced material to start the 1944 football season with the re-opening of school next week.

Coach Henry Knowlton was due back in town last night from his counseling duties at Camp Wyanoke and will undoubtedly be working out with some of his boys in advance of the regular practice sessions. Work will be limited to limbering up, passing, kicking and general conditioning, just to get out the summer kinks before hard work starts in earnest.

Winchester has nobody but Swampscott to open up with and from what we have seen of both clubs over the past two seasons we would rate the "Sculpins" a tougher team than Framingham, despite the latter's fine record last fall. Swampscott generally is big, fast and well coached with plenty of depth. The local boys will do well to get by them starting away.

Of last year's starting lineup vs Woburn Dick Nihan and Jim Tibaudo, ends; Ken Harvey and Paul Amico, tackles; Ralph Muehlig and Tom Derro, guards; Carmine Tofuri, center; and Tony Saraco and Frank DiMambro, backs, are lost to this year's club, all but Tibaudo graduating. Jim chose to go into the Navy last spring instead of completing his junior and senior years in school. He would have been a corking good end this fall!

From last year's reserve eleven, Phil O'Rourke, end; Freddie Hicks, guard; and Steve Greene, back, received their diplomas in June while Jim Migliacci left school to enter the service.

Staggering as these losses seem, thanks to Coach Knowlton's system of developing reserves and working with a large squad, he will be able to field a team of experienced boys right off the bat. Figuring on only those who saw action last year and have either first or second team letters he can start a club with Frank Faieta, 170, and Don Armstrong, 160, at ends; John Stevenson, 208; and Rog Latham, 190, or Guy Washburn, 155, tackles; Charlie Lovejoy, 165, guard; Sam Buzzotta, 160, center; and Capt. Charlie Walsh, 160, Sam Tibaudo, 160, Jim Haggerty, 160, Ted O'Rourke, 150, Johnnie West 160 and Charlie Roche, 170, backs.

This team would be complete, with another guard to run along with Lovejoy, had it not been for the recent unfortunate automobile accident in which Fran Lambiase, rugged and experienced guard with 170 pounds or so of weight, sustained a fractured skull. Looks like "Lambie" will play no football this fall and his loss will hurt for he was big and strong and just what the doctor ordered to stop power plays through the middle. In the few games he played at guard last year he looked good and with that experience Coach Knowlton was expecting a lot of him this fall. His loss is only another of the tough breaks popular "Hennie" has had since he took over the coaching job at Winchester.

In appraising this team which we mention above it should be remembered that the weights given are those the boys carried last fall vs Woburn. Most of them will be heavier this fall. For instance Rog Latham now goes 190 and Johnnie West, 170, to mention only a couple.

Besides these experienced boys there will be others who may, and very probably will, crowd them right out of the varsity picture. Coach Knowlton expects a big squad and will bang onto just as many of the boys as possible. Quite a few are ticketed for plenty of opportunity to win themselves starting jobs as a result of their showing in those Black and White "murders" last fall.

When school opens next week and the boys actally get down to business it won't take Coach Knowlton and his assistants long to size up the promising candidates and by Sept. 23, the day of the Swampscott game, bar injury and ineligibility, Winchester ought to have a team ready to give the big Blue team a real game.

YOUNG PEOPLE PREPARING CANTEEN FOR OPENING

With the opening date for the Red and Black Canteen set for Sept. 16, just two weeks away, the Canteen Committee is very busy with preparations for the first "open house". Under the spark-plug leadership of Jim Ware, Canteen President, a group of football huskies including Sam Buzzotta and Joe Errico have been busy with brooms, scrub brushes and mops getting their new quarters in order, while the girls led by Myrna Zamanakos and Nancy Ford, have started collection of furniture, banners, lamps, and other accessories to make the new club rooms homelike.

The Red and Black Canteen will be located in the first floor of the Old Fellows Building on Vine street only two short blocks from Winchester Center, and a few minutes walk from the High School whose student body it will primarily serve. In the Canteen there will be a coke bar, game room and a large lounge with piano, jute box and other facilities to make it a really pleasant club in which the young people of Winchester can seek recreation and good times. Although there will be occasional guest nights and special events, the Canteen is intended more for casual and informal use, a place where girls or boys or couples can drop in to spend a pleasant hour or evening with their friends.

There will be no fees or membership dues, but at the opening of high school next week the Canteen Committee members will give out to their fellow students a printed membership card provided they sign an application in which they agree to abide by the rules for the Canteen as set up by the Canteen Committee and the Canteen Advisory Committee, an adult committee set up to assist the young people in their project. Members of the Canteen Committee from whom membership cards may be obtained are:

Senior Class

Jim Ware, Roy Monson, Sam Buzzotta, Joe Errico, Nancy Ford, Jane Russell, Bud Way.

Junior Class

Libby Fenno, Ed Hicks.

In addition to this group, Frank Lambiase is a member of the Canteen Committee, but his unfortunate accident and present hospitalization have put him on the sidelines. Serving with the Canteen Committee are additional high school students who make up the house, publicity, program, coke bar and hostess committees and who as a group represent the different precincts and interest groups in town.

In its early stages the Canteen will be open Friday and Saturday evenings and some afternoons for high school students or those who would now be in high school if they were not working or in the service. Later, after a Junior High School Committee is formed, certain afternoons will be assigned to the Junior High School group, and to other youth groups in the town provided they organize a governing committee representative of the entire town and acceptable to the Canteen Advisory Committee.

At the present time the Canteen House Committee needs help in locating chairs, couches, tables, lamps, banners and other material for the Canteen Lounge. If you have any, call Jim Ware, Canteen President, Win. 2180-W.

"ED" GODFREY HEADS RED CROSS STAFF ON GAUM

Edward B. Godfrey, whom many in Winchester will remember as head of the recreation program in town some years ago and the first lifeguard at Palmer Beach, is now even busier than he was in those days heading the staff of a Red Cross Unit on Gaum.

Word of Godfrey comes through a delayed dispatch from another well known local sports figure, Staff Sgt. Gordon D. "Red" Marston of Stoneham, former Stoneham High all around athlete and later Boston Herald reporter before entering the service.

With Marine casualties very heavy in the bitter struggle for Gaum, Godfrey and his associates were kept on the jump covering the hospitals day and night. At present he is directing the installation of a recreation center in the capital city of Agana. Prior to his new duties Godfrey served with the Third Amphibious Marine Corps during the Bougainville campaign.

"Ed", as he is known to his many friends in Winchester, served as a pilot in the Air Corps during the First World War. He was offered a commission as an instructor in this field, but turned it down to go overseas with the Marines. He is married to the former Hazel Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer E. Smith of Ridge street, who is making her home with her parents for the duration.

The Godfreys have two children, Patricia 18, who is with her mother here and Edward, Jr., who is in the Army Engineers and who was last heard from at Camp Cook in California, waiting to go overseas.

At one time Godfrey was an assistant to Eddie Casey when the latter was coaching football at Harvard. After heading the recreation program here and serving as lifeguard at Palmer Beach he accepted a position as head of the Department of Physical Education and athletic coach at the Hawkens School in South Euclid, Ohio, where he had been for 11 years before entering the service, making his home in Cleveland Heights.

AN APPEAL FROM THE WAR AND NAVY DEPARTMENTS

The War and Navy Departments are exerting every effort that every soldier and sailor overseas may be permitted to receive a Christmas package from home. Only through the wholehearted co-operation and assistance of the mailing public, the retail stores, and all others concerned will it be possible to handle this year's record volume of holiday package mail.

It is most urgent that these gift parcels be selected and mailed as early as possible within the 30-day period from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15, in order that no last-minute backlog occur at any of the several ports of embarkation.

We owe it to our armed forces overseas to shop early, wrap securely, mail early and, above all, address legibly and completely these holiday gifts which mean so much to fighting men's morale. aul8-1t

DRIVER WITHOUT LICENSE ARRESTED

Recaptured After Escape from Dock in Woburn Court

Last Friday morning shortly before 9 o'clock Chief Charles McCauley of the Woburn Police notified local Headquarters that a Hudson sedan was headed from his city toward Winchester driven by a young man without a license.

Sgt. Thomas F. Cassidy spotted the car in the center, the driver failing to stop at a red light. When questioned he said that he had no license to drive and the Police say he also admitted never having had a license. Sgt. Cassidy arrested him on the charge of driving without a license and he was booked at headquarters, giving his name as Gino J. Vozzella, 21, of West Roxbury.

Sgt. Cassidy took Vozzella at once to the Woburn Court where Chief William H. Rogers and Motorcycle Officer Irving Reardon had already taken one or two other cases.

While Vozzella was in the dock waiting to be arraigned he suddenly made a break for the stairs leading to the lower floor of the courthouse and despite attempts to stop him, made good his escape by tearing a screen from the alderman's chamber and leaping through the window.

Later Vozzella was recaptured by Chief Rogers and Officers Reardon and Kenney of the Woburn Police in the vicinity of the Woburn Hospital and returned to court. There in a scuffle Chief Rogers' coat was torn and Officer Reardon received a real "haymaker" on the left eye.

Vozzella was finally subdued and arraigned, his case being continued until Aug. 29.

HELD FOR OBSERVATION

Gino J. Vozzella, 21, of West Roxbury, was ordered committed to the State Hospital at Worcester for observation when he appeared before Justice Curtis W. Nash in the District Court at Woburn Wednesday morning. Two physicians, Dr. Milton J. Quinn and Dr. Harold J. RED CROSS TEA

The Red Cross tea at Cushing General Hospital on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 27 the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross conducted a most successful and impressive tea for about 200 patients and their families at the Cushing General Hospital in Framingham.

The affair was in charge of Mrs. Clark Collins, the most efficient chairman, ably assisted by Mrs. Warren Goddu and the following junior hostesses: Mrs. Frances Jane Trask and the Misses Jane Doty, Muriel Fifield, Barbara Hayden, Polly Kimball, Mary McGrath, Ann Rivinius, Molly Scully, Geneyra Underwood and Betsy Ann Wright.

Over 70 tempting cakes, properly frosted, and dozens of cookies produced by some of Winchester's most famous cooks were transported in the Red Cross beach wagon while Mrs. Edward McDevitt, Mrs. Caroline Kellogg and Mrs. Minnie Garrett acted as chauffeurs, in their own cars, to make sure that the hostesses and kitchen workers were landed in safety and Mrs. George Dutting and Mrs. Ruth Hilton were present to add such artistic touches as appeared necessary to make the affair a complete success.

The hospital auditorium was the scene of the party and as the patients were brought in, some in wheel chairs, some in casts and some totally blind, there might have been an element of sadness to the situation but for the fact that they were all in a holiday mood and good will and cheerfulness were evident on all sides.

Many of these boys had entered Normandy on D day and were hoping to return to the conflict and help hasten the day of victory, but this was their "T" day and the way the cake disappeared was evidence that they intended to make the most of it. One boy consumed 15 pieces of cake while another was presented with a whole cake appropriately decorated, as it happened to be his birthday and this gracious act brought tears to his laughing eyes.

Those who were privileged to participate in the affair came away with the feeling that a worthy deed had been performed and a little sunshine added for those who were suffering for a great cause.

"PICK 'EM UP BOYS"

That's what Motorcycle Officer Irving Reardon said to three boys who had strewn pears all over High street Tuesday afternoon.

The boys did as requested, but allowed that they hadn't intended to mess up the highway with fruit.

It seems they had picked a bushel of pears from a tree on a vacant lot on High street, and after they had gotten the fruit picked had gotten into an altercation. In the course of the argument the trio pelted each other with pears and not being too careful, much of the fruity ammunition had found its way onto the street.

After seeing to it that the marksmen did a good cleaning-up job Officer Reardon had a word with their parents, learning that permission had been secured from the owner of the lot to pick the pears in the first place.

Among those who entertained the "T" and Coffee Club last week were Mrs. Elizabeth Zimmerman, Mrs. Madeleine Lindblad and Mrs. Deborah Millett.

Dear Brothers:

It is my painful duty to inform you that Buddy Pulli has been reported killed in action in the European theater of war. Buddy, navigator on a B24 had only recently been advanced to 1st lieutenant and had many missions to his credit. A native of Clarendon, Pa., he made his home in Winchester with his sister and his brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Archangelo Amico. Buddy's many friends will always remember him for his keen sense of humor and his love of fair play.

We received a nice letter from Rugged Muraco who is now writing with his right hand again. He is out of the hospital and has rejoined his outfit. Rugged stated that he was looking forward to a furlough soon when he would spend some time at the clubhouse. However, since receiving his letter we have learned that he has become the father of a bouncing baby boy, so I suppose he will be kept quite busy at home learning the many little chores that become a fathers lot on the acquisition of a son. Having been associated with unreasonable sergeants we feel he will more easily understand the seeming obstenacies of an infant. Congratulations and don't forget the stogies.

Although we have not heard from Francis Muraco for some time we understand that a certain member of his family is sure making herself heard. Yes we speak of none other than the new member of his family, a baby girl, Mrs. Muraco, the former Miss Corbi, is now doing fine. The grandparents, uncles and aunts are also doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

Anthony Falzano has been medically discharged from the Army and is back home with his parents. Anthony underwent an operation before volunteering and it was on account of recurrances of this old illness that he was discharged.

Joe Ficociello is in town for a short furlough before leaving for overseas duty. He is a tail gunner on a B24.

Gerry Ficociello has informed us that he is out of the hospital and has rejoined his unit.

WINCHESTER RED CROSS SWIMMING MEET

The annual swimming meet, sponsored by the Winchester Chapter American Red Cross and the Winchester Park Department was held at the Palmer street beach Saturday afternoon, Aug. 26, starting at 3 o'clock.

Regardless of the sudden and unexpected down pour which confronted them the officials decided that water was water and the contestants would get wet in any event and that postponement would be unnecessary so the meet proceeded as scheduled.

The judges, Mr. Edward Herman, Mr. Leo Garvey and Mr. Bill Mason and timer Mr. Lou Goddu were stationed on the off shore platform during the first cloudburst and despite their efficient performance were decidedly "all wet." On shore chief referee Mr. Bob Guild and announcer Mr. Bob Johnston kept things moving with the very able assistance of scorer Edith Dover and clerks of course Polly Kimball, Joy Pray and Helen Carroll.

Barbara Donaghey and Bob McGrath, winners of the outstanding swimmer trophies proved their claim to the awards.

"Barb" passed Junie Moffette in the 75 yard individual medley to win that event and later captured the 100 yard freestyle for women. Bob topped all competitors by winning four firsts: the 50 yard freestyle for boys, 14 and under, the 100 yard freestyle for men, the 75 yard individual medley and the men's diving.

The future Winchester star swimmers made their debut in the 10 yard novice with Jane Grace out in front and Bob Becker and Pete Murphy close second and third respectively.

The total results were as follows:

10 yard novice: 1, Jane Grace; 2, Bob Becker; 3, Pete Murphy. Time: 8.8 secs.

Girls' 25 yard freestyle (10 and under) 1, Rose O'Doherty; 2, Sheila McGowan; 3, Barbara Conlon. Time: 24.3 sec.

Girls' 25 yard freestyle (12 and under): 1, Beverly Gay; 2, Veronica Carpenter; 3, Lynn Aitkens. Time: 17.5 sec.

Girls' 50 yard freestyle (14 and under) 1, Beverly Gay; 2, Rose McGowan; 3, Veroniea Carpenter. Time 38.9 sec.

Women's 75 yard individual medley: 1, Barbara Donaghey; 2, June Moffette; 3, Helen McGowan. Time: 1 min. 3.6 sec.

Women's 100 yard freestyle: 1, Barbara Donaghey; 2, June Moffette; 3, Helen McGowan. Time: 1 min. 17.4 sec.

Boys' 25 yard freestyle (10 and under) 1, Sandy Burbank; 2, Reynold Goodrow; 3, Roger McTighe. Time: 19.4 sec.

Boys' 25 yard freestyle (12 and under) 1, John Power; 2, Paul McGowan; 3, John Gambino. Time: 15.6 sec.

Boys' 50 yard freestyle (14 and under) 1, Bob McGrath; 2, Wellington Burtnette; 3, Pete Dillingham. Time: 30.8 sec.

Men's 75 yard individual medley: 1, Bob McGrath; 2, Mike Gambino; 3, Francis Power. Time: 57.2 sec.

Men's 100 yard freestyle: 1, Bob McGrath; 2, Mike Gambino; 3, Tom McGowan. Time: 1 min. 1.6 sec.

Men's Diving: 1, Bob McGrath 23 points; 2, Tex Farrell 22 points; 3, Wellington Burtnett, 21 points.

Mrs. Harry Goodwin, chairman of water safety presented the trophies and Mr. George T. Davidson, chairman of the Park Department presented the medals.

PALMER BEACH PLAY RESUMED

After a long layoff due to the heat and other causes which have contributed to the members indifference throughout the frizzling summer, the Palmer Beach Horseshoe Association swung into action once more last week-end at the beach courts.

Only four members showed up for play and it is painful to admit that neither the President, Royal "Paper Trade" Teele nor the Secretary were among those present. Mr. Teel went to Provincetown (by boat) to have a last fling at the antiques before the holiday week-end while the Secretary could not be reached at all for any excuse which he might have cared to advance for his failure to respond.

"Wild Willie" McLaughlin, the Pride of Stowe and champion of all Nahanasett, led the warriors into the fray, closely followed by that other half of the "Lake Street Lancers," Roland "Thin Finger" Pridham. Herbert "Garrulous" Gardner, back from a long sojourn in Hancock, N. H., was the third member of the quartet in action, the last, and second baritone being "H. M. S. Rodney" Walsh.

Nothing was heard from Howard "Foul Line" Wittet, and it is of course just possible that the drenching downpour of rain on Saturday may have done something to those blueberry bushes of his that necessitated his remaining at home over the entire week end, shovel in hand. Arthur E. Batters, sometimes called the State of Maine Champ, was of course still in the Pine Tree State, ostensibly winning yachting and golf trophies, but if the truth were known, very likely getting in some intensive secret practice on the courts against the fall campaign in Winchester.

Arthur's standing in the Palmer Beach League sloughed off badly last spring when he was copping golf titles at the Country Club, and the scoffing of his horseshoe associates at his success in that softer competition undoubtedly rankled in the Butters buzzum. We anticipate great things from the Butters axiomatic trigonometric logarithmatic hyperbole shoe this autumn. Some one is going to pay, right through the proboscis for those child cracks about the Butters lack of form and failure to stay with a "man's game."

Last week-end's winner, so we are informed, was Mr. Pridham. We offer this information for what it may be worth. It came, we will admit for the sake of accuracy, from no official, or even semi-official source. It was not by any means as susceptible to proof as the report that Mr. Leo F. Garvey of the Allen road and School Committee Garveys, took a header in the lake while attempting to enter a boat with a view to getting ashore from his judging duties during the downpour that failed to stop the swimming meet on Saturday.

A round robin was played and Mr. Pridham's skyscraper shoe proved its superiority over the McLaughlin "butterfly", the Gardner "submarine" and the Walsh "spinner." Little was said about ringers so it must be assumed that few were flung by anyone. It must be that the practicing facilities in Hancock are not as good as they are in the Gardner backyard in Winchester for "Garrulous" was not so hot, according to reports. In the absence of young "Butchie" no real checkup could be made, but judged off form Herb must have stuck to chess and reading while on vacation. Now that he has gotten back to that stake he tosses at nightly, better things are looked for from him.

PIGEON VISITED FIREMEN

During Saturday afternoon's heavy rainstorm a tumbler pigeon flew into the Central Fire Station for shelter. The firemen cared for the tired bird and Fireman Walter Skerry took it to Police Headquarters where a checkup of the bands on its legs disclosed it was the property of H. S. Pearson of 4 Vaness street, Sanford, Me.

The Police turned the pigeon over to Mr. Thomas W. Conlon of 54 Canal street for safe keeping.

BEAUTY AND BEASTS

To Share Labor Day Limelight

Lovely lassies and luscious lobsters will share the spotlight during the coming exciting week-end at the Winchester Boat Club. Both the feast for sore eyes and the feast for famished families take place on Labor Day, the first being a bathing beauty contest at 3 p. m., the latter the third annual Labor Day clam bake at 6.

As you may have noticed (as who hasn't) our club is graced by more dazzling damsels than you'll find outside of Hollywood. Up until now, no one has ever dared to say which one was the loveliest. Our energetic entertainment committee has decided it was high time to find out and that's how the beauty contest was born.

The rules are simple. Any girl who is a member of the club or any girl who is sponsored by a member may enter the contest. The winner will be selected by a committee of the club's beauty experts and will be presented with a handsome prize. Photographers from the Boston Herald and Paramount Studios are expected to be on hand to picture the whole event.

It's a swell opportunity for the club's gorgeous girls to have a lot of fun and at the same time attract the attention of someone who may start them on the road to fame and fortune. So any of you gals who "figure" you have a chance to win had better get in touch with Comdr. Jim Newman or the Steward right away.

As far as the clam bake is concerned we hardly need to mention it. Ever since these swell get-togethers started they have been sell out affairs.

Fleet Facts

Ralph Swanson sailed a slick race last Sunday to sneak a little nearer to Don Simonds in the Snipe Fleet standing. It was strictly a two boat race between Ralph and Don and after Ralph relinquished a comfortable lead to Don, everyone (except Ralph) thought Don had done it again. But Ralph and his clever crew Roger weren't to be denied. On the last windward leg they split tacks with Don all the way, got the better breaks and finished first with a fairly substantial lead. Roger Curtis was third.

The Sunday afternoon race was anything but. John Powers simply over-powered the fleet, sailing a flawless first and crossing the line a good quarter mile ahead of Ralph Swanson and Comdr. Jim Newman who finished second and third . . . Winchester entertain's Tech's Dinghy sailors on the Mystic this Sunday. We hope that we shall be able to afford them the same type of treatment we received on the Charles two weeks ago.

"HOSS SENSE" STILL CONFUSED

To the Editor of the Star:

Shucks, I knew I never should have gone messin' into that Winter Pond business and getting myself mowed down with my can jammed back while the Hon. Mr. Edmund C. Sanderson, Chairman of the Winter Pond Committee tossed me right back with the nincompoops and the mosquitos.

But, gosh, Mr. Editor, after reading Mr. Sanderson's letter in the Star week before last, I'm still a confused old fool. 'Twas nice of Mr. Sanderson to invite me to write him again and I'm gonna take advantage of his kind invite. Maybe I'll get some more knowledge.

You'll remember he wrote that the Committee "made a very clear report on the existing conditions"; that "the first thing we found out was that there is a war on"; and that "we hope to improve the drains into this pond between now and next Spring". He also invited me to get the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the Public Works Department to do something about it.

Now, Mr. Editor, I can't help but believe your wartime printers must be not so good and that they jumbled up Mr. Sanderson's letter, for surely he didn't need to become chairman of a Committee to "discover" the war. I haven't any doubt but that Mr. Sanderson and his Committee made "a very clear report on existing conditions" but gosh, Mr. Editor, town halls and State Houses are full of "reports" but near's I can find out darned few people read 'em. 'Tain't the existing conditions we are troubled with, we KNOW all about them. It's what's to do about it that is (or should be) the question. And, why wait until "next Spring" ?

My grandfather, who, like me, was kind of a ignorant cuss, once told me when a feller accepted a job he ought to aim at sort of doin' the job, if didn't figger he was a-goin' e able to do it, he'd be better off taking it. Grandpappy also said me asset in any feller was knowin' his way around and finding the right people who can order things done.

But 'fore we get talkin' about that, seems to me you ought to have one of your reporters write a story about that Winter Pond. I been roaming around these parts a bit during this dry spell and you'll remember Mr. Sanderson wrote quite a bit about "dry spells" and darned if we ain't got a real funny pond here in our town. You know, Mr. Editor, this dry spell has been quite general in Massachusetts, in New Hampshire, in Maine and a lotta other places. But darned if the other ponds (even in our town) went and did a disappearing act — dry spell or no dry spell. Lots of them I seen this last week are low but they're aren't fulla vegetation that sops up water faster than nature can pour it back in. A feller who I met who IS an engineer told me that he bets it's because those other ponds ain't bein' robbed of the water that has kept them full (or at least partially full for years and years) by wells below their level.

'Course a feller with my education wouldn't know that Winter Pond is "a great pond and in the control of the State" and I thank Mr. Sanderson for setting me right on that, 'though 'twas kinda embarrassing to have him drag my ignorance right out in public.

Ain't we got nobody in our town who knows anybody up at the State House? I met a feller over in Woburn the other day and asked him if he knew anybody up there and he said "Why you got a Senator — a feller named Richardson who lives in your town and you also got a couple of other fellers you elect to the House of Representatives". I remember, now, I been waitin' for that Richardson feller for quite a few years and they tell me he once knew a feller who knew a feller who worked for the Public Works Department.

Now if I was tryin' to get some action, and not just writin' reports, on them ponds before they breed a couple million more muskeeters and become even more of a eyesore than they are now, I'd go around and see this Richardson feller and sort of say to him:

"Listen, Mr. Richardson, how's about your kinda telling them boys at the Public Works Department that we got a coupla ponds that needs fixin' out in Winchester and how's about your getting interested in 'em?" And then I'd sort of find out who them Representative guys are and sing 'em the same song. I wouldn't take "no" for an answer and if anybody tried to feed me that stock-excuse that's bein' used by every sassy store clerk in North America that "there's a war on" I'd kinda point out to them that the Edison Company's able to get quite a gang of men to do quite a project down around Winter Pond and vicinity right about now. I don't believe them Edison fellers are a dinged sight smarter than a lot of Winchester folks or State Public Works Department folks when it comes to diggin' up war-time help — provided they want to. I read in the papers the other day that the war industries hereabouts are laying off a whole flock of unskilled help — or maybe that's just newspaper talk. But if it is, they had a lotta them statistics with the yarn to prove it. Probably its my ignorance again but I don't remember the State Public Works Department doin' so much for Winchester lately and I'll bet if we got the right fellers interested we'd get some action. I read in the Star once that some feller out here knew Leverett Saltonstall and I'll bet if he was interested he could get the Public Works Department to take a look and DO SOMETHING at Winter Pond.

Gosh, Mr. Editor, I've taken up too much of your space already so I'll close. But, before I do, I want to quote just one more passage from Mr. Sanderson's letter. He wrote:

"Some of the good angels that have been looking after Winchester for a great many years must have skipped him" (meaning ignorant me).

My, my, Mr. Editor, it can't be true, can it? I've kind of sort of thought for quite some time that a lot of the people who were supposed to be getting things done in our town were dead but did they ALL get into Heaven?

Maybe we ought to put some electric lights in Wildwood Cemetery so those "angels" can work nights — huh?

Your much-chastened,
Doctor Hoss Sense

Promotion of Harrison Chadwick from 2nd lieutenant to 1st lieutenant, A. U. S., was announced in War Department orders dated Aug. 25.

IMMACULATE SPORTS NIGHTS

The Immaculate Conception C. Y. O. recently sponsored two more of its enjoyable and entertaining sports nights at Loring avenue field. Crowds running into the thousands have witnessed these affairs sponsored during the past summer and they have revelled in a program of rich variety and diversified interest.

Several new features were added and they proved most welcome. Not the least among these were talks delivered by young seminarians from St. John's Seminary. Their addresses were of an inspirational nature and they exhorted their listeners to strive for the highest ideals of spirituality and sportsmanship. They urged that Christianity should be a part of everyday life, that men should "put on Christ," and make his teachings a vital force in the lives of themselves and of others, not merely for half an hour on Sundays but everyday in the week. Leaders, coming from the ranks of youth themselves, ought prove most influential in effecting such a change.

In the most recent girls softball game, the Greater Boston champs, St. Mark's of Dorchester, defeated the Immaculate girl all stars, 19-12. St. Mark's looked every bit a champion ship club. Theirs were strong hitters and smooth fielders. They rifled the ball around with masculine accuracy and speed and they seemed to possess a poise and experience that the locals lacked. The Immacs, for their part, played far and away their poorest game of the season. They were all tightened up and intensely nervous. Routine outs were converted into hits by sloppy fielding and wild throws. Inexperience and ignorance of (the) rules cost them many runs. In spite of all this, Coach Charley Valeour is intensely proud of them. For, in their very first year of organized play, they have met the very best in this section of New England and, when they are clicking, Charley feels they can take any of them. Moreover, the all stars as a unit have had practically no coaching. Proper coaching is impossible in the Immaculate setup which has a league game listed for every night.

It is the unique glory of the league and of the 30 parish teams that they are leading to the amelioration of all and not merely of a few. Production of an outstanding all star team is distinctly secondary, even though no small success has been enjoyed in this direction.

Villanova and St. Mary's, fighting it out for the parish league championship, engaged in a wild slugfest that finally ended in a draw, 10-10, Darkness forced cessation of further play. Guy Washburn had his best hitting night of the year, getting two home runs in three trips to the plate. O'Brien's triple and the hitting of Connolly also were powerful aids to the "Galloping Gaels." Ted Sullivan, Ried and Bob and John Garvey, were the Villanova standouts.

Boxing and wrestling immediately followed. Blindfolded matches proved a decided hit. Among the better matches were the following: Jack Costello vs Paul Costello; Joe Lynch vs Bud Pierson; Bob Horn vs Richard Horn; Bob McElhinney vs Joe McElhinney; Paul Amico vs J. Stevenson; Danny McLaughlin vs Joe McDonough; J. Stevenson vs D. Dalton; Walter Murphy vs Tom McGowan; Jack O'Doherty vs Patsy Tortolano; Jim Foley vs Joe Rafferty; Joe Izzio vs George Stevenson; Jim Pereira vs J. Forbes; John Rafferty vs Harry Eaton; Dan Rosa vs Jim Smith.

The best wrestling matches were waged by Jim McLaughlin and Fred Stevenson; Bob Taylor and Joe Lynch Paul Carroll and Joe McDonough.

The finest solos of the evening were given by Tilly Gonsalves. Her guitar and cowboy song renditions proved a decided hit. Solos by Dan Noonan, Phil Barrett and Salvy Randazzo provided delightful interludes to the orchestrations of the musicians and the community singing of the crowd. Singing of the Star Spangled Banner and Holy God We Praise Thy Name brought the evening to a close.

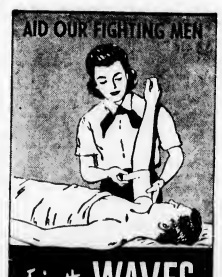

To Mr. Sanderson and John DaBona of the Winchester Water Department, Tom McGowan and Jack Donaghey of the Park Department and to Jack Albert and Hughie O'Doherty of the Woburn American Legion, special thanks are due. Facilities donated by them aided greatly in promoting the general success.

Wednesday testimonial meeting 8 p. m.
Reading Room, 5 Winchester Terrace (off Thompson street). Open daily except Sundays and holidays from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Sion: Blessed is the man whom thou choosest, and causest to approach unto thee, that he may dwell in thy courts. This passage from the Bible, Psalms 65:1, 4, comprises the Golden Text to be used in the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and in all of its branches, on Sunday, Sept. 3.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be Man and included in the Bible selections is: Thus saith the Lord, the Holy One of Israel, and his Maker, Ask me of things to come concerning my sons, and concerning the work of my hands command ye me. I have made the earth, and created man upon it: I, even my hands, have stretched out the heavens, and all their host have I commanded (Isaiah 45:11, 12).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included in the Lesson-Sermon. The Scriptures inform us that man is made in the image and likeness of God. Matter is not that likeness. The likeness of Spirit cannot be so unlike Spirit. Man is spiritual and perfect, and because he is spiritual and perfect, he must be so understood in Christian Science (p. 475).

FOSTER HOMES NEEDED FOR CHILD VICTIMS OF WAR SHORTAGE

The Mass. Division of Child Guardianship is seeking foster homes for hundreds of small children and Mrs. M. M. Quirk, supervising nurse for the babies in Winchester and vicinity, is appealing to mothers to take one or two of these little ones into their homes to board.

Stressing the seriousness of the situation, Mrs. Quirk says "These small children throughout Massachusetts, depend on foster homes because their parents cannot provide for them. Now they are losing foster parents too, for the women who used to board children are going into industry, renting rooms to workers, or taking in their own daughters with husbands overseas. This is a critical time for the guardianship bureau, and especially for the helpless children in its care.

"A special appeal is being made this week to Winchester mothers on behalf of the victims of this home-front shortage. The babies particularly need homes. A close second are brothers and sisters who dread separation.

"We feel that there must be many women who have sons in the armed forces and 'need to be needed' at home, women who will understand our appeal and open their good homes and good hearts to these babies and little boys and girls.

"These children are not war orphans and they are not for adoption. They seek boarding homes where they have motherly care. We do not want to place them with families that have other boarders.

"The State pays $5.50 each per week for the care of babies and $5 for children over three years old. In both cases the State provides all clothing and medical care. I hope that at least half a dozen Winchester mothers will be able to respond to this call. The address of our bureau is Room 42, State House, Boston. Write in, or tel. Cap. 4600, Extension 459. Immediate consideration will be given all calls and full information."

BRITISH WAR RELIEF

The very first Wednesday is the day. At 10 o'clock on Sept. 6, the sewing machines will be out and ready, bobbins will be filled with thread of the right colors, and the Epiphany parish hall, on Church street, will again be the central work room for the Winchester Unit of British War Relief. Mrs. Ernest Dudley Chase will again direct the sewing group, which last year made many new articles: garments for babies, girls' dresses and boys' shorts.

Mrs. Frank Madger, 17 Glengarry, will again be in charge of knitting. She will have yarn at the Epiphany parish hall on Wednesday and at other times knitters may make arrangements with her by tel. Win. 0554-J.

Even when the central workroom was not open the two salvage departments kept their particular kinds of relief somewhat active. Almost 2000 hospital squares started on their way. What are hospital squares? They are torn pieces of soft white cotton. Mrs. Cornelia Lindstrom makes them out of your worn-out sheets and pillowcases if you will bring these to the Epiphany parish house. On Wednesdays Mrs. Lindstrom herself will thank the donors up in the parish hall. On other days a package may just be left inside the parish house door, marked with her name or B. W. R.

The other salvage department has kept a trickle of used clothing on its way to replace what robot bombs have been destroying. With the fall going-over Winchester homes will doubtless turn the vacation trickle into a strong flow of good used clothing and shoes for children, women and men.

FI-BA-TO

The opening meeting of the Fi-Ba-To Club will be held in the recreation hall of the First Baptist Church on Friday evening, Sept. 15 at 7.45 p. m. This will be an open meeting, all who are interested in the club or its activities are urged to be present.

The Fi-Ba-To Club is planning to sponsor a Cub Pack this season. Parents of boys of Cub age (9 years to 12 years) are also invited to this opening meeting.

Keep this date in mind, Friday, Sept. 15, 7.45 p. m., let us get a good start for the 1944-45 season.

FURTHER NOTES ON THE HARVEST SHOW LIBRARY EXHIBIT

Last year the public library, under the direction of Miss Corinne Mead, librarian, had a most interesting and comprehensive display of books on the subject of gardening.

Miss Mead plans to have a similar display again and in addition will show books, pamphlets, etc. on flower arrangement, home repairs and upkeep, consumers' problems, and other timely topics in connection with homemaking.

Either Miss Mead or a competent assistant will be in attendance to answer questions.

Books on display may be borrowed, at the close of the show, exactly as they are borrowed from the library.

Look them over, ask questions, and plan to include some of them in your reading for the days when frost has put an end to active gardening.

BUTTER POINTS SAME

A ration value of 16 red points for creamery butter is to be maintained when point values for September become effective next Sunday, Winchester War Price and Rationing Board, announced today. The new point value charts posted in the stores will read 20 points, and must be corrected.

OPA officials said that on Aug. 22, when those charts went to the printer, it seemed necessary to boost the point value of butter because of a serious shortage. Since then the situation has eased and present reports indicate that rationed demand will not exceed the 95 million pounds allocated by WFA for the month of September.

Because the point charts have already been printed, retail stores will be notified by the OPA that the present point value for butter is to be continued during the next month. A slip of paper bearing the figure 16 should be posted over the 20 figure on the point value chart opposite the word "creamery butter."

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

What Makes "A Real American Town?"

Visitor said to me the other day: "Joe, you've got a real American town here—a town you can be proud of."

Afterwards, I got to wondering just what he meant. We aren't much different from any other town our size. A few nice stores . . . a village green . . . and 27 blue stars on the Service Flag in Town Hall.

Not much exciting happens, either. We work hard . . . have our Friday evening socials at the Parish House . . . and the kids play baseball and go fishing . . .

In our private life, we live and let live. If we often disagree on politics . . . if some of us like beer, some buttermilk . . . we still respect one another's rights and opinions.

What makes our town "American"? From where I sit, it's not because we're different but because we're so much like all other towns that add up to America—where self respect and tolerance are guiding principles.

Waltham, Aug. 24, 1944

Dear Mrs. Dutting:

We were delighted to receive the three beach umbrellas which came to us as a gift from the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The umbrellas have been set out on the lawn together with some outdoor chairs which were given us and the result is a very attractive spot for the sun bathing and lounging. The convalescent patients are particularly enjoying this and many of them have commented appreciatively.

If possible, I hope you will be able to express our thanks to all the individuals who donated these umbrellas.

Sincerely yours,
Margaret B. Bailey,

MASS. S. P. C. A. ISSUES APPEAL

In its annual appeal to an animal lovers, the Mass. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, 180 Longwood avenue, Boston, this week urged vacationists not to abandon their animal pets when closing their summer homes for the season.

"Many well-meaning citizens," stated Society officials, "are too apt to lose sight of the fact that these unfortunate creatures, left behind to forage for themselves, will ultimately starve or become diseased as a result of such unkind and inconsiderate treatment. We, therefore, cannot stress too strongly the importance of vacationists' taking their pets with them when returning to the city, thereby eliminating untold suffering to the animal world."

As has been the Society's custom for many years, placards have been posted at various resorts throughout the Commonwealth, warning against abandoning animals by summer residents returning to their homes. Furthermore, a reward of $20 is offered by the Society for the conviction of anyone guilty of such cruelty.

WILL YOU HELP OUTFIT THE CANTEEN LOUNGE?

To make our new quarters really club-like and attractive we need donations of occasional chairs, couches, tables, table lamps, college banners, sport posters. If your attic or spare room has any "extra" of this sort that are still useable and reasonably attractive (we want the place to look nice) we would appreciate having them. We'll do the trucking. Just call: Jim Ware, President, Red and Black Canteen, Win. 2180-W.

FIRST COMMERCIAL HELICOPTER DELIVERY MADE BY FILENE'S

The first commercial helicopter flight over a proposed post-war route in the history of aviation was successfully completed Tuesday evening, Aug 29 when packages containing merchandise were transported from the Cambridge warehouse of Wm. Filene's Sons Company of Boston to the company's branch shop in Belmont, Mass., approximately ten miles away.

The helicopter, manufactured by the Aeronautical Products, Inc. of Detroit, Mich., was piloted by Charles Whittaker, chief test pilot, who made the following comment on the flight: "I took off, climbed to approximately 1000 feet, followed the Charles River until I sighted Filene's Belmont store and sat down in the parking lot in the rear of the building. The flight was uneventful."

In the packages carried by Whittaker were mail, war bonds, and a specially designed costume, "the helicopter dress of tomorrow," created by Miss Claire McCardell in honor of the occasion. There were also packages containing hard-to-get items which were auctioned off to the highest war bond bidders in Belmont. Earlier in the day elaborate ceremonies at the take off point in Cambridge attracted a crowd of more than 10,000 people. Among these participating in the program, which was broadcast over NBC Station WBZ, were, Lt. Gov. Horace T. Cahill of Massachusetts, Mayor John Corcoran of Cambridge, Vice President Charles Layman of Aeronautical Products, Inc., and Harold B. Hodgkinson, general manager of Filene's.

The take-off in Cambridge was delayed several hours because of very strong gusty winds which made authorities deem it dangerous to take off in such a large crowd. In the meantime, the landing ceremonies at Belmont went on as planned. Following a welcome by Mr. Leonard Libbey of Filene's, a novel style show was presented by Miss Joan Leonard of Filene's style division, depicting the evolution of transportation as reflected by the clothes that have been worn in each era of major advance in transportation—costumes worn in the horse and buggy days, the fashions attending the first automobile, etc., climaxing in the "helicopter dress of tomorrow," a one piece brown slack overall with a tailored matching belted jacket designed by Miss Claire McCardell, outstanding American sport clothes designer.

Following the style show a gala entertainment program and war bond auction took place featuring Boston's own Bernice Parks, "The Fashion Plate of Song," and John Boysradt, actor and entertainer who is currently appearing in the Statler Terrace Room. Miss Parks, who had returned from New York especially to do this show in the interest of selling war bonds appeared in a glamorous black dress with side panels of gleaming blue sequins and chose for her first number "There are Yanks from the Banks of the Wabash." Following this she auctioned off to the highest bidder in war bonds a piece of her own costume jewelry—a gold lapel pin with blue stones. Mr Boysradt took over as auctioneer of the hard-to-get items to be delivered in the helicopter and sold in advance a Parker 51 pen, an electric fan, an electric alarm clock, and a pair of nylon stockings. Bond buyers who bought bonds of $500 or more also became charter members of the Helicopter Club, entitled to a free ride in a helicopter from Aeronautical Products, Inc., in Detroit as soon as it is feasible after the war.

In spite of the delayed flight, a tremendous crowd was on hand when the helicopter made its delivery at Belmont at approximately 7.25 p. m. having ascended from Cambridge at 7.05 p. m. Belmont town officials, Filene executives, and others were on hand to welcome the plane and its pilot and accept the packages delivered by him.

The A1 model helicopter, an experimental model of Aeronautical Products, Inc., has a 130-horsepower engine and will cruise at 95 mph. Its top speed is 110 m. p. h. At its cruising speed it gives approximately 15 to 17 miles to the gallon according to its designers. Its three rotor vanes describe a 30-foot circle and are of conventional plane wing type construction.

The proposed six routes over which Filene's has applied to operate helicopter service after the war are:

No. 1. Boston, Cambridge, Belmont, Wellesley, Worcester, South Hadley, Northampton, Springfield.

No. 2. Boston, Cambridge, Providence, R. I.; Connecticut; Worcester.

No. 3. Boston, Milton, Quincy, Weymouth, Bingham, Plymouth, Hyannis, Nantucket, Martha's Vineyard, Falmouth, New Bedford, Fall River, Taunton; Providence, R. I.

No. 4. Boston, Medford, Malden, Melrose, Lynn, Salem, Magnolia, Newburyport; Portsmouth, N. H.; York Harbor, Portland, Lewiston, Me.

No. 5. Boston, Fitchburg, Keene, N. H.; Brattleboro, Rutland, Burlington, Vt.

No. 6. Boston, Cambridge, Arlington, Winchester, Lowell, Andover, Lawrence; Nashua, Concord, Manchester, Laconia, N. H.

VOL. LXIV NO. 4 THE WINCHESTER, MASS., STAR, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1944 PRICE SEVEN CENTS

ELLEN KENERSON BEAUTY QUEEN

Winner of Boat Club Contest

Lovely Ellen Kenerson was chosen beauty queen of the Winchester Boat Club over a group of nine contestants who were all so gorgeous they had the judges washing they'd gone fishing instead of accepting the task of trying to decide which damsel was the most dazzling. Personally we're sure that no club in New England (or anywhere else) could produce nine girls who could match this group of Winchester girls in charm and beauty.

Ellen emerged the winner by the unanimous vote of the judges and one could only look at Ellen to know that the spectators as well, were in complete accord with the decision.

Blonde Eloise Dimblebly was selected as second choice.

The other contestants were Shirley Bonnell, Betty Murray, Kaye Freygang, Jane Rainie, Norma Lewis, Marilyn Chefalo and Joanne Simonds. In true Winchellian manner, we offer orchids to each and every one of them for entering into the spirit of the contest and putting on a really impressive show. They did a swell job and the club is proud of them.

To the other girls who let corny coyness or mid-victorian modesty keep them on the sidelines, scallion-with a generous smattering of garlic.

Club Chatter

Once again, the annual Labor Day clambake was a tremendous success. More than 200 tasty lobsters vanished as quickly as the Nazis in France, and countless thousands of clams, greased by drawn butter, swiftly slipped out of sight. The cooks and servers did a magnificent job and they and the entertainment committee deserve a big round of applause . . . Weenie Pratt showed up at the club for the first time in weeks. He insists it was to help with the clam bake, but we suggest it was the beauty contest that brought him out of hiding. He can't kid us tho! . . No one would polish eye glass so clean just to look at livid lobsters . . . Bob Swanson, Comdr. Jim Newman and Don Simonds each won a Snipe fleet race over the week-end. Each race was won by a wide margin, so the less said about them the better for we skippers who trailed . . Teck visited the club on Sunday to race four of their best skippers against our top men. Would anyone like to buy a fleet of skippers cheap? . . Old age must be creeping up on your scribe. We actually got the names of all the lovely lassies in the beauty contest and not until this a. m. did we wake up to the fact that we hadn't corralled a single 'phone number . . Maurice Dustin, the club steward, treated all the beauty contestants after the contest . . There's a junior dance in the offing. Any of you lads who are interested had better get in touch with Bob Swanson right away.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Store owners in town would be interested if not pleased, if they could see the race which some of their drivers engage in nearly every morning while taking refuse to the town dump. The road from Swanton street to the dump is rather rough and the drivers hound their trucks from hump to bump in a cloud of dust with the contents jumping madly about. It reminds one of the chariot in Ben Hur.

Cpl. Richard Preston, USAAF, son of Mrs. Meriel T. Preston of Mt. Pleasant street, arrived in Winchester this week on a 15 day furlough from Drew Field, Tampa, Fla

Pvt. Frederick V. Mauger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Mauger of Westland avenue has been spending the past two weeks with his family. He will return to his Army duties at Camp Pickett, Va. on Sunday.

TOM ALSO DEATH

Donald Heath, treasurer of the Town of Winchester and a leader in civic affairs of the community, will head the north metropolitan area in the fall campaign of the Greater Boston United War Fund, it was announced this week by Nicholas W. Danforth, Metropolitan Division chairman. The area covers a territory of 17 communities extending from Winthrop to North Reading.

This fourth war-time campaign, to be directed locally by George L. Chatfield, will be conducted simultaneously in more than 50 communities of the Greater Boston area, to meet the 1945 needs of Red Feather home front and war-related services.

For the past two years Mr. Heath has been chairman of Municipal Employees in the local fund campaign. With a sincere interest "in any activity pertaining to the welfare of human beings in our, or any other, community," he has filled many important positions in the town government and is at present chairman of both the Winchester War Veterans Advisory Committee and the local Disaster Committee, American Red Cross, also vice chairman of Winchester Civilian Defense.

With all the editorials about Winter Pond it might be well to know that the water lilies have been more numerous and beautiful this summer than for many years. The late Charles Kendall earned his way through business school by picking these lilies and selling them on the corner of Winter and Washington streets in Boston. At the time of his retirement from business he was a partner in the Blanchard Lumber Company.

Received another letter from Tony Chefalo. It was written just before moving across the Mediterranean. He says he is still hitting all his drives right in the catcher's mitt. Keep 'em coming Deadhorse you write 'em we'll acknowledge 'em. By the way, Willie has been quite busy as you'll see later in the column.

We heard from Frances M. Acco, who is now overseas in England. He says activities are expected if not exactly exciting. Here's hoping he has been as safe as in the sweet by next. The new baby is doing fine Francis, you can be real proud.

Another letter was received by the De-Mio's family assisted by Sgt. Willie to Doc of the Marine Air Corps. Willie is Mascot Sergeant. According to Willie's letter he covered himself with glory. Doc says he met Willie and it was just one day after they looked as though they were in need of some rest, so the Air Force boys put them up for a few days. Willie's outfit, according to the Sergeant, has had a tougher time than most outfits. He snapped a picture of Willie and his pal Heeny and sent it to Mrs. DeMinico. She also received a picture from Mr. William Steiner, 3016 Natchig avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, which was published in the Cleveland News. It shows four Marines including their son and Willie DeMinico. Willie appears with a beautiful crop of chin whiskers, and all four show the effects of having been through an ordeal.

In a letter to his folks Willie tells of being in the assault wave on Tinian. That makes three invasions to his credit: Kwajilean, Saipan and Tinian. He tells of the Japs counter attacking the first night, with tanks. They passed about 20 yards from his platoon, apparently not having seen them, but P. S. 75's stopped them. As the Japs retreated one of Willie's pals got one with a bazzooka. Willie says: "between the mosquitoes and their yelling you can't very well forget a night like that." He is now at a rest island enjoying a very well earned rest.

PLANS FOR CANTEEN PROGRESS

Things are humming on Vine street in the Association Hall Building where the Red and Black Canteen will open its doors on Saturday evening, Sept. 16 as a club and headquarters for the high school age group of Winchester. Led by Preside it Jim Ware a group of Canteen enthusiasts including Dean Blanchard, Eddie McGrath, Dick Young, Norma Lewis, Eddie Sweidlet, Bob Staton and others have been busy cleaning and waxing floors, washing windows, getting decorations in order and placing other ways of putting the Canteen as first class shape for the opening.

Through the co-operation of the Civilian Defense authorities a number of army cots are being loaned to the Canteen Advisory Committee as a recreational fund for escape purposes in the way of repairs or games, etc. Any free or odd pieces of furniture will be cheerfully accepted. Contact persons: Any member of the Canteen Committee or Advisory Committee.

Active approval of the appeal mailed to the friends of the Canteen, some desirable incoming items have been received though much more will be necessary before the Canteen Lounge can fully give an attractive "club-like" appearance. Call Jim Ware, Win. 2180-W if you have any you can spare).

The Canteen Committee consisting of young people is divided into various committees, each with a corresponding committee from the Canteen Advisory Committee to back them up and give help when needed. Last evening, at the Canteen, there was a joint meeting of the two House Committees, at which more plans were made for the furnishing both of the main lounge and the adjoining game room.

The Canteen has been started to provide a place in which the young people of Winchester can find pleasant informal recreation.

It is really a club, for specific and formal dances and parties but a place to which girls or boys or couples can head when they want any evening or an hour or good fellowship. The main room will have a table tennis outfit, juke box with modern dance records, and a piano, and is provided with a stage for impromptu stunts and entertainment. Adjoining it will be a coke bar, and the local Coca Cola Company is contributing equipment and valuable advice on the whole project. Another room, to be known as the game room will be tables for bridge, checkers, Chinese checkers and in addition such games as table bowling, dart targets, etc.

Until the organization gets "set" and rolling the Canteen will be open on Friday and Saturday nights and some afternoons each week. It will be operated by the Canteen Committee of young people selected from the various parts of Winchester, backed by the adult Canteen Advisory Committee. As soon as a membership committee can be organized at the Junior High School, every young person will be set aside as the "owner" of the school. Later as a group is represented by youth, and the town as a whole may have access to the building by providing for membership cards from the town at large.

Winchester has long needed a place where the young people could have their own get-together. This Red and Black Canteen is to serve as such. It is a start. No doubt some mistakes will be made, and some changes in the plans of how the spirit of the splendid group of high school students now making up the Canteen Committee and associated committees will prevail, may change in the near future, but the Canteen is the need of the Canteen.

AN APPEAL FROM THE WAR AND NAVY DEPARTMENTS

The War and Navy Departments are exerting every effort that every soldier and sailor overseas may be permitted to receive a Christmas package from home. Only through the wholehearted co-operation and assistance of the mailing public, the retail stores, and all others concerned will it be possible to handle this year's record volume of holiday package mail.

It is most urgent that these gift parcels be selected and mailed as early as possible within the 30-day period from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15, in order that no last-minute backlog occur in any of the several parts of embarkation.

We owe it to our armed forces overseas to hop ready, wrap securely, mail early and, above all, address legibly and completely these holiday gifts which mean so much to fighting men" morale.

SCHOOL NEWS

Teachers of all Winchester schools convened in the auditorium of the high school on Tuesday to hear pre-opening day addresses by Superintendent of Schools James J. Quinn and Dr. John Guy Fowlkes, director of the school survey which gets under way with the opening of schools.

Dr. Fowlkes outlined the methods of a survey and mentioned several items which will receive attention during the next several months and introduced his colleague, Dr. Glen Eye, principal of the University High School at the University of Wisconsin.

Mr. Quinn urged the teachers to keep in mind the need for helping youngsters in social and mental growth. He pointed out the desirability of an understanding of the culture of the races of the world and of translating that understanding into greater tolerance in these years of global unrest. In closing, Mr. Quinn suggested a more intensive study of American thinking as disclosed in the literature and history of our country.

Following the assembly program, the teachers enjoyed refreshments of sherbert and cookies served by the Winchester Mothers' Association. The committee for this occasion consisted of the presidents of the several Mothers' Clubs and their helpers. Mrs. Robert Oxford of Chesterford road was chairman.

Earlier in the day meetings were held by the various school principals to acquaint teachers with routine matters.

PFC. BUTTERWORTH HOME

Pfc. Paul Butterworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Butterworth of Englewood road, arrived home Sunday after 22 months of combat service in the European War area. Pfc. Butterworth was an aid in the infantry outfit attached to the Medical Corps, has been wounded twice and received the Purple Heart, Oak Leaf Cluster, Silver Star, Good Conduct Medal and the Combat Infantry Badge given to those who have been in active combat with the enemy. Butterworth enlisted in the Army two years ago.

At the end of his furlough he will report to a camp in North Carolina to await further orders.

96 REPORT FOR W. H. S. FOOTBALL

Although several more prospects are expected to report for practice at Manchester Field in the next few days the Winchester High School football squad already numbers nearly 100.

In having uniform equipment available for this large squad, Coach Knowlton will have an opportunity to keep a large squad throughout the season. Since many of this years regulars will not be letter men, candidates for those positions may be expected to wage an all out contest for the positions left vacant by graduates and those who terminated their playing days to enter the service.

The group seen most consistently with Capt. Charles "Sarto" Walsh includes Sam Bazzotta at center, Tony Bucci and Charlie Lovejoy at the guards, Reg Latham and Jack Stevenson at tackles, Don Armstrong and Frank Faieta at the ends, Sam Tibaudo, Chucker Roche, Jim Haggerty, Teddy O'Rourke and Capt. Walsh in the backfield.

In pre-school practices held since Sept. 1, almost the entire squad reported to Coach Knowlton and Jim Whittemore, again looking his burly self, who has volunteered to help out until he returns to the University of New Hampshire. Andrew Webster and John Stevens of the faculty are ably assisting with the large squad.

The roster complete to date includes the following boys:

Centers: Harold Bergquist, Sam Bazzotta, Charles Lizzotte, David Morton, Sam Roberto, Henry Roberts.

Guards: Sid Aitken, Tony Bucci, Joe Derro, Bill Dugwell, Parker Flagg, Bill Gibbons, Richie Harvey, Francis Herlihy, Ed Hicks, Char. Lovejoy, Bill Knights, Paul O'Kief, Bob Rankins, John Rutherford, B. Whittemore.

TENNIS NEWS

Two contests for the benefit of the Red Cross have been an interesting feature of an active tennis season at the Winchester Country Club. The first event was the annual 4th of July tournament while the second, held on Sunday of the past Labor Day weekend was a special contest between five men's doubles teams chosen from Country Club members and five teams representing town court tennis enthusiasts. The result was a close victory for the town court players who won three of the five matches. Results of the individual matches were as follows:

Jim Riley and Bob Drake beat Bill Morton and Maurice Freeman 6-2, 6-3.

Jim Waite, Jr. and George Demarais beat Hazen Ayer and Charlie Wainwright, 9-7, 7-5, 8-6.

Ted Godwin and Wallace Blanchard beat Paul Elliott and D. Adams, 6-4, 6-4.

Don Greer and Rowland Patten beat Doc Blanchard and Dwight Bellows, 6-2, 6-3.

Herman Pike and Paul Lyon beat Jim Waite, Sr. and Eben Caldwell, 6-1, 6-0.

The entrance fee of $1 a player provided gross receipts of $20, all of which was turned over to the Winchester Chapter of the Red Cross. The state committee promoting this type of competition reports that receipts from the 4th of July tournament amounting to $52 were the third largest for any contest held in the state for the year to date.

These enjoyable and interesting contests have been sponsored by the tennis committee of the Winchester Country Club. Maurice T. Freeman is chairman of this committee, other members of which are: Hazen H. Ayer, Don S. Greer, William F. Morton and Carl W. Wood.

The progress of the New Deal's remaking of our government is interesting in many ways and fully bears out the head man's declaration that war or no war our social gains would be continued. The early start of the NRA, which got big and little business huge sums of money, and which, while declared unconstitutional, in many effect stays over, was swiftly followed by increased strikes, costs, security and benefits to members that the word "Democracy" was left far behind. The early strikes were patterned along simple lines. A strike was called and a plant picketed. This however, was a tame method of remaking a nation, and soon the picketing, first refusing to allow a non-union worker admittance to the factory or smashing up his home if he succeeded in defying the order, extended to excluding the officials. Then followed the sit-down, with everyone remaining in the factory and refusing admittance to any but union members with their food and comforts. Even the mail, it was reported, could not be delivered. This form of strike proved very popular, and soon was carried to such extremes that windows were smashed and machinery was wrecked. After long experiments in this method, every workman was ordered to join a union. Then came the order to completely organize the factory, the company to collect union dues, to sign a contract, which resulted in increased money in most instances since the hourly wages were placed sufficiently high to insure a substantial raise even if only partially met. The latest step in forcing the government to take over the plant. This is becoming more popular daily. The government naturally is nothing loath to assume the responsibility, and in some instances the strikes appear called with that sole idea in mind and the strikers cry that it be done. What the next step will be remains to be seen, but with the CIO leading and the expenditure of thousands upon thousands of dollars to keep the New Deal in power, we seem to be steadily progressing towards that type of government which our rulers have decreed shall head America.

We have often wondered what ever became of the million dollars given the World's Peace Foundation by the late Edwin Ginn, head of the noted school book publishing firm and for many years a resident of Bacon street, this town. At the time of his death the gift created considerable comment, and at that time few if any residents considered it as an important or needed feature for the future welfare of the World. At the present time, with all the discussion over present and future peace, it would seem that this fund may have been instrumental in the preparation of a plan worthwhile. If such is the case, we have failed to note any reference to it. A million dollars used to be a lot of money, and when it was donated a lot could be accomplished with it in any province, peace or otherwise. A summary of the activities of this foundation would be interesting.

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

We live a world recovering from the historical consequences of violence, a world in which property losses an industrial casualties have exceeded anything heretofore known. Naturally, these losses, many of which are yet unknown or cannot be accurately determined until later, will have a vital effect on the financial stability of some insurance companies. We are alert to our postwar responsibilities to clients and are comfortable in the thought that we represent only strong and reliable underwriters.

YOU CAN READ AND Understand OUR TIMETABLES

If you are one of the many thousands of men and women who always say "Oh, nobody can understand one of those things!" whenever a railroad timetable is mentioned, we ask you to read this advertisement.

For, believe it or not, a timetable really isn't any harder to understand than Third Grade arithmetic. And like arithmetic, which may have seemed difficult at first glance, a railroad timetable is as simple as A B C once you understand the fundamentals. "Phooey" you say? Well, please take a few more minutes and read on!

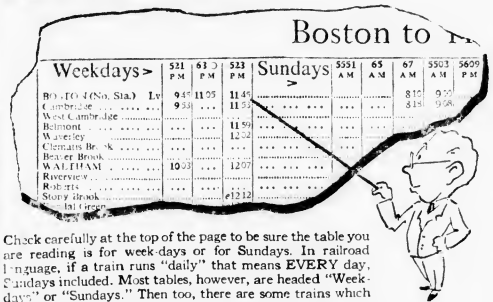

It's a cinch to read a timetable and by using it you'll save a lot of time making unnecessary phone calls or personal visits to railroad ticket offices to find out the answers to questions which are ALL answered right in your timetable!

1. FIRST—THE INDEX

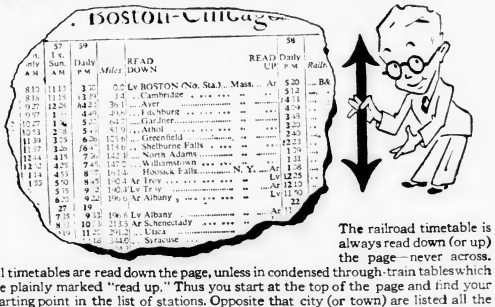

Like any good cook-book or a sporting-goods catalogue, the first place to look for what you want to learn, is in the index. Locate the place which is your destination, then turn to the TABLE number which follows it and there you'll find what time you leave, what time you get there and what time you can get back. If more than one table number follows "Athol, Mass." (or whatever is your destination) look at all the tables listed and you'll be sure to find the one which covers both your particular starting point and destination.

2. CHECK THE DAY OF WEEK AND TIME OF DAY

Check carefully at the top of the page to be sure the table you are reading is for week-days or for Sundays. In railroad language, if a train runs "daily" that means EVERY day, Sundays included. Most tables, however, are headed "Week-days" or "Sundays." Then too, there are some trains which do not operate on Saturdays and others that run Saturdays only. All this is clearly indicated in the timetable, BUT, it's something you want to be sure to remember when you start reading your timetable. More people make the mistake of failing to note whether the schedule is A.M. or P.M. than any other involved in reading a timetable. All times are plainly marked A.M. or P.M. Watch this feature and again watch whether you are reading week-day or Sunday tables.

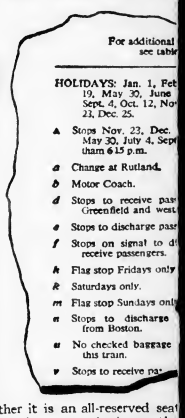

3. ALWAYS READ DOWN OR UP THE PAGE

The railroad timetable is always read down (or up) the page—never across. All timetables are read down the page, unless in condensed through-train tables which are plainly marked "read up." Thus you start at the top of the page and find your starting point in the list of stations. Opposite that city (or town) are listed all the trains which stop there. If in reading down (or up) the page you do not find a time opposite the city which is your starting point or destination, this means the train does not stop there. For instance, in the timetable illustrated in this advertisement the 3:30 P.M. train leaving Boston, makes its first stop at Cambridge (to receive passengers only); its second stop at Ayer (to receive passengers for Greenfield and the West) and its first regular stop at Fitchburg. (You'll note that the times at Cambridge and at Ayer have "references" beside them.) It reaches Troy at 8:45 p.m. and stops ONLY at stations opposite which there are times indicated in the timetable

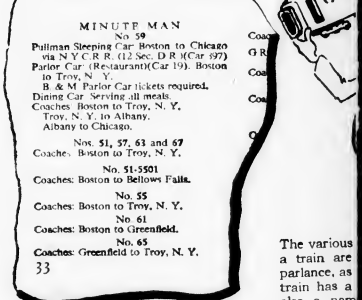

4. BE SURE AND CHECK TH MEANING OF ALL REFER

On almost every page in the timetable there is a column devoted to the explanation of every reference mark. Here you'll learn that "k" means — Runs Saturdays only; "f" means — Flag stop (and that means you signal the train to stop or if you are on board it tell the Conductor to stop it for you.) Other references explain whether the train carries baggage; whether it runs every day; whether it is an all-reserved seat you check all the reference marks, you're sure to obtain complet

5. PARLOR CARS, SLEEPING DINING CARS????

The various a train are parlance, as train has a also a nam numbers at schedule col corresponding numbers in the reference section listing equipm train. Again, take the 3:30 train from Boston in the timetable of this ad. Note that it's No. 59. Then look at 59 in the "equipm learn that it carries dining car, parlor car and sleeping cars. IF Y YOUR PARTICULAR TRAIN IN THE "EQUIPMENT MEANS THE TRAIN CARRIES COACHES ONLY.

Comparatively few persons know that a page in the back of a railroad timetable lists the price of tickets between principal points — not all points to be sure, but enough so that you can figure pretty closely the cost of going to and from any place referred to in the timetable. You will find separate columns for fares in coaches and for fares in parlor or sleeping cars. You'll also learn that the prices quoted are subject to a 15% tax imposed by the Federal government. Note also that there is an extra charge listed for your seat, berth or drawing room.

7. TIMELY TIPS TO TIMETABLE USERS

Remember:

"Daily" means the train runs EVERY day, including Sundays. You'll find this term used in the condensed timetables of through trains. Other timetables are all plainly marked "Week-days" and "Sundays." Always be sure you are reading a week-day timetable if you are to travel on a week-day. "Except Saturday" in a week-day timetable means the train runs every week-day except Saturday. Week-day timetables have nothing to do with Sunday trains.

If you are going from Boston to Salem, Mass., look at Boston, not Salem, to find out when your train leaves. The time opposite a city or town name is always the time the train ARRIVES or DEPARTS from that particular community. The time at the top of the column is the time the train leaves its starting point (except where the timetable is marked "read up," in which case the time the train leaves is at the bottom of the column).

Some tables include both train and bus schedules. You can always learn whether the trip is made all the way by train, or by train and bus, by noting whether it says "bus" at the top of the column. All bus trips are plainly marked.

If you have to change trains en route, the Conductor will inform you. It is always best, however, on a long journey to ask the Conductor when he takes your ticket on board the train if you have to change or if the car in which you are riding goes through to your destination.

B. AND M. EXPLAINS TIMETABLES

Taking issue with cartoonists and comedians who for years have placed railroad timetables in the same class with mother-in-law as things difficult to understand, the Boston and Maine Railroad has started a campaign to "convince the public that railroad timetables are as simple as third grade arithmetic."

The campaign is also intended, a spokesman for the road said, "to make it easier for thousands of persons now traveling on the railroads who have used railroad service infrequently, if at all, in pre-war days."

Believed to be the first time a carrier has attempted general instruction of the public in what it terms "The fundamentals" of railroad timetable reading, the Boston and Maine this week placed in all its stations reproductions of a large newspaper advertisement asserting "You can read and understand our timetables."

The campaign, which will be continued in other forms is intended, a spokesman for the road said, to prove to persons who for years have persisted in saying, "Oh, nobody can read one of those things," that railroad timetables are not complicated, once a few simple fundamentals of how to read them are understood.

TWO WINCHESTER BOYS IN ITALY

Two Winchester boys, Pfc. Thomas D. Arnold of Allen road, rifleman and Pfc. Libonio G. Gerardi of Harvard street, clerk, are serving with the 351st Regiment in Italy, one of Gen. Mark Clark's 5th Army units that helped to drive the Germans from the Garigliano River to the Arno. Except for a brief rest period, the regiment marched and fought almost continuously for more than five months.

RED CROSS NOTES

On the afternoon of Aug. 30 the Gray Ladies from Winchester and Lexington staged a picnic for about 50 soldiers on the farm connected with the Bedford Hospital. A feature of the occasion was the green corn, raised, picked and roasted on the premises, which together with weenies, rolls, tomatoes, ice cream, cake, coffee and tonic provided a repast which was voted by the boys to be one of the best of the summer.

The number of blood donors has increased during the last two weeks. Keep up the good work! Give Winchester a good name and some boy in the service a new lease of life.

Now that the cool weather is approaching, additional sewers could be used to advantage at Red Cross Headquarters. It is also hoped that neighborhood and church groups will reconvene in addition to those which have worked during the summer. All types of hospital garments are now being made.

Mrs. P. A. Goodale, Jr. and Miss Adelaide Homer of this town are at the Barbizon-Plaza Hotel in New York City.

ENSIGN LYON WITH AMPHIBIANS

Ensign W. Blanchard Lyon of Everell road is preparing for duty with the amphibious forces aboard an LST (landing ship, tank), one of the biggest ships in the Navy's invasion fleet.

After an intensive course in which he placed in the top ten of a selective class, he has been assigned as communications officer at the training base at Camp Bradford, Va.

In a recent letter to the Star, Ens. Lyon wrote: "It is one of the pleasures of the week when mother sends down the Star. I really enjoy every page of it. I'm glad to see a 'newsy paragraph' about one of my friends. Winchester is a good place and the Star helps bring one back to it."

ENSIGN LARSON TRANSFERRED

Ensign C. S. Larson, USNR, has been detached from the Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi, Texas and has reported to the Naval Air Station at Atlanta, Ga., where he will join his fighter squadron.

Ensign Larson was senior instructor at Corpus Christi, instructing and checking blind flying and instrument training.

Silas Clay Gets Mad at Women's Hats

Silas Clay is complaining that his wife's new hat cost more than a bull calf. "And I wouldn't mind it, if it was a hat," he says, "but all it is, is a small bow and a piece of feather."

"It isn't the size of the hat that counts," says Bivon Earp, reproachfully.

"Well, what is it that counts?" asks Si, exasperated.

"I'll tell you what it is that counts," says Doc. "It's the lift that a new hat gives to any woman. It sort of picks up their spirits . . . boosts morale. Little things can do that. Like the flower in your buttonhole," he says to Silas, "or that glass of beer that you're enjoying."

From where I sit, Doc has given us a mighty good definition of morale. Important little things. A flower in your buttonhole . . . a kind word from a stranger . . . a mellow glass of beer with friends. Little things especially important in these days of strain.

Joe Marsh

Many Trees Broken But Damage Largely Minor

Winchester went through its second hurricane last night, and while considerable damage as a whole was caused, it was mostly of a minor nature and confined to broken wires, felled trees and some roof damage. Compared with the hurricane of 1938 the damage was much less. Possibly this was due to the fact that this time the ground was dry and hard, and most of the tree damage was from broken limbs, whereas in 1938 the big wind followed two weeks' rain and the ground was so soft the trees uprooted.

It is the general opinion about town that the damage here would have been hardly anything except for the big blow at 3 a. m. when the wind shifted.

The hurricane attained its highest fury at about 3 a. m. According to warning it opened shortly after 9 o'clock with lightening and heavy rain. High wind prevailed until around 12. Later, about 2 o'clock the wind arose again to its climax at 3. Ample warning throughout the day undoubtedly did much to keep the damage down, for every householder took all precautions to protect his property.

One of the railroad gates in the center was smashed and a big plate glass window in Hevey's Drug Store was blown out, glass being scattered from the center to the mill dam. Trees were broken and down all over town. Swanton street, Nelson street, Bruce road, Water street, Bacon street, Stowell road, White street, and Ash street, were among the thoroughfares blocked. Lights were out from the Parkway to the Medford line and wires were down in Winthrop, Wildwood, Palmer, Bacon and Lagrange streets as well as the Parkway and Winslow road.

An alarm of fire was caused from box 312 by falling wires. A window on the top floor of the White Building was blown out and the roof of the former Blanchard mill on north Main street was blown off. The roof of the large wooden Kelley and Hawes stable in the center also suffered the loss of all its top covering.

All-in-all Winchester escaped the storm remarkably well and with much less damage than four years ago. Fruit trees of course were stripped and the loss to the apple and pear crop will be great, while the streets are littered with broken branches and twigs.

The Civilian Defense were on the alert and the Town Departments well prepared.

CANTEEN OPENING POSTPONED TO SEPT. 23

The Red and Black Canteen, which was to have its opening night this Saturday, will open instead on Saturday evening, Sept. 23 at 7:30 p. m. When the Canteen Committee was making advance plans in the summer, the earlier date was chosen, thinking that it was the day of the first football game. It later turned out this was an error, a Winchester meets Swampscott as its first grid-iron opponent on the 23rd.

Therefore to combine celebration of the first game with the Canteen opening, the actual opening date has been set back to the 23rd. This will of course also give the Canteen Committee a few extra days to work on plans and arrangements. Already with the co-operation of interested townspeople, the question of furniture is being solved; and little by little a clublike atmosphere is created.

Realizing that up to the minute music is a first essential, a delegation from the Canteen have purchased a liberal supply of the very newest and most modern dance records by the popular dance bands, which when played over the Canteen's new juke box should stir feet to dancing. A supply of games formerly used in the Recreation Center are being checked over, and new ones added. The latest magazines will be available, ice cold cokes will be on sale, and adding it all together, everything is being done to make the Canteen a real center of fun and place of relaxation for the whole high school group.

No membership fees or entrance charges will be made, but each student is asked to sign a simple pledge card, agreeing to abide by the Canteen rules, before receiving his or her membership card. These are now being distributed by the Canteen Committee consisting of Seniors: Jim Ware, Roy Monson, Sam Buzzotta, Joe Errico, Nancy Ford, Jane Russell, and Wally Juniors: Pat Eberle, Myrna Zamanako; Sophomores: Lib by Fenno and Ed Hicks.

On Sept. 23, opening night, the Canteen, located in the Association Building on Vine street will be open from 7:30 to 11:30. The week of the 25th it will be open on Friday and Saturday evenings during the same hours. During the first week in October it is planned to be open Friday afternoon also, and after the football season (before, if the demand warrants) on both Friday and Saturday afternoons and evenings.

If you have any bridge tables, table lamps, sofas or couches, that you will donate to the Canteen, please call Jim Ware, president, Win. 2180-W or Pat Eberle Win. 1560.

CURRENT OFF IN THE SQUARE

Although the hurricane was less damaging than that of six years ago, the aftermath was much more serious to Winchester business. This morning opened with no three-phase electricity in the center. Besides the Star office, filling stations, Randall's the skirt factory, the Winchester Theater, and in fact every business using the "open" line was in trouble. Provision dealers using freezer units were in especial trouble, which the heat of the day served to aggravate.

It was nearly noon before any information regarding the trouble could be obtained, and then it was laid to one wire, said to be located in an underground cable near Sheridan circle.

Service was restored at 3:15 p. m.

WRIGHT ON LONG FLIGHT

First Lt. Whitelaw Wright, Jr., 14 Fletcher street, recently helped set a new long-distance record for British-based fighter planes. He flew on a 1600-mile round trip to the Polish Corridor with an 8th Fighter Command P-51 Mustang group.

In setting the new mark, the Mustang group, commanded by Col. George T. Crowell, escorted heavy bombers while the big planes blasted aircraft factories in Poland.

Although the thrust was the fighter group's deepest penetration of German-held territory, it was not the first time the outfit has guarded bombers far from base. The group began protecting bombers from Nazi fighter attacks almost a year ago. Since then the fighter unit has shepherded the big planes over such targets as Kiel, Berlin, Ludwig-shaven, Augsburg and Frederick-shaven.

Before and after invasion day the group has been dive-bombing and strafing in addition to continuing bomber escort work.

Lt. Wright is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Wright, Sr., of Fletcher street. He is a graduate of Winchester High School and attended Suffolk College where he studied chemical engineering.

The 23-year old fighter pilot flies "Hell's Little Angel" and has been awarded the Air Medal and two Oak Leaf Clusters.

MORSE GETS OAK LEAF CLUSTERS

Announcement was made this week of the awarding of the Oak Leaf Clusters to the air medal previously won by 1st Lt. John H. J. Morse, son of Major and Mrs. D. P. Morse, Jr., of Crescent road. Morse, 21 years old, won the honor at the 8th Air Force B-17 Flying Fortress station in England. He was decorated for "meritorious achievement" during bombing attacks on Nazi war industries and on military targets in France in support of Allied ground forces, including the bombing of Messerschmitt aircraft factories at Regensburg, Germany. Lt. Morse is a pilot. His wife, Mrs. Alice W. Morse, resides in St. Joseph, Mich. He was a student at Cornell University previous to his enlistment in August, 1942.

HOME HOSPITALITY FOR SERVICE MEN

The number of service men entertained in Winchester has fallen off during the summer months due to the fact that people have been away and that those who have had boys in many cases have had them coming back to them while they are in this vicinity and so these hostesses were not to be called to take new boys. This latter reason still holds good even though people are home again and the opportunity for the boys is very necessary to find additional hostesses who may be called from time to time to take servicemen for a week-end, a Sunday dinner or a midweek evening. The committee had to cancel last year a low in the boys need and appreciate an invitation to go to a home and have a real taste of home food, or a change from canned rations or a night's rest between clean sheets. No extra special entertainment is required, just natural home surroundings as it plans home cooked food is a great treat to them.

Although the war seems to be going very well and peace seems near, our soldiers and sailors and those of our allies are still making supreme sacrifices to win the war for us. The least we can do is to share a bit of our home life with the men who are far from their own homes. Those of us who have done it found it a very fine experience for their whole families. We need you too! Please call Mrs. Lyman B. Smith, Win. 0802 and ask to have your name put on the list of hostesses.

During the month of August the Florence Crittenton League had charge of placing the servicemen in Winchester homes. Mrs. Charles A. Underwood was chairman of the committee. Following is the list of hostesses who entertained men in August: Mrs. Frederick W. Hill, Mrs. Thomas J. Edwards, Mrs. Theodore M. Arkinson, Mrs. Lyman B. Smith, Mrs. John K. Converse, Mrs. Paul E. Ward, Mr. Paul C. Dunn, Mrs. Henry A. Dolliver, Mrs. William M. Little, Mrs. Richard Hoover, Mrs. Daniel R. Beggs, Mrs. Robert A. Drake, Mrs. Phillip Johnson, Mrs. Gilbert H. Tapley, Mrs. William C. Cusack, Mrs. J. Norman Albree, Mrs. Harry C. Goodwin, Mr. Gerald R. Barrett, Mrs. E. Craig Greiner, Mrs. John Carruthers, Mrs. R. H. B. Smith, Mrs. Erskine H. Kelley, Mrs. Richard T. Morey, Mrs. Royal S. Wentworth, Mrs. Charles W. Morrill, Mrs. H. Arthur Hall, Mrs. Whitelaw Wright, Mrs. Theodore P. Messer, Mrs. Chester B. Koontz.

This list includes those who took new boys from the committee and others who have entertained boys directly from Boston clubs or from Mrs. Hall's Chelsea Naval Hospital group.

It also includes those who had boys come back to them who were originally placed by the committee in former months. Anyone who entertains servicemen and has not been included in a list any month and who would like to be, may call us and they will be included in the future.

COMMENDATION FOR EXCELLENCY

Commendations for excellence in bombing received by Col. Thomas R. Hall's target bombing group during the current 9th Air Force offensive has largely been due to the outstanding work of lead teams of which Tech. Sgt. Jeremiah F. Shinnick of 123 Washington street is a member.

A veteran of more than 50 combat missions over Europe, Sgt. Shinnick is radio operator-gunner on the B-26 Marauder "Thumper II"; and the group to which he is attached has been officially commended for its pin point bombing of vitally important targets. He has been awarded the Air Medal with one silver cluster and four bronze clusters.

LIFE'S PROBLEMS

The world is filled with lonely hearts
fruetifying
Despondency, hearts that are sick, all testifying
That the pulses of hope have slowed down, abetting
Fettering of mind, days of grave perplexity, forgetting
To ask God for patience and superlative wisdom, not letting Any hatred or viciousness that creates interferences in succession
With human happiness, and all kindly ways suppression.

NEW CLASS FOR NURSE'S AIDES

Commencing on Oct. 16 and continuing through Dec. 8 a new training class for nurse's aides will be conducted under the auspices of the Winchester Chapter of the Red Cross and Civilian Defense.

The sessions will be held at the Nurses Home on Fairmount street on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 9 a. m. to 12 noon.

A recent letter from the National Nursing Council stresses the extreme urgency for additional nurse's aides to supplement the dwindling supply of nurses. This has been brought about by the increased number of nurses required to care for the mounting casualties overseas and it is confidently hoped that many new volunteers in Winchester will feel it their pleasant duty to enroll in the class which starts on Oct. 16.

All those willing to sign up for nurse's aide training should call the Red Cross Chapter at Win. 2300 or Mrs. Wayne Thompson, chairman, Win. 2227.

There are at present 70 nurse's aides in Winchester and, knowing the caliber of our Winchester women, it seems unnecessary to remind them that they can serve best by continuing to do the work for which they have been trained and, if possible, to work longer hours.

BRITISH WAR RELIEF

A good number of workers for British War Relief had a cheerful reunion at the Epiphany parish hall, their central work room, Wednesday, Sept. 6. And they came bringing proofs that they had not forgotten during July and August how robot bombs were destroying the home-making things that enable a woman to keep her family warm and clean. Two boxes of used clothing came in.

The pants-makers had 12 pair of boys' shorts ready, finished during the summer recess. "I'd like to think three pair of them might luckily fall to the refugee boys who have been placed in my sister's home," said one of the Winchester workers; "she writes from England that she has patched and patched again and again the patches on the seats of their trousers."

For babies there was a table full of pretty things. Another of the charming little knitted bonnets that Mrs. Sophie Nichols makes joined the dainty warm little jackets, five of them, from Mrs. Arthur Sandall of Holyoke. From the same generous giver and with the same deft hand touches came 10 warm little wrappers and 10 pairs of lined bootees to match them. This time Mrs. Sandall had included with the pastel plain colors a couple of cleverly designed plaid sets. A Scottish sailor home from the sea will probably give a special chuckle when he sees his new son kicking up plaid-clad little feet.

The Winchester Unit looked with some sadness at this consignment of Mrs. Sandall's gifts, for in other gifts her mother, Mrs. George Budd of Holyoke, has always had an active part. But for these she was too ill, and her death came in August. Winchester will remember with gratitude Mrs. Budd's part in their work of relief.

Mrs. Madge's knitters brought in their home work for men in service: tor, a cap muffler, two pair of socks, 25 helmets, and 15 pair of seaboot stockings. From Mrs. Minnie Fletcher came her 91st pair. And while it was too hot for such big knitting, she turned scraps of wool into 40 squares for afghans.

Knitters who wish wool may telephone Mrs. Frank Madge, 0554-J.

SONS OF ITALY NEWS

Hi fellers.

I've got about made up my mind to the effect that if I don't get one solitary letter I won't mention it. Just to show you I'm a man of my word, I'll say nothing about not having received one letter this week. Besides I don't need your old letters as there has been enough activity this week to fill the column. Even if there wasn't enough I would ramble on about things not as interesting as acknowledging letters if I had some to acknowledge. No letters, piffle, I refuse to be perturbed and shall not even mention it.

On Sunday, Sept. 10, Angelo Tafuri, Carmine Frongilo and your correspondent attended a junior conference at the Hotel Continental in Cambridge. These conferences are held a few times each year at which time policies and activities pertaining to the junior division are discussed.

The war has affected this department to quite some extent as many of the 17, 18 and 19 year olds are in the service, thus depriving the department of some of its most active members and making it difficult to line up programs as the personnel has a fast turnover. A sports program is being instituted in which a basketball and bowling league is being considered. When conditions return to normal I shall like very much to see a boys junior lodge started in Winchester. I think such a lodge would be beneficial to both the boys and the senior lodges.

Your correspondent acting as secretary of the Columbus Day celebration committee was delegated to go attend the ladies lodge meeting and extend to them an invitation to participate with us, in this function. Imagine how I felt to find a penny sale in progress. I was asked to stay for the sale and before having a chance to refuse a woman stuck two cards into my hands while another took my money, still another took my hat and guards were quickly posted at the doors. Under the circumstances I graciously consented to remain. If you fellows think sergeants are tough, try arguing with a combination like that. The evening was a social and financial success. The committee and especially Marion Manoli deserve a lot of credit for the fine work they did.

During the penny sale who should walk in but our own Mary Tucci. When I spied her I whipped out my trusty note book and rushed towards her. My first attempt carried me to witness six women of Mary. On the record rush I gained two women. I was about to start my third rush when I remembered that the dignity of the press must be upheld. This time I straightened my clothes and walked casually up to Mary announcing that I was the press, stopping on all of 1 order to my way. When Mary realized that she was being interviewed she suddenly became very uncooperational. Asked to say something brilliant she said she was fresh out of brilliant sayings. Just about this time I wished very much to have taken a course in interviewing people. I did however get permission to quote her on the following. Mary still is stationed in Washington as is her sister Nita. They live together. She also met Lt. S. G. John Volpe, you fellows remember John who was such a very good Venerable. I've often wondered what became of him.

During the evening I managed to squeeze some news out of Theresa Detro about her son S.K. 3-c Tommy Detro, who has been stationed in Scotland. He writes that as he walked down the street one day he heard one fellow say to another, "The town I come from is about 8 miles from Boston." Tommy went back and informed the fellow that he also came from a town 8 miles from Boston. Upon finding that they were both from Worcester, introductions were in order. The fellow turned out to be Joe Rosa, son of Nick Rosa of the Worcester Highway Dept. Tommy also ran into Harry Dyson formerly with the Metropolitan District Police and a neighbor of the Detro's.

Well boys I said I wasn't going to mention a word about not receiving any mail and I'll be darned if I will. I guess that proves that I'm a man of my word.

FI-BA-TWO CLUB

Other plans are to be discussed at this meeting and we hope the attendance is such as to give us confidence to go ahead this year with a more progressive program than last year.

C. Y. O. GOLF TOURNAMENT

Of the four ranking golfers in the Boston Archdiocesan C. Y. O. tournament,two were from the Immaculate Conception Parish of Winchester. Ernie Doherty, already twice a winner, is once again the diocesan champ. In winning for the third time, Doherty retired the magnificent Cardinal O'Connell trophy. His fellow parishioner, Jim Gaffney, was the fourth ranking golfer.

Both Doherty and Gaffney are former winners. They are continuing the remarkable perennial record established by parish stars of other years. For, alone amongst the parishes of the diocese, the Immaculate Conception has listed an annual winner in this tourney. With Doherty having two more years of eligibility, future prospects appear bright.

Doherty previously won the senior championship in 1941 and 1942 and the junior championship in 1940. Last year he finished second. His 76 score this year was good, but Ernie can do much better. A recent appendectomy operation and duties with the Coast Guard handicapped him considerably. With the cessation of war and a greater opportunity to practice, Doherty should be ready to take his place amongst the nation's top flight stars.

Doherty is one of six sons in the service. One of his brothers has been killed in action.

WINCHESTER BOY IN FRANCE

T-5 Frank J. Provinzano is serving with an aviation engineer battalion of the 9th Engineer Command which is constructing airfields behind the front lines in France. He landed with one of the first detachments of men from this battalion which started its operations on the beachhead on the morning of D-day. His battalion was the first unit of the command to land on French soil and completed its first mission, an emergency landing strip, on D-day in the face of continuous enemy fire. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Provinzano. He had already served for two years in the United Kingdom.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION SPORT NOTES

The Immaculate Conception all-stars registered one for the win column by defeating St. Andrews of Billerica 5-2 in their Labor Day set-to on Loring avenue field. The game proved both interesting and closely contested.

Newman, the visiting pitcher, limited the Immaculates to four hits and struck out 10 men. Wildness, however, and fatal errors on the part of his mates gave the game to the Immacs. The local nine capitalized on its scoring opportunities and clouted the ball when hits meant runs.

Sonny Washburn scattered six hits over the nine innings and struck out a grand total of 15 men. Carl DeFilippo, in spite of a couple of errors showed real promise at his shortstop station. Conolly and Ferraina hit well. In general, the Immacs, although a bit lacking in polish, showed real potentialities.

The Glavin brothers from Pinehurst and Nielson were the Billerica stars.

The Immaculate Conception C. Y. O. will sponsor another of its gala nights this Friday on Loring avenue field off Cross street. As usual, the program will consist of a band concert, community singing, musical and vocal solos and duets, recitals, talks by invited speakers, boxing, wrestling, soft ball and baseball. Floodlights, a public address system and ready made ring will considerably facilitate a smooth performance. Since this may be the last of the current season, an even larger crowd than usual is expected.

Opening highlight of the evening will be a soft ball match between the Immaculate League All Stars and the Reading Girls team. The latter were former members of the Boston League and are really gunning for the locals. Coach Charley Valcour will probably start Doris McKee in the box. He has half a dozen fine flingers in reserve. This game will start at 6 o'clock.

On the baseball diamond, Coach Teddy Livingston will pair off Villanova and St. Mary's in another of their championship clashes. Winners each of a half, these clubs are battling it out for the league championship. A close match is in the offing.

The orchestra will be augmented this week. A five drum set has been acquired and a promising young drummer named Jack McCauley will be on hand to play them. He will be accompanied by a couple of other musicians and these, plus Salvy Randazzo, Danny Noonan and company, will round out a grand musical unit.

In the solo line, all the old favorites will return. The guitar specialists, Tilly Gonsalves and Rocco Ferraina, have prepared special numbers. Danny Noonan, the one man show, has a new repertoire of Irish songs and jokes. Jack McCauley and his mates appearing for the first time, will stage a show of their own. Hitherto uncovered talent will apepar for the first time.

Perhaps the feature attraction of the evening will be the prepared talks delivered by guest speakers from out of town. These will combine an inspirational theme with a humorous, down to earth presentation. They should prove a definite hit.

The boxing and wrestling matches, of course, will be hilariously successful. Blindfolded boxing exhibitions were the feature of the last gala night and they will add a humorous and exciting tinge to this program. The wrestling matches, too, are proving to have a crowd appeal.

Community singing, under the direction of master of ceremonies, Danny Noonan, will bring the evening's festivities to their close.

GRADUATED FROM GUNNERY SCHOOL

Pvt. Charles R. Whitten, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Whitten of 15 Everett avenue has been graduated from the Army Air Forces Flexible Gunnery School at Tyndell Field, Panama City, Florida, one of the largest schools of its kind in the Army Air Forces training command.

Upon his graduation, the soldier received a pair of silver wings signifying that now he is ready to take his place as a member of the combat crew of an AAF bomber.

GRADUATED FROM AAF PILOT SCHOOL

Former Aviation Cadet David Taylor Schneider, son of ex-Selectman and Mrs. Ben R. Schneider of 21 Winthrop street, was recently graduated from the AAF Pilot School at Moody Field, Georgia and commissioned a second lieutenant with the rating of Army Pilot, and is at present home on a 10 day furlough.

A member of Class 44-H, Lt. Schneider will be assigned to piloting multi-engine aircraft, such as light, medium, or heavy bombers; transport or cargo planes at Courtland, Ala.

BARROWS GOES TO CALIFORNIA

Kilbrith J. Barrows of 332 Highland avenue left Monday for Ojai, Cal., where he will give courses in History and International Relations, as an instructor at the Thatcher School, the leading preparatory school on the West Coast. Mr. Barrows carried on similar courses while instructor at Phillips Academy, Andover during 1934-42.

CAPT. LAVERTY TRANSFERRED

The War Shipping Administration announces the transfer of Capt. Robert Laverty, port captain, WSA, Boston to port representative somewhere in the European area. Capt. Laverty who resides at 15 Orient street has followed the sea for 35 years, for many years commanding vessels of the United Fruit Company's Great White Fleet.

WINCHESTER COUNTRY CLUB

The fall season at Winchester Country Club has opened with a great amount of interest in the various tournaments. The round robin tournament, over the Labor Day week-end had 32 entries and was played in two divisions of 16. Ed Hubbard won one division, beating Harold Brite in the final, while A. M. Bond won the other, defeatng Van French in their final. Prizes were generously contributed by contestants. Ray Holdsworth is interested in an exchange, his three tennis balls, for a similar number of pre-war golf balls.

Last Monday, the N. E. pro-amateur championship was played at the club. The entry was small, as was expected under present conditions. Tom Mahan, professional at United Shoe, with his amateur partner and club champion, Paul Kirby, won the event with two excellent 70's, leading the small field by four strokes. The local pair, Tom Howe paired with club champion, Ed Hubbard, couldn't get the putts to drop and finished eight strokes away with 76-73-148.

Three major match-play events are in progress in addition to the regular week-end tournaments. The fall four ball tournament had 24 teams and the match play is now in progress. The competition for the President's Cup and the Fall Cup is progressing. The qualifying rounds are being played through this week with match play starting next Sunday.

A new tournament, mixed foursomes, for the Maurice F. Brown Trophy, is also in progress, with the qualifying rounds finished last Sunday and match play now being played. Mrs. Donald M. Belcher paired with George Farrar with a prize 82, lead the field. The net honors were divided between the Irving Plitts and the Charles Wanskers, with 67's. As this is a handicap tournament, every couple has an equal chance to win.

This tournament is in memory of Maurice F. Brown, whose untimely death last year, was such a loss both to the Country Club, of which he was a charter member and to the town, where his interest in all civic matters was of keen. In his memory, Mrs. Ethelyn Brown has donated a beautiful trophy, to be contested for each year. This trophy will remain at the club and will be inscribed with the names of the winning pair, each year. In addition, Mrs. Brown has provided for small replicas of the trophy, to become the property of the winning pair.

The turn out for this event is the largest that the club has ever had, with 43 teams entered. This reflects the love and esteem that we all had for Maurice, and he would ask no better recognition of his keen interest in all the activities of the club. He greatly enjoyed his golf and played a fine game. More than anything he enjoyed mixed foursomes, with the social gatherings which usually followed. The fortunate winners of this tournament will have memories of this splendid citizen to cherish always.

STATE News GUARD

Now that vacations are over, the 16th Company, 23d Infantry, M. S. G. will enter its fall training with the knowledge gained during its summer training period at Camp Chase, South Hingham.

We have just learned our old friend and member Pvt. Ralph W. E. Scott of the U. S. Army has been wounded in action.

Who says State Guard training doesn't help? We have received word from our former first sergeant, Arthur F. Haskell now a private in the Army, that he has completed his basic training and has been selected to attend Officers Candidate School.

Bill Swett, recently home on furlough, looked quite smart in his Army uniform.

The officers of the Company recently spent a day on the rife range qualifying on the Thompson sub-machine gun.

On Sunday, Sept. 17, the entire company will spend the day on the rifle range where each member hopes to qualify as an expert on the Enfield rifle and the sub-machine gun.

Mr. Edgar Rassat, well known member of the Winchester Post of the American Legion, is in serious condition at the Bronx Veterans Hospital.

WINCHESTER UPSETS MEDFORD

The past week-end, Winchester's superb snipe skippers engaged Medford's capable comet sailors in the annual inter-club regatta. The meet consisted of an inter-boat free for all race on Saturday afternoon and then an all snipe and an all comet race on Sunday a. m. and p. m. respectively.

The Saturday afternoon affair, in which Winchester sailed Snipes and Medford sailed Comets was little short of a slaughter. In spite of the fact that the breezes were light, which favors the Comets, Winchester won in a waltz, 101 to 63, to take a one up lead in the two out of three series. The first three boats to cross the finish line were Snipes, skippered by Don Simonds, Roger Curtis and Bob Swanson. Then came two Comets who were hard pressed by another group of Snipes and so it was all down the line.

With this initial victory safely salted away, Winchester sailed ten Snipes to Medford on Sunday a. m. to be piloted by Medford and five by Winchester crews. Then came the rude awakening. A combination of cockiness and carelessness beat our boys. Medford sailed our Snipes flawlessly and fearlessly and before our stalwart skippers had recovered from fouling and fowling, Medford had massacred them 73 to 55, to even the series.

So it was a sorry but serious gang of Snipe sailors who met at Medford in the afternoon to try and beat them in their own boats. But they did it. Trailing by three points at the end of the first race and tongue lashed by their caustic Captain, the boys went out in the last race and handed Medford a mauling they'll long remember. They really rubbed it in. The first five boats to cross the finish line were skippered by Winchester with the exception of second place, and how he ever squeezed in there, the Lord only knows, beause the boys were out to win. To make a short story long, the third and rubber match was won by the score of 68 to 62 and the handsome inter-club trophy will rest at Winchester for the coming year and many more to come (we hope). Hail to our conquering heroes!

Club Chatter

The annual club election meeting is on Friday, Oct. 13, and the entertainment committee is planning to make it a merry evening. The reason we mention it now, while final plans are still indefinite, is that we want to have the club's honor roll of servicemen and women complete for that evening. If you know of any member who is not on the list, please turn his or her name in to the steward before Sept. 23. . . the cribbage tournament score box was opened last Sunday and the finest 15 towers in the club seem to be Lillian Burr and Doris Madge in the women's tournament and Don Simonds and Sid Burr in the men's group. These two pairs will play 1 out of 7 for the women's and men's championship. Klintzing may be enjoyed by anyone who can learn when they intend to do battle . . . Next Sunday has been designated as garden day at the club. About 200 shrubs need to be planted around the grounds and the more volunteers we have to dig holes the easier it'll be on Arthur Hall's back. So let's all be down Sunday and give the grounds committee a hand. Afterall, if a tree grows in Brooklyn, why not 200 at the club.

A recent visit to Cape Cod has brought home to us the modernization of the country during the past 12 years. The change has been noticeable to a marked degree throughout this section, but the old Cape natives have largely until now stuck to their New England traditions. Times have changed however, and modern methods and modern thought have made their inroads. A friend of ours recently spent a week-end at our camp, and our suggestion was that he visit the local store, formerly the center of information and gossip, and say hello to the proprietor, lending the information that he was occupying our place. This he did. He made a few purchases and during the course of his shopping imparted the news that he was at our camp and that we suggested that he say hello. The proprietor, busy with his pencil figuring the sum total, did not stop with his arithmetic problem. He kept right on, but courteously replied "hello." And a following episode lent further enlightenment to the present progress of the Cape. Visiting a store, the gentleman found the proprietor and his assistant busily engaged at the counter reading the latest copy of an illustrated magazine. After waiting a minute for signs of recognition he stated his wants. Not even a glance rewarded his remarks. Becoming annoyed, he took a half dollar from his pocket and stated: "Now see here; you are heads and you are tails. I'll flip this to see who waits on me." Interest appeared on both faces. The coin was flipped and tails won. Without a word the assistant started in to fill his order. Yes, the Cape is certainly getting into the way of things.

"Europe is said not to like it if President Roosevelt is defeated. Well, somehow or other, I cannot help but feel Europe is not voting in America. That is what this war is all about. If we intend to stop war, it must be through fear not through confidence that we will try again to buy it, through limitless spending and appeasement. We need a change in Administration, a strong Administration that cannot be 'stabbed in the back.' We must stop war, not wonder what we will do between wars."

MAJOR LEGHORN'S EXPERIENCES

Winchester friends were interested to read in last Thursday's Boston Globe an article by Carlyle Holt, its special correspondent with the armed forces, giving an interview with Major Richard S. Leghorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Leghorn of Wedgemere avenue. Major Leghorn is well known to many Winchester friends. He is in a photographic division of the army now before Germany, and his superior is Elliot Roosevelt.

Correspondent Holt writes in part: The marvels of modern photography are no surprise to any of us, but after I talked today with a former Winchester man who flew over territory deep in Germany with camera shots the only ones he took at the Nazis, it made me realize in this war, photographers can be just as important as fighters.

And what the pictures revealed! — desperate Germans clogging roads in a mad race to outrun the flying, marching, tank-riding, jeep-loaded Allies . . . but let me have Maj. Richard S. Leghorn, 42 Wedgemere avenue, Winchester, deputy commander of a 9th Air Force Reconnaissance Group, tell his story. The Major, a graduate of M. I. T., in 1939, had just returned from a reconnaissance flight along the Rhine when I interviewed him.

"You'd never realize the extent of our advance unless it could be told that planes which perform tactical functions are already operating over the West Wall and defenses on the Rhine," Maj. Leghorn said.

"The flight was a very quiet one and I got quite a kick out of being a few hundred feet above 'the holy soil' with no weapon except a camera. All roads leading into Germany which had not yet been severed by our advances were packed with Nazi transport vehicles, both horse-drawn and motorized, as the fleeing thousands tried to save what remnants were left of their shattered supplies and armed forces.

"The proportion of horse-drawn vehicles has increased rapidly during the past few weeks," Major Leghorn added.

This pioneer reconnaissance group, which scouts ahead of the regular ground force, operates as two distinct forces: the high altitude photographers and the low-altitude cameramen who work close to the ground. This second group, the major explained, is especially valuable in spotting enemy artillery.

The amount of work done by the group is indicated by the fact that ordinarily their laboratory develops 60,000 prints of photographs each day. When the front was stable, as before the break through, that war zone was photographed and re-photographed on successive days to determine what troop movements had been made.

"Now, however," Major Leghorn continued, "movement is too rapid, and the scope of operations of the enemy too large for such a procedure. Key points are still revealed by the prying camera lenses. Of course one of the most valuable bits of information is the indication from our films what direction the retreat of the Germans is taking.

"You'd like to know my biggest thrill?" Major Leghorn asked. "Well, it wasn't flying over the Rhine but going over the Falaise pocket at 1800 feet in a puddle-jumping L-5 and taking pictures with a hand camera of that blazing cauldron of battle."

The planes flew in the dirtiest kind of weather, even when ceilings were practically zero, the major told me. The job was exceptionally bad during June and July, but that didn't matter to him or his crew, which included two other Bostonians, Lt. John H. Ryther, 23 Irving street, Watertown and Lt. Patrick B. Turner, 51 Mozart street, Jamaica Plain.

VICTORY GARDEN HARVEST SHOW

A large attendance marked the second Victory Garden Harvest Show held in the town hall last Friday and Saturday, and those present found much there to enjoy, and to interest and help them.

Long tables attractively radiating from the woodbine-entwined Wishing Well in the center of the main auditorium held the fruit, vegetable and canned goods exhibits. One large v-shaped table emphasized the Victory note.

The 4-H and junior exhibits, the library display and the information booth occupied spaces under the balconies and the small town hall was given over to the beautiful array of flowers, specimen blooms and lovely arrangements, all of which drew much favorable comment.

Sponsored again by Winchester Civilian Defense, the show was arranged and staged by the Winchester Better Homes Garden Club and the Winchester Garden Club.

Mrs. James A. Newman, president of the Winchester Better Homes Garden Club headed the general committee, with Mrs. John B. Wills, president of the Winchester Garden Club, and Mrs. Harold M. Twombley as vice chairmen. Mr. Marshall W. Symmes, chairman of the Civilian Defense Victory Garden Committee and Mr. Edmund C. Fller, last year's chairman also served on the general committee.

Wagon wheels, entwined with woodbine and greenery, an ox-bow, old stone jugs, and bright pumpkins arranged along the edge of the stage provided a rustic background in keeping with the spirit of the show.

Outstanding again this year in the vegetable displays was that of Vernon W. Jones, which occupied a prominent place directly in front of the stage. Mr. Jones' collection included at least 45 distinct classes of vegetables, with many varieties in some of the classes. For this splendid display Mr. Jones was awarded a first prize and a special award.

Judges for the fruit and vegetables were Prof. Ray M. Koon of the Waltham Field Station, Mrs. Koon and Mrs. Robert M. Bowen of Concord.

Miss Edith West of the Middlesex County Extension Service at Concord judged the canned goods.

Mrs. George W. French and Mrs. Willard Hudson acted as secretaries for these judges.

Flower specimens and arrangements were judged by Mrs. Chester Cook of Lexington, Mrs. Ralph R. Stratton of Melrose, and Mrs. Paul Wadleigh of Boston, with Mrs. Arthur W. Pitman as their secretary.

Mrs. Alice W. Brown, associate County Club agent, judged the 4-H and junior exhibits.

The general committee expresses its deep appreciation to all who by their time and effort helped make successful this second Victory Garden Harvest Show.

One of the many interesting tables in the hall was that of the Winchester 4-H Club.

This showed exhibits of fruit, vegetables, preserves and live stock and made a very creditable showing.

The following members exhibited from four to fourteen items each and received prizes, honorable mentions and special awards:

Harold Moran: nine first prizes.

Miss Kay Michienzi, five first prizes.

Miss Frances and Miss Edith Capone, 3 first and 4 seconds.

John A. Shields: two first and one third.

Among the other exhibitors were Miss Mary Cournoyer, Miss Louise Roberts, Richard Phippen, Milton Galuera, Frank E. Johnson.

The two latter made the only exhibits of live stock. Each exhibit consisted of a hen and a rooster and received a special award.

One of the roosters distinguished himself by continuous crowing and one of the hens by laying the only egg in the exhibition which should certainly receive a prize for freshness.

TENNIS

It is hoped that the finals of the men's singles and men's doubles will be held this coming Sunday. Spectators can be sure of seeing interesting matches during both the morning and afternoon sessions. Semi-final and final matches will be umpired by Winslow (Mike) Blanchard, well known national tennis official of the Longwood Cricket Club and all officiating will be under the direction of Referee Bob Guild. The Winchester Park Department has promised to have the courts in fine playing condition for the matches.

Miss Mabel McGoldick of Somerville, who passed away recently was the sister of Lt. Joseph E. McGoldrick, chaplain of the U. S. Marine Corps in San Diego, Cal. and former curate at St. Mary's Church, Winchester.

An opening worship service is led each week by one of the Forum boys who acts as chaplain. Each chaplain serves for one month, ending his month by assisting Dr. Chidley in the regular morning service of the church.

Following the worship service a speaker of outstanding ability in his own line addresses the group. Looking over the record of the past six years, one notices how many famous people have come to Forum.

There have been ministers, doctors, scientists, lawyers, business men, college professors and missionaries. Former members of the Forum who are now in college have paid great tribute to the Forum when they have reported that Forum speakers had widened their horizons and taught them to think in such a way that they got more out of college than they could have otherwise.

G. RAYMOND BANCROFT APPOINTED EXCLUSIVE AGENT

G. R. Bancroft, well known dry goods merchant at 15 Mt. Vernon street has been appointed exclusive agent to handle Supertone dry cleaning in Winchester. The Superior Laundry Co., well known to many former patrons in Winchester, has been returned to civilian use by the U. S Quartermaster Corps.

Unable to secure suitable plant facilities at this time Superior hopes to give Winchester the same high grade cleaning service which was so well received in town before the Army took over. Particular attention is to be paid to restoring former standards of quality and attention to details.

Replacing buttons, and minor repairs are to be a part of the regular service. Delivery schedules are to be maintained and the personal contact available at Bancroft's will assure attention to details that will take dry cleaning off the list of your war time headaches.

Having been commandeered by the Army for the processing of enlisted men's work, until the Army laundry at Fort Devens was built, Superior is re-entering to the civilian field with many handicaps to be overcome.

Mr. Campbell, president of the company, is quoted as being determined to rebuild on the sound policy of satisfying consumers requirements. They are fortunate in having mostly former employees in the dry cleaning department, under the experienced direction of Mr. Whitney Feltmate.

Leave your better things at Bancrofts for Supertone treatment.

Look! Listen! Live!

In the grade crossing accident illustrated here, one out of five had it—a reckless, uncontrollable desire not only to beat a train across a crossing, but to drive around four other waiting cars in order to attempt it.

This description of an actual case is but one small sample of the driver-carelessness that results in an average of 1875 deaths and 4700 injuries through crossing accidents each year.

Four automobiles were standing on a crossing in compliance with the warning of flashing light signals and bell indicating the approach of a train. A fifth car drove around these standing cars and attempted to cross the track, but struck the locomotive.

The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these accidents which every day delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours — a serious blow to the nation's war transportation effort.

Driver carelessness is the cause of almost all grade crossing accidents according to the Council. To help win the war—to save yourself and others needless suffering—the Council asks you to be sure the track is clear before you start across.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE

"Our boys and girls in uniform need the kind of service given by the Salvation Army, and this they must not be denied," says William N. Beggs, chairman of Winchester's general committee in the Salvation Army 1944-45 Greater Boston Maintenance Appeal for $400,000. Mr. Beggs' statement further says:

"You will be glad to know that the Army's Red Shield Service Clubs and Canteens on all fronts, as well as here in Greater Boston, are maintaining the tradition for outstanding service established in the first World War.

"I want you to know that a part of the money donated in Winchester remains under the supervision of a local committee for its use in any problem of need."

Mrs. Benjamin T. Marshall, Jr. has cheerfully taken over a big responsibility in the chairmanship of the Women's Division which will canvass every householder in Winchester, starting the week of Sept. 11. The thoroughness of this undertaking will greatly affect the ultimate success of Winchester's determination to do its share in making up the $400,000 required for the ensuing year.

Donald J. Lewis, of the Winchester Trust Company is treasurer of the committee.

BARTLETT SCHOOL OPENS

The Bartlett School opened for its 12th season, Sept. 6. There are six classrooms and a spacious, grassy playground. Children four years of age are eligible for the kindergarten and those 4½ fo the sub-primary. Children 5 years of age are eligible for Bartlett first grade. Reading aptitude and intelligence tests are given all first graders. The daily progress plus test results determine during the first six weeks whether or not a pupil will succeed in first grade.

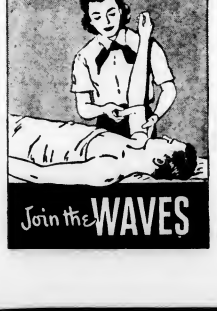

Over 500 pupils have saved a year in school by attending the Bartlett first grade during the past 11 years. The limited class enrollment insures the individual attention which is so effective in the first years at school.

Many pupils continue in the Bartlett second and third grades from which all without exception have been promoted into the next higher grade in public or private schools.

Transportation is provided. All classes are one session. School is open for inspection. Norine D. Cayey, director, is a graduate of the Boston Teacher's College with 20 years teaching experience. The six assisting teachers are experienced teacher college graduates.

The Bartlett School is particularly well known for success in the teaching of reading.

Soldiers' Wives and Post-War Married Life

A psychologist offers some mighty sensible advice to husbands and wives separated by war. He believes "lack of tolerance" rather than loss of affection is most likely to cause post-war marriage difficulties.

The wife has built wonderful pictures of how perfect life will be when her husband gets back. And he dreams of evenings with her by the fire with a glass of beer, friendly conversation, and no problems or worries.

Of course, it isn't true that just getting back together will make life perfect. There'll be the same domestic problems, the same complications and adjustments, as always.

That's where tolerance is going to be mighty important. Tolerance for a husband who spills ashes on the carpet sometimes. Tolerance for a wife who spends a little too much money for a funny-looking hat. Yes, tolerance is a mighty good foundation for any marriage.

REAFFIRMATION

(Written for Winchester Star)

Meekness, self-abnegation are characteristics
Of life lived without wilful moral deform,
Whose growth resembles a beautiful flower
As men grow in grace so do they conform
To noble thoughts which soar like a tower.

YOUTH'S ARREST SOLVED LOCAL BREAKS

Chief William H. Rogers of the Police Department announced on Wednesday that the arrest of a 19 year old youth in Brighton the day previous had solved the problem of six breaks in Winchester, on which the local Police have been working much of the summer. The local breaks occurred between May and August and included those at the homes of Mr. John T. Baumgardner, 81 Cambridge street; Mr. Stuart H. Mason, 140 Cambridge street; Mr. Chester F. Wright, 31 Main street; Dr. H. S. Parsons, 73 Bacon street; Mr. Harold B. Beebe, 27 Everett avenue and the recently purchased home of Mr. James S. Murray at 9 Everett avenue, formerly occupied by the late Mr. George Heintz and untenanted at the time it was entered during the late summer.

At the time some of the breaks were made Chief Rogers and his investigating officers were able to get quite accurate descriptions of a youth seen in the vicinity and as a consequence were on the alert for the reappearance of the suspect. When the Brighton Police took into custody on Tuesday a youth answering the description of the one they were seeking Chief Rogers and Sgt. Thomas F. Cassidy went at once to Station 19 in Brighton to question the prisoner.

The youth gave his name as Lucien Camille Pelletier, 19, with no permanent address, living between Boston, Lowell and Cony Island, N. Y. Police say his mother is dead and his father in the service. The Brighton Police took him into custody for two breaks there. The Arlington Police picked him up last week and questioned him but released him after questioning. The day he was picked up by Brighton Police the authorities say he had broken into a filling station in Saugus and stolen a radio which he sold for $6. Police say Pelletier is responsible for between 26 and 30 breaks, including four in Arlington, six each in Lowell and Winchester, two in Brighton, and others in Saugus, Medford and Newton.

According to Chief Rogers, Pelletier admitted having made the local breaks when questioned by the Chief and Sgt. Cassidy. The youth stated that he worked alone, and in two instances said that he got less out of local houses than the figure mentioned by the Police.

At Baumgardner's he said he got $1800 instead of $2000 and at Mason's, $18 instead of $80. At the latter residence he said he stole eight ration books which he threw into a sewer in Lowell.

At the home of Dr. Parsons, according to the Police, Pelletier stole an old fashioned watch which he sold in Scollay Square, Boston, for $3 and some other small effects which he sold to a Police officer in Providence. A Masonic charm which he stole there he threw away.

At the Wright home Pelletier told the Police he stole a radio and other small items, selling the radio to a man at a Boston hotel. The youth said he was frightened away from the Beebe home, after gaining access to the cellar, and at the Murray home he took nothing, the house being unoccupied.

Chief Rogers told the Star that he would go before the Grand Jury together with other Police Department to indict Pelletier. In Winchester the youth is charged with four counts of breaking and entering and larceny, one count of breaking and entering in the night time with intent to commit larceny and another count of breaking and entering a building with intent to commit larceny.

If there are not sufficient medical supplies to treat his wounds he may not recover and be able to return to his loved ones after the struggle is over. The officers of the club are particularly anxious to extend an invitation to couples who have recently moved to Winchester, and all couples who are interested to join.

The Couples Club has no dues, no rules or regulations, and is open equally to all, whether or not they have any church affiliation, or no matter what the affiliation may be. It is a social group based on the idea of good fellowship and neighborliness. If you wish your name added to the Couples Club mailing list, just call Ted or Georgie Whittemore, Win. 0244.

LOWER SCHOOL OPEN AT UNITARIAN CHURCH

The lower school for small children, from nursery school age through the third grade was opened on the second Sunday of September and meets at the church hour 11 a. m. in order to accommodate parents who wish to attend the morning service.

Mrs. Lyle K. Bush will be the director of the school this year. The lower school is very fortunate to have a leader of Mrs. Bush's training and experience in charge. She will have as an assistant Mrs. Herbert Tucker who has also had considerable training and experience and is a kindergarten teacher in the public schools here in Winchester.

Miss Barbara Hayden and Mrs. Frances-Jane Trask, who were associated with Mrs. Kendall who directed the nursery school last year, will be on the teaching staff again this year. Working with them in this department as teachers will be Miss Jane Davis, Miss Peggy Laverty and Miss Marilyn Tucker.

The School of Religion and the Junior Church for older children will begin its season next Sunday, Oct. 1. A full corps of splendid teachers and a liberal and modern school of religion await the children.

The school is happy to announce that Dr. I. M. Michelsen has accepted the appointment as secretary.

Further announcement will be made concerning the school. Children may be registered at the church office.

GEO. WASHINGTON SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The Mothers Association of the Geo. Washington School held their first meeting of the year Tuesday, Sept. 19. Tea was served and the teachers welcomed back.

EPIPHANY CHURCH SCHOOL OPENS

Sunday, Sept. 24, at 9.30 o'clock, the school year of the Epiphany Church School will open. Mr. Dana Cotton, whose return to Winchester residence and participation in parish religious education Epiphany gratefully welcomes will be the superintendent of the upper school.

Sessions of this school will begin each Sunday with a worship service in the church in which all classes join. Instruction in separate rooms in the parish house will follow the curriculum arranged by the director of religious education, Miss Ethel B. Davis.

Grade 2: Trust in God
Grade 3: Obedience to God
Grade 4: Our Family the Church
Grade 5: Heroes of Israel
Grade 6: Life of Christ
Grade 7: God's Message and His Messengers
Grade 8: Builders of the Kingdom
Senior Class, Church History.

Epiphany courses center on the Bible and God's help in man's living, the fundamental things which our men in peril adrift on lonely seas, fighting to bring a wounded plane safely back to its base, or in the constant danger of combat hours, have found to answer their needs.

The course for grade 8 traces in the social structure the work of men who, like the Friends in prison reform and in the abolition of slavery, took their commission from God and went forward fearlessly by his power.

The kindergarten and primary departments are superintended by Mrs. Edward F. Boyd. Courses for these young children follow this plan.

Nursery Class. Home Stories.
Kindergarten: Beginners' Stories.
Grade 1: The Fatherhood of God.

These grades meet at 11 o'clock in the parish house.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold its first bridge and whist party of the season at the Legion House on Monday evening, Sept. 25.

A very pleasant evening of entertainment has been planned by the chairman, Mrs. Alice Welsh and her committee.

It is hoped that many members and their friends will attend for the proceeds are to be used for hospital work.

JUNIOR FLORENCE CRITTENTON CIRCLE

WINCHESTER IN "RED FEATHER" FILM

One day last June a crew of motion picture photographers visited the Home for Aged People in Winchester. As representatives of the Greater Boston United War Fund and its affiliate, the Winchester Community Chest, they were warmly greeted by Mrs. Maude T. Wolloff, matron, and all the family at the Home.

After showing their guests about the comfortable house on Mt. Vernon street, the members of the family graciously posed for picture in the garden. Some of these scenes will be shown in "Red Feather Magic", the film just being released by the United War Fund in advance of its November campaign.

The film has been done in Kodachrome natural color and is a vivid, dramatic portrayal of the "Red Feather" services given to the people of Greater Boston by hospitals, clinics, family, youth and children's agencies through the Greater Boston United War Fund.

There's the baby clinic where little lives of Greater Boston are started on their sturdy way. One sees them grow up through the years to attend nursery school, to take part in the countless "Red Feather" youth programs for the Scouts; Camp Fire Girls and all the rest; to share in the privileges of family and neighborhood centers; to find healing and comfort in hospitals and other health services, in institutions for the handicapped and for those nearing the end of life's road.

And because it is wartime, there is the added, and no less urgent, appeal of those services without which this world war could not be successfully waged: the USO, War Prisoners Aid, United Seamen's Service, United Nations Relief and other civilian-supported needs.

"Red Feather Magic", which will be shown to an estimated total audience of a million in the many communities participating in the drive, has all the appeal that its title implies, say those who have seen the preview. It proves without a doubt that everyone has the magic power to help in maintaining these services which combine to build a better Greater Boston community, a better nation and a better world.

COMDR. STEELE B. SMITH

WINCHESTER OFFICER PROMOTED

Comdr. Steele B. Smith, USNR of 247 Washington street, who was the first Naval officer to arrive at Tufts when the Naval ROTC program was initiated at Tufts in 1941, has just received word from Washington that he has been raised in rank from lieutenant commander to a full commander, it is announced at Tufts.

Since its inception, Comdr. Smith has been executive officer of the Tufts NROTC unit and associate professor in naval sciences and tactics, and since July 1943, has been executive officer of the Tufts V-12 unit, second largest V-12 unit in New England.

He has served as second in command under two commanding officers, Capt. C. H. J. Keppler, USN, now director of the Naval Officer Procurement of the First Naval District, and Capt. Preston B. Haines, USNR, of 77 Church street, Winchester, who is now in command of the Tufts unit.

Under Comdr. Smith's direction, the naval courses of the Tufts Naval College training program have been organized and administered, and the efficiency of the preset Naval College training program at Tufts has been remarkably built up.

Comdr. Smith was graduated from Annapolis in 1923, and took specialized work in submarine training at the Submarine School in New London, after which he was assigned to submarine duty in Atlantic and Pacific waters. In 1930 he received orders for land duty to take charge of the Branch Hydrographic Office at Chicago. In 1935 he was sent to Harvard where he remained attached to the Harvard NROTC until coming to Tufts in 1941.

SIMONDS WINS FLEET CHAMPIONSHIP

Don Simonds is the 1944 champion of the Winchester Snipe Fleet and thus becomes the first skipper ever to win this coveted title three times. Don won the championship in 1941 and 1942, lost it to George Wiswell, Jr. in 1943 but came strong this year to put his name on the Don-Jan Trophy for the third time.

Don's win also gives him the honor of being the first winner of the handsome George Jones Trophy, which was donated to the club by Mr. Jones this year.

The chief threat to Don and his sleek Sinbad came from the Swanson brothers Ralph, Bob, and Roger. At several stages in the all summer series these boys led the fleet and were never lower than second in the standing. In fact, they were within reach of Don right up to the final races and Don had a none too generous margin of victory.

Although Ralph and Bob sailed the By-George, we think Roger, who crewed for them, deserves a full third share of the credit. Unquestionably his clever crewing was a great help to both Bob and Ralph and went a long way toward keeping By George up near Sinbad.

Third place in the fleet standing was so close it was decided on the final day of racing with George Jones' Youani winning out over Comdr. Jim Newman's Chippie by a mere four points. When you remember that their total scores were up in the 1500's four points is a good deal less than a cat's whisker.

First place in the handicap series was won by Fleet Captain Carl Freyer who had to keep his Phooka flying all season to nose out Bill Tuck's Bill.

Although both these wake wallowers were never in the contention as far as the official fleet races were concerned, they put on some of the most thrilling races for sixth or seventh place that have ever been held on the Mystic and were never more than a point apart in the handicap series. However, we feel that Freyer owes Bill Tuck's father Leon an assist for his win, because when the Phooka was dismasted this summer, Leon generously donated a spare mast he had and thus kept Phooka in the running.

We're sorry that we can't report which of the Fleet Flounderers finished third in this series because at time of going to press, the final results had to be tabulated.

Club Chatter

The ping pong tournament has settled down to three finalists, Roger Curtis, Holbrook Bugbee and Roger Swanson. We should be able to report the winner by next week-end . . . Those 200 trees were planted at the club last Sunday and many thanks to all of you who came down and lent a hand . . . The afternoon before the hurricane, the gang got together and pulled most of the boats up on shore. Thanks to their tremendous efforts, not a single boat was harmed. The club and the fleet owe these members an especially warm vote of thanks . . . It was a great pleasure to see Mert and Sugar Ober back on the lake again even if only for a week-end. We still consider them one of the handsomest couples we've ever seen. Good luck to them both.

DONAHUE HOSPITALIZED

Lt. Fred J. Donahue, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Donahue of Mystic avenue, who is with the Army on active duty in the Pacific area, has been returned to his outfit's base camp at Oahu, Territory of Hawaii, after participating in both the Saipan and Tinian landings.

Undoubtedly many Winchester residents, especially those who have children in our public schools, have been closely following the so-called strike by Worcester High School pupils. Directed by school authorities to attend their school an hour longer each day they rebelled in the best New Deal order and went out on strike, milled about the city and stoned the superintendent's home. No greater contrast between the old and the new order to use a New Deal phrase—could be brought forth in considering the general attitude of the nation. Strikes, today, are the things which bring results. They are the things which our benevolent government looks after, always seeing that the strikers, abused and depressed, are appeased. The school children are only following the example set by their elders and condoned by our rulers. They know they will receive no personal punishment and they know they have better than an even chance to secure shorter school hours. Their education is a minor—or should we say forgotten—matter. When we were young we went to school during the hours determined upon by the school committee. We well knew that any rebellion would receive no support at home. If we did not go to school we could go to work—and we mean work, not sitting down for a few hours a day and receiving fifty dollars a week to blow in as we saw fit. Times have changed. This nation is called a melting pot, but the material we are melting seems to be burning the bottom out of the pot and with such an example as is set up before us by those in "high office" we may well be on our way in losing our individuality as a nation.

LOOKING FORWARD TO LIBRARY FILMS

To the Editor of the Star:
Sept. 15, 1944

Although it is too early for an official announcement, I would like you to inform your readers of the reopening of the 1944-45 season of educational films at our public library, Oct. 6 and 7.

We who have been constant library devotees are more than pleased and entertained by the great amount of civic activities propagated by our librarian Miss Meade not the least of these, the educational films shown every Friday evening for adults and Saturday morning for the children.

In these particular times, a knowledge, catholic in taste, is a necessary acquisition for those discerning people who wish to embrace a knowledge of the people and nations in this our world.

May I recommend to all, these particulary entertaining evenings at the library this fall and winter. Miss Meade will welcome all to these gatherings and will appreciate any novel recommendations.

Appreciatively,
Stephen N. Hill

CAMEO STUDIO

The Cameo Studio is a one man business, obviously we have to accept the limitations that this implies. Due to war time conditions we are working 50 hours per week, but even so we are unable to accept more than about 60 per cent of the work asked for.

The shortage of material available makes it impossible to make many combinations customers would like. If we are unable to do your work it is because we do not intend to take advantage of a war boom to produce a lot of junk, just for the sake of making extra dollars. In most cases our photographs are better and are priced about 30 per cent below the prices of those places doing similar work, but we can do only a limited amount of business.

K. OF C. INSTALLATION

Winchester Council, Knights of Columbus, 210, will have their annual installation of officers on Monday evening, Sept. 25 at 8.15 o'clock in their hall on Mt. Vernon street.

District Deputy James O'Gara and staff from Medford will install the officers.

Grand Knight Henry Murray who was re-elected for the second year will be installed with the following other officers: Deputy Grand Knight Samuel Kinston; Chancellor Joseph Haggerty; Warden Daniel O'Donnell; Advocate Francis Dolan; Lecturer William Gibbons; Treasurer Edward Dalton; Recording Sec., Walter Prue, Jr.; Fin. Sec, John Crowley; Inside Guard, Alfred Barnard; Outside Guard Daniel C. Pearson; Trustee, Luke P Glendon.

Rev. Fr. James Fitzsimons, the Chaplain of the Council will be the guest of the evening.

FOOTBALL AT MANCHESTER FIELD

Home Schedule Attactive

Winchester High School football games will be played at Manchester Field this fall instead of at Shore road athletic field. The condition of the Shore road field has made this change necessary this fall. Although it is understood that the change is only a temporary one.

Perhaps the change will be a welcome one to many football enthusiasts who feel that Manchester Field is more centrally located and easier to reach. Certainly the playing surface will be an improvement over that of the other field at present.

The change will present a problem to the school authorities in that it will be impossible to erect a permanent enclosure at Manchester Field and the problem of securing sufficient revenue from paid admissions will again have to be met. At present it is planned to erect a temporary enclosure of the playing field by using snow fence barriers where the Aberjona does not provide a natural boundary. It will be necessary to provide for more ticket booths to handle the crowd effectively.

The people of the town who attend the high school games are urged to co-operate with the students in charge of the tickets and of controlling the games. Winchester's fine record in football and in other sports, during the past half dozen years especially, has been partially due to the increased revenue from the enclosed field at Shore road, which made it possible to secure sufficient uniforms of excellent quality to outfit large squads in all sports. This has meant that even though many first-string players graduate each year, others with excellent training and some experience have been ready to step into their shoes and keep the standard of athletics at a high level.

Because of the new tax laws established last spring, the admission prices to home games will be slightly increased as follows:

Members of the Athletic Association and all children under 12 years of age will be admitted upon the purchase of a 12 cent admission ticket. All adults and non-A.A. members will be admitted on a 40 cent admission ticket. The Association will receive the same proportion of the total admission on these new prices as heretofore. It is a case of passing the tax on to the consumer.

Illustrated and colorful programs will be on sale at each home game. These programs will contain the names and numbers of all the players of both teams, records and pictures. They will be fine souvenirs or splendid reminders to send away to boys who are now in the service but who once played on Winchester teams.

Winchester's home game schedule this fall is unusually attractive. Six games will be played at home instead of the usual five. These include a new comer in Winthrop High School, a team that has recently forged into the limelight in football and that will make a welcome addition to Winchester's schedule in place of Punchard High School, which always fought gamely but without much chance of winning.

The schedule is as follows:

Sept.
23 Swampscott
30 Lexington

Oct.
7 Winthrop
12 Danvers
21 Stoneham
28 at Framingham

Nov.
4 at Reading
11 at Belmont
18 Wakefield
Thanksgiving at Woburn

JACKSON AT ALAMEDA

Big Bob Jackson, former demon end on the Winchester High School football team, now in the Navy, has been transferred from the Great Lakes to the Naval Air Station at Alameda Cal., where he has been assigned to the assembly and repair shop, repairing airplane fuselages, a job calling for absolute perfection. According to Bob there just is no allowance for mistakes in that sort of business.

"Jack" likes his new work (he has an assistant) and finds his surroundings very pleasant, with attractive buildings and good living conditions, including the all important "chow." He especially enjoyed the trip west, learning as he claims more about geography than "Ted" Bartlett ever taught him in high school in a year (Ed. Note. We always thought Bart was a pretty fair teacher!)

Bob was particularly impressed with the acres and acres of corn he saw in Nebraska and with the size of Great Salt Lake, which he said took a good three quarters of an hour to cross. (Ed. Note again. It probably would have taken the full hour to get Bob across before the Navy stream-lined him!)

Jackson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson of Cross street. He graduated from Winchester High School in the class of 1943, being vice president of his class and a member of the varsity football team for three years, playing regular left end on the State Championship team of 1942.

SELECTMEN'S NOTES

It is estimated that the hurricane cost to the Highway Department will be about $1000. It is interesting to note that the total cost to all departments for the last hurricane in 1938 was just under $20,000.

The P. T. Foley Co. is repairing the boilers at the fire station, one section having developed a leak since the last inspection.

The Park Department will endeavor to clean up the pollution of the Aberjona River a little later in the season when there is more labor available.

RED AND BLACK CANTEEN OPENS TOMORROW

The moment a great many Winchester people have looked forward to for a long time actually becomes realized tomorrow, when the Red and Black Canteen opens tomorrow night at 7.30 in its new quarters in the Association Building on Vine street, just two blocks from the center.

Floors and windows have been scrubbed; the new jute box is ready to play the collection of new records that have been purchased, a stock of Coca Cola is ready for the thirsty; games of all kinds are waiting in the game room; magazines are on tables in the lounge. For several weeks the Canteen Committee of high school students, and the Canteen Advisory Committee of adults have been busy getting things ready. Tomorrow the doors open.

At present the Canteen will be operated only for those in the Winchester High School. There are no fees or dues, but to receive a membership card each student signs a pledge to live up to the Canteen rules.

Next week the Canteen will be open both Friday and Saturday evening; the week of Oct. 2 it will be open Friday afternoon as well as Friday and Saturday evenings, and after the football season it will be open both Friday and Saturday afternoons and evenings.

There will be special events and stunts from time to time, and some open nights when members may invite guests.

Fundamentally however, the Canteen is not just the home of a weekly dance, but an informal club, where the high school students can drop in for 10 minutes or for the evening; a place where groups of girls as well as boys can find good times and meet their friends, a place couples having a date can head for to dance, buy a coke and have a game of table tennis.

The administration of the Canteen is in the hands of the Canteen Committee, consisting of 12 high school students, assisted by many of their fellow students who fill out the various sub-committees, each backed by a group from the adult Canteen Advisory Committee.

The Canteen has been made possible by the co-operation of many, including the Youth Guidance Committee; the Board of Selectmen; Mr. Geo. T. Davidson, chairman of the Park Commissioners; the directors of Winchester Civilian Defense; the Winchester Auxiliary Police; the Winchester Odd Fellows, and many citizens who have contributed in services, in furniture or in other ways to help make it possible to open.

Tomorrow, opening date, the Canteen will observe its regular hours of 7.30 until 11.30. Hosts and hostesses will be Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kingman and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Whittemore. The Canteen will however, be open from 7 to 7.30 for inspection by any adults who are interested. Such visitors are asked to come in time so that by 7.30 the Canteen will be ready for its members.

Miss Ethel Cassidy has been enjoying a vacation this week from her duties with the clerical staff of the Assessors office at the town hall.

WINCHESTER TELEPHONES ALL IN USE MONDAY

The hurricane of last Thursday night put 150 telephone lines out of commission in Winchester alone, a town which by comparison did not suffer too badly from the big storm. Telephone repair crews worked day and night to get service back to normal and about noontime on Monday Mr. D. Joseph Murphy, the Telephone Company's commercial manager for this district informed the Star that service in Winchester was back to normal, an accomplishment of which the company may well be proud.

Telephone repair crews, in their completed condition, faced a gigantic task to repair the damage done their lines by the storm. In southeast Massachusetts 76,500 lines were out of order, mostly on the Cape and about New Bedford, while in Metropolitan Boston 10,000 lines were dead. Anxiety about property and relatives in badly hit areas doubled the telephone calls over the number handled by the exchanges in a normal day. Just one of the items with which repair crews had to cope was the 100 poles brought down by the gale.

HAYDEN COTTAGE AT EPPING, N. H., DAMAGED

The summer cottage of Mrs. Richard Hayden of Church street was the only house at North Epping, N. H., to be seriously damaged by last week's hurricane, although numerous other houses there were battered by the big storm and electric, telephone and water facilities were cut off.

Mrs. Hayden and her daughter, Miss Ruth Hayden, vacated their cottage only Thursday morning before the storm. A huge pine tree measuring more than nine feet around the base was uprooted and fell upon the cottage, causing serious damage to it as well as ripping the piazza from a neighboring cottage occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Alvin P. Larson of Somerville. The Larsons escaped injury.

ATTENDED TESTIMONIAL DINNER

Postmaster Vincent C. Ambrose headed the Winchester Postoffice delegation attending the testimonial dinner given last Saturday evening at the Hotel Statler in Boston for Postmaster Philip H. Gallagher of Woburn. The dinner was given for Postmaster Gallagher by the National Association of Postmasters, of which he is president.

In the local delegation, besides Postmaster Ambrose, were Assistant Postmaster Jerry Maloney, Tom Connors, Clarence Chamberland, Al Barnard and Dan O'Leary. Featuring the after-dinner program was the rendering of "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" in duet form by Messrs. O'Leary and Maloney.

BACON FELT HELD OUTING

The employees of the Bacon Felt Company of this town, 60 strong, held a most enjoyable clam bake and outing last Saturday at Johnson Grove in Burlington.

In addition to the bake there were sack, three-legged and relay races and a soft ball game, with appropriate prizes presented to the winning contestants. Informal dancing was also enjoyed with music furnished by an accordian player.

SOLDIER SPOKE AT ROTARY

One of the most interesting talks in weeks was enjoyed by the members of the Rotary Club of Winchester at its luncheon yesterday noon when Pvt. Paul Butterworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Butterworth of Englewood road, a veteran of 22 months service, gave a summary of some of his travels and experiences. He participated in the fighting as a member of a medical unit in Africa, Sicily and Italy, spending a considerable time at the Anzio beachhead. During his service he was three wounded, seriously in two instances, and he is now on a medical furlough before returning to duty.

Three visitors were entertained at yesterday's luncheon and President Harry Bigelow presided.

The Edison Company had most of the street lights back in commission by the first of the week, but for three nights the town was pretty well blacked out. It proved very difficult to locate the cause of the trouble after this hurricane.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, WINCHESTER

Sunday services, 11 a. m.
Wednesday testimonial meeting 8 p. m.
Reading Room, 5 Winchester Terrace (off Thompson street). Open daily except Sundays and holidays from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and in all of its branches, on Sunday, Sept. 24, will be Reality.

The Golden Text: Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. (James 1:17). Other Bible citations include: As for God, his way is perfect, the word of the Lord is tried: he is a buckler to all them that trust in him. For who is God, save the Lord? and who is a rock, save our God? God is my strength and power: and he maketh my way perfect (II Samuel 22:31-33).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy: We must realize the ability of mental might to offset human misconceptions and to replace them with the life which is spiritual, not material. The great spiritual facts must be brought out that man is, not shall be, perfect and immortals (p. 428).

WINCHESTER BUS RIDERS AFFECTED BY STRIKE

The strike of bus operators, in which employees of the Melrose division of the Eastern Mass. Street Railway Co. participated, left Winchester commuters without bus service from Sunday until Tuesday forenoon when the service was resumed.

It is understood that the men asked a bonus of 6 cents per hour and were finally granted three cents per hour as a compromise, retroactive to June 1943, with other benefits of an insurance and protective nature making the final total amount to about what the operators asked in the first place.

YOUR GAS WATER HEATER

HOW TO GET THE MOST FROM YOUR AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATER

Draw off a few quarts of water from faucet at bottom of heater about once a month. This prevents sediment from accumulating, saves gas, insures clean water. Insulation for hot water pipes holds heat loss to a minimum - saves gas. Dripping hot water faucets waste money. Good washers in faucets save water and gas. Shower heads (sprays) need not be large. Small shower heads permit ample water flow and cut needless waste of hot water. Clean outside of heater occasionally with damp cloth - wipe dry.

STATE Guard

It is with pride that we report the splendid response of the State Guard last Thursday to the precept issued by the Selectmen.

This precept ordered the 16th Company, 23d Infantry, M. S. G. to report to the Town Hall by 7 p. m. Thursday and was held in readiness during the hurricane in case their services were needed. About 3:30 a. m. Friday morning orders were received permitting the men to return to their homes. The company sincerely thank the local unit of the American Red Cross who saw to it that army cots and blankets as well as coffee and doughnuts were furnished to the men. With the army cots set up in military fashion the Town Hall took on the appearance of an army barrack.

In addition to his graduate work in education at the two last-named institutions he was, for a year, a graduate student in History at Harvard University. He has been a teacher and principal in several grade schools and high schools. He is a former assistant superintendent of schools at South Bend, Indiana. Prior to his appointment to the faculty at the University of Wisconsin, he was, for several years, a research associate on the staff of the Lincoln School of Teachers College, Columbia University.

He has participated in surveys of the public schools of Denver, Grand Rapids, South Bend, and Watertown, New York schools and in many public and private secondary schools in Wisconsin under the sponsorship of the North Central Association of secondary schools and colleges.

Dr. Willing's varied educational experiences, plus a fine educational background, fits him, admirably, to study and determine the organization of our public school curriculum.

Miss Dorothy West

Miss Dorothy West is serving in the Winchester public school survey as secretary to the staff, and is assisting in the compilation of data. She is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, and has, since, received the Regents' appointment as assistant to the Director of the Summer Session at the University of Wisconsin. In addition to studying under Dr. Fowlkes for several years, she has assisted him on the Carroll College, Minnesota Iron Range, Fort Worth and Flint surveys.

A MESSAGE OF APPRECIATION

For the second time in six years Greater Boston has felt the effects of a tropical hurricane. Through a last-minute shift in its path, the center of this 1944 hurricane went out to sea a few miles southeast of Boston, and so the territory served by Boston Edison Company did not suffer the devastation which accompanied the hurricane of September 21, 1938. But in many cities and towns relying on the Company for electric service there were interruptions caused by high winds, falling trees, broken poles, and it was necessary to bring into being at once the same kind of emergency organization which met the challenge of the greater calamity of six years ago -- with the difference that this was a job of three days, instead of two weeks, as on that occasion.

Now that it is over and service is again normal, Boston Edison Company expresses its appreciation to —

THE PUBLIC — for its patience, consideration and courtesy during trying hours. Customers deprived of electric service realized, almost without exception, that this Company and its repair crews were doing everything humanly possible to restore service in the shortest possible time. Public officials of towns, cities, the state and the Federal government generously offered assistance in manpower and equipment; and while it was not necessary to take advantage of most of these offers, we appreciate the fine spirit which was in evidence.

THE WORKERS — for the courage, the ingenuity and the physical endurance which they contributed to the quick job of restoration. It was intensely inspiring, during the entire progress of the gale, to listen in on Boston Edison's own two-way short wave radio system to the conversations between the men outside restoring service and those directing and aiding their efforts, and to realize that men were out battling the elements without regard for their own comfort. Restoration was largely the work of our own forces, but our appreciation goes also to the crews of the outside contractors who came to our assistance, and to other agencies which offered their aid. Now that our own troubles are over, we have been glad to release these helpers, and as many of our own men as can be spared, to aid other utility companies in southern Massachusetts and along the Cape where the devastation was much greater.

THE PLANNERS — for the preparedness with which Boston Edison met this emergency. Since the 1938 hurricane, this Company has had a master plan ready which has been amplified and improved in the intervening years. This plan was already in operation many hours before the hurricane struck, and so there was a minimum of lost motion in getting the work of restoration started. From 8 o'clock Thursday morning until the "back to normal" report of Sunday night this emergency organization functioned with smoothness.

This hurricane has imposed unexpected financial burdens upon this Company, but this is not so important as the fact that only a small proportion of our more than 400,000 customers suffered an interruption of their electric service, and that in most of these cases the interruption was relatively brief.

RED CROSS NOTES

On Thursday ,the 14th, when warnings were being sent out regarding the approaching hurricane, local headquarters received a call from the State Guard asking that cots be provided for 35 of their men who would be stationed in the Town Hall for the night. Through the courtesy of the Park Department a truck was sent to the Army Base to transport cots and blankets which had been borrowed through the Red Cross in Boston. Hot coffee and doughnuts provided by the local chapter served to while away the hours of anxious waiting.

"Home front editions" of two camp newspapers issued by American prisoners of war in German camps are on exhibition at the Blood Donor Office, Edison store, 2 Mt. Vernon street, Winchester, where they may be viewed by all who are interested.

GIRL SCOUT TROOP TALES

Now that we are slowly putting summer behind us and settling into school days we begin also to think of scout meetings and wondering when they will be starting up. Real soon now. Some troops will begin this week. Others are getting organized.

At the last council meeting the recording secretary, Cora Corthell Phelps was presented a beautiful desk set in green leather. Mrs. Phelps is retiring after 12 years on the council and her loss shall be greatly felt by all the members.

We look forward to having our new executive secretary with us by Oct. 1. Miss Mansfield has a splendid love for camping so be prepared for a nice fall cook out at the cabin.

Mrs. Clarence Roberts, our new commissioner, is planning to attend the regional conference at Swampscott next week together with several other members of the council.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Sam Abernethy's little old store does a heap more business than most folks suspect. All because Sam has an almost child-like faith in humanity.

Take last Thursday when he had to leave his store half full of customers to help Bert Childers repair his tractor.

"Sorry to leave you, boys," he said, "but Bert's knee-deep in haying. You know what you want and where to find it. Help yourself and pay at your convenience."

Later Sam told me he'd been doing business that way for over forty years.

"If folks had more faith and tolerance in the other fellow," he said, "they'd come out better in the end".

Reminded me of Bill Webster who's favorite drink is buttermilk but who claims a man has a right to eat and drink whatever he chooses—in moderation.

And from where I sit, that's how things ought to be.

WINCHESTER COUNTRY CLUB

One of the most enjoyable [illegible] gatherings of recent years was the informal buffet supper served at the Country Club on Sunday evening, to the many contestants in the Maurice Brown Trophy tournament, and their friends. Some 150 or 160 couples circulated about the "Barngalow" enjoying the refreshments provided by the ladies. (The restaurant being closed for re-adjustments for the week) "Irv" Plitt performed nobly at the concert grand and the singing (?) was enjoyed (?) by all.

The first round matches in this tournament, most of which were played Sunday afternoon, or showed some fine golf and some upsets as always happens in a handicap tournament.

The medalists, Mrs. Belcher and George Farrar, put Mrs. Brown and Ralph Bonnell into the consolation in an interesting match. The Irving Plitts, who had each a fine round in qualifying were beaten by Mr. and Mrs. Roger McTighe in another good match. There were a couple of marvations, also. It took "Hoss" Ford, playing with Mrs. Dorothy Farnsworth an extra hole to turn the Charles Waghorn's back and Phil and Mary Hendrick had to go 20 to eliminate the Al Bonds.

The qualifying rounds for the President's Cup and the Fall Cup wound up last Saturday with Don Connors taking the honors with 75. Match play in these annual events will continue for the next several weeks.

Saturday's event was a four ball team match. Judge Joe Monahan, teaming with Phil Hendrick, Charlie Collins and Al Bond were the winning team with a reduced card of 69.

The twilight league matches concluded a week or so ago with the Blues on top again, 191 to 185. These matches have been productive of a great deal of fun and interest as is shown by the list of some 35 members who have played at one time or another during the summer. The popular team of Horace Ford and Ralph Bonnell won 12 points in a possible 18, but despite their efforts for the Reds, their results were in favor of the Blues. The team captains, Phil Plunkett (Blues) and Jay Wilcox (Reds) have done a fine job, arranging matches and seeing to it that everyone had a good time. The field day, held yesterday, too late for this issue has been looked forward to with keen anticipation for weeks and the tournament and entertainment program is sure to produce plenty of golf, prizes and a general good time.

Metcalf Union

The Metcalf Union of the Unitarian Church initiated its 1944-45 program on Sunday evening, Sept. 24, meeting at supper at 6:30. Mrs. Stephen Neilley and Suzanne, Bud Way and Francis Sleeper were in charge of supper arrangements.

Following supper, a worship service was conducted in the beautiful Meyer Chapel by Pete Osgood and Vivienne Chapman with Ellen Kenerson at the organ. The members then gathered around the open fire for their business meeting and discussion with newly appointed leader, Mr. Alfred Hendriksen, a popular leader of youth conferences and past national officer of American Unitarian Youth.

The group enthusiastically adopted the first project for the year, a series of speakers and motion pictures entitled "Americans All." The problems facing minority groups in the United States will be presented.

The series begins next Sunday Oct. 1 with the Negro minority voice being heard. Mr. Clement W. Barksdale, a native of Winchester, a veteran of World War 2 and former student at Atlanta University will address the Metcalf Union on Problems Facing the Negro Today."

At the business meeting last week Pete Osgood was elected as representative to the Greater Boston Federation of Unitarian Youth. The Metcalf Union has the honor of having one of its members, Miss Vivienne Chapman, as president of the Greater Boston Council this year.

DINNER IN HONOR OF MISS HELEN M. MUNROE

On Thursday evening, Sept. 28, at the Winchester Country Club an informal dinner was given to Miss Helen M. Munroe, assistant treasurer of the Winchester Trust Co., who is retiring on Sept. 30. The dinner was attended by the officers and directors of the bank together with her office associates.

Mr. Parsons and Mr. Lewis made appropriate remarks followed by Mr. Parsons presenting on behalf of the bank a check to Miss Monroe. Miss Donaghey also presented a gift on behalf of Miss Monroe's business associates at the bank.

Miss Monroe entered the employ of the Middlesex County National Bank on May 12, 1913 as secretary to Mr. Charles E. Barrett, its cashier, in anticipation of the need for such a clerk when the Winchester Trust Company opened for business on July 1, 1913, successor to the Middlesex County National Bank.

On Dec. 4, 1915 the board of directors appointed her actuary and on March 3, 1920 she was appointed assistant treasurer. The period covered by her employ is more than thirty-one years, having associated with Charles E. Barrett, the first treasurer and organizer of the first commercial bank in Winchester, from 1913 to 1931 and with G. Dwight Cabot from 1931 to 1941, and for the last two years with its present treasurer, Donald J. Lewis.

When Miss Monroe entered the employ of the bank, its deposits were $286,725.53, serviced by five people; and now 31 years later the deposits are well over $3,000,000.00 with an operating force of 10.

Miss Monroe plans to spend her summers in Madison, N. H., where she has recently purchased summer property; however, her many friends will be glad to know she still plans to spend her winters here in Winchester.

LT. O'KEEFE SAFE

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. O'Keefe of 16 Fletcher street received on Tuesday a cable from their son, Lt. Thomas F. O'Keefe, USAAF, who was reported by the War Department as missing in action Jan. 31, 1944. Mr. and Mrs. O'Keefe had refused to give up hope for their son and their faith was rewarded for the young flier reported himself as well and fit, the wire reading: "Writing, all well and safe. All well and fit. Hope to see you soon.—Tom."

The brief message gave no hint as to whether he had been a prisoner of war or whether perhaps, he had been hidden in the mountains of Italy, near which his plane was disabled.

Lt. O'Keefe was co-pilot of the famous Liberator, "Brady's Gang," his plane having been last seen following a bombing mission over Avrano, Italy, near the Italian Alps where it lagged out of formation and then swerved sharply left toward land. Later some of the crew were seen parachuting earthward. A subsequent report from the Government said the ship had been hit by enemy fire over the Adriatic. Two of the crew were killed and five were taken prisoners of war. No word of the others, including Lt. O'Keefe, was forthcoming at that time. Two staff sergeants were reported missing with him and the "all well and safe" in the cable sent his parents may refer to these members of his crew.

Lt. O'Keefe attended Winchester High School and graduated from Medford High where he played hockey, later playing for the Junior Olympics in Boston. He was in the optical business in Boston before enlisting.

When enlisted Aug. 20, 1942, and trained at Santa Anna, Cal., going from there to Pecos, Tex and finishing up at the twin-engine school at Stockton, Cal. where the hero Colin Kelly trained. He was commissioned at Stockton in June of 1943, receiving his pilot's wings and before going overseas was for several months one of a model plane crew touring the various air fields in this country. He went overseas Dec. 2, 1943, by way of Brazil and Dakar, North Africa, landing in Italy.

Lt. O'Keefe's brother, Pfc Eugene, Jr., is at present home on furlough after seeing action and winning the Purple Heart Medal in the Guadalcanal campaign. He is now assigned to the 70th Division and is a member of signal company at Camp McCoy, Wis.

RAILROAD CROSSING HAS NEW SAFETY GUARD

An interesting new safety guard has been installed by the Boston and Maine Railroad in its gate house in the center. The installation of this device probably makes our center crossing the best protected in the State.

A panel marked with the railroad tracks from below Wedgemere to the Highlands, and covering a similar distance on the Woburn loop, has been placed just over the operating levers for the gates. The tracks are marked in yellow and red and contain train location lights in the same colors. As a train approaches the crossing it first shows the yellow light and rings a bell. As it reaches the next section it lights the red bulls eye and rings another bell. By this system the gate operator can tell at a glance just where the train is and how fast it is traveling. He is supposed to lower the gates on the red light and bell.

The device is especially valuable in foggy weather and also gives accurate information in such cases as the approach of a north and south bound train simultaneously. The present warning given by ringing of outside bells just as soon as the gates start to lower is also continued.

MISS WILSON SHOWERED

Miss Grace Crooghwell gave a shower Monday evening at her home on Ravine road for Miss Bonney Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Price Wilson of Rangely road, whose marriage to Pvt. Richard A. Hakanson, USAAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave O. Hakanson of Lincoln street is to take place in the near future.

Miss Wilson was invited to substitute for a member of Miss Crooghwell's bridge club. While she was waiting to commence play she was called to the front door to find two girls laden with a laundry bag holding a large number of attractive gifts of a miscellaneous nature.

Besides the gifts Miss Wilson was presented with a beautiful corsage of sweetheart roses by Mrs. William J. Crooghwell, mother of the hostess. After the opening of the packages refreshments were served, the feature of the serving table being a handsomely decorated pink and white shower cake.

COSS—GANGE

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Rose Gange, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gange of Richardson street, to Cpl. Daniel Edward Coss, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Coss of Salem street, took place on Saturday morning, Sept. 23, at 10 o'clock in St. Mary's Church. The pastor, Rev. Fr. John P. O'Riordan, performed the ceremony and was also celebrant of the nuptial mass which followed. Mrs. D. Irving Reardon, church organist, played the bridal music.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Gange had for her honor attendant, Miss Barbara Coss, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Sylvia D'Ambrosio of this town, Miss Gertrude Bailey of Everett, Miss Rose Flowers of Woburn and Miss Frances Jablon-ski of Manchester were bridesmaids, and Miss Phyllis Gange and Miss Marjorie Carroll, both of Winchester, were junior bridesmaids.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin, styled with a sweetheart neckline and long sweeping train. Her full length matching veil of tulle was caught to a Dutch cap of Tuscan lace, and she carried a white prayer book with a single orchid and streamers of stephanotis.

The honor maid wore a dress of periwinkle blue taffeta with matching Dutch cap and carried an old fashioned bouquet. The bridesmaids also carried old fashioned bouquets and wore American Beauty taffeta dresses with matching Dutch caps.

The junior bridesmaids wore periwinkle blue taffeta frocks with long streamers of American Beauty falling from the neckline and matching Dutch caps. They too carried old fashioned bouquets.

A reception was held at Oak Manor in Melrose from 3 until 8 o'clock, the parents of the bride and bridegroom assisting in receiving. After the reception Cpl. Coss and his bride left to spend their honeymoon at Christmas Tree Inn in Maine.

Cpl. Coss, who is a graduate of Winchester High School, is in the anti-tank corps of the U. S. Infantry, stationed at Camp Shelby, Miss. Before entering the service he was associated with the A. and M. Transportation Co. as an accountant. His bride plans to make her home for the present with her parents in Winchester.

MISS FANCIE ENGAGED

Mrs. Bert S. Glougie of Pontiac, Mich., formerly of this town, announces the engagement of her daughter Miss Virginia A. Fancie to Capt. Daniel P. Harris, son of Mrs. I. C. Harris and the late Mr. Harris of Valdosta, Ga. Capt. Harris is an Air Corps Administrative officer stationed at present in Alaska. A winter wedding is planned.

OBSERVED GOLDEN WEDDING DAY

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen C. Burgoyne of Norwood street held open house at their home Sunday afternoon and evening to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. The celebration was held on Sunday instead of on the actual date of the wedding, Sept. 25, for the convenience of guests coming from a distance, the actual date marking also the anniversary of the marriage of their late son, Harold Burgoyne, of Providence, who died two years ago.

It is of special interest that Mr. and Mrs. Burgoyne are of the third generation of the Burgoyne family to observe their golden wedding anniversary, Mrs. Burgoyne's father and mother and grandfather and grandmother having been so before him.

The Burgoyne home was attractively decorated with cut flowers on Sunday, and more than 150 guests attended the open house during the afternoon and evening. In addition to many flowers, Mr. and Mrs. Burgoyne received many attractive gifts and a large number of anniversary cards and other expressions of congratulation.

Refreshments were served, coffee being poured by Mrs. Harry Mattson of Weymouth, Mrs. G. Irving McMillan, Mrs. Anna M. Dunning, Mrs. Alice Davis, Mrs. William Seaton and Mr. Frank Herrick, all of Winchester.

During the evening a musical program was presented, with vocal duets by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Young of Braintree, Mrs. Young and Mrs. Harold Burgoyne of Providence, and Mrs. Harold Burgoyne and her son, Dean. Mr. Joan Slawson of Medford also sang and offered a musical impersonation, being accompanied by Mrs. J. J. Streeford of Braintree, who also played for the other vocalists with the exception of the Burgoynes, Mrs. Burgoyne playing for herself and her husband. Piano solos were played by Mrs. Arthur Fish of Rockland.

Mr. and Mrs. Burgoyne were married Sept. 25, 1891 in Weymouth, and lived all of their married life there until coming to Winchester 18 years ago. Mr. Burgoyne was until his retirement in the paper and twine business in Boston as part owner of the firm of Hallett Brothers. Both he and Mrs. Burgoyne have many friends in Winchester, Mrs. Burgoyne being actively associated with the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church, with the Red Cross and Woman's Fortnightly Club.

Mr. Burgoyne, organist for many years in the East Weymouth Methodist Church and also formerly playing at the Old Ship's Church in Hingham, has played substitute engagements at the First Baptist Church, the Second Congregational Church and the First Church of Christ Scientist, in Winchester.

He and Mrs. Burgoyne have two sons living, Dr. Roger M. Burgoyne, Winchester physician; and S. Earl Burgoyne, also of this town.

HELM—GINN

There is Winchester interest in the marriage of Miss Barbara Ginn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ginn of Mt. Vernon street, because of the fact that her father is a former resident of this town and son of the late Edwin Ginn, former head of the publishing house of Ginn and Co., whose home, Terrace of Oaks, is on Bacon street.

Miss Ginn was married Wednesday at St. John's Memorial Chapel, Cambridge, to Ens. George Washington Helm, USNR of New York who was commissioned Monday and will be stationed at Montauk Point. He and his bride will make their home in Easthampton, L. I.

LT. BLANCHARD REPORTED SAFE

Mr. Sidney C. Blanchard of 25 Everett avenue, member of the Blanchard Lumber Co., of this town, received this morning two post cards from persons in Taunton and West Roxbury, both of whom reported they had heard over the German short wave radio that his son, Lt. John Blanchard, USAAF, reported as missing over Germany since July 18, is alive and a prisoner of war. Shortly afterward the Western Union notified Mr. Blanchard of a telegram they had received from the Red Cross confirming the welcome news of the post cards.

Lt. Blanchard apparently dictated or wrote the letter which the Red Cross has as a basis for its telegram. The young officer was wounded in the right arm when his plane was shot down in the big raid over Memmingen, Germany, but reports that his wound is progressing satisfactorily and that he is all right, with no complaint over the treatment he is receiving. He was serving as a bombardier on a fortress.

NEW VOTERS LISTED

On Monday and Tuesday of this week 117 new names were added to the town's voting list, making a total of 152 new voters since the last registration period.

This figure does not include service absentee voters, most of whom have been registered on a more or less temporary basis. Town Clerk Mabel W. Stinson has sent out 725 service absentee ballots, and already has 281 of them back.

According to some authorities there is no uniformity of dates when service ballots must be returned, some states giving a month's leeway after the election. This means of course if the election is at all close it will be about a month before it can finally be decided. There also seem to be more than a remote possibility of service people being able to vote twice, which of course may or may not help!

MASS FOR SGT. DALY

A solemn high pro-bunal mass of requiem will be celebrated Saturday morning, Sept. 30, at 9:30 o'clock at the Immaculate Conception Church for Sgt. Daniel J. Daly, Jr., former Winchester High School athlete, who was killed Aug. 8 while serving with the 396th United States Infantry of the 77th Division during the invasion of Guam.

Sgt. Daly was the only child of Daniel J. and Alice (Mahan) Daly of 24 River street. He was born in Winchester Nov. 8, 1913, was educated in the Winchester schools and at Winchester High School where he was a guard on the football team and a pitcher on the baseball team.

Sgt. Daly entered the armed forces in March, 1942 and went overseas last February. Prior to participating in the Guam invasion he was stationed in the Hawaiian Islands. His parents last heard from him by letter dated Aug. 4.

FELL FROM MOVING TRAIN

Mr. Paul Sears of 32 Forest street was painfully injured shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when he fell as he attempted to get off a north-bound train leaving Winchester Station.

Mr. Sears was taken home in Patrol 52 by Officer John J. Murray. He told the Police he had not noticed the train was at Winchester until after it had started to leave the station.

LEXINGTON HERE TOMORROW

Winchester High plays its second football game of the season tomorrow afternoon, meeting Lexington High on Manchester Field at 2:30.

The locals haven't had too much trouble with Lexington in recent years, winning last year 26-6. This is another season however and the visitors are reputed to have their best team in some time. Asst. Coach Andy Webster who scouted them last Saturday reporting that they looked good in their scoreless tie with Wellesley.

A lot of the boys who played last year are back at Lexington and the Blue and Gold always plays a rugged, aggressive game.

Coach Knowlton expects to start the same team tomorrow that went against Swampscott with Buzzotta at center, Lovejoy and Bucci, guards; Latham and Stevenson, tackles; Faiella and Armstrong ends; and Capt. Walsh, Roche, Haggerty and Tibaudo, backs.

FIELD HOCKEY NOTES

Seventy-four girls reported to Coach Deborah Matthews in response to the first call for candidates for the Winchester High School field hockey team. Of this group 52 remain on the present squad, it being Coach Matthews policy to retain as many girls as possible through the season, not only that they may have the fun and benefit of playing hockey, but also to provide experienced material for coming seasons.

This year Coach Matthews faces a major rebuilding job, not only for her first but for her second team, most of the members of both groups having graduated last June.

She finds however an excellent spirit prevailing in this year's squad, and a promising group of sophomore candidates from whom much is expected.

All positions on both teams are at present open and the girls are waging keen competition for places on both the varsity and second teams. Lucy Russo is captain of the current varsity and played last season at left fullback. The only letter player back is Natalie Dickson.

Winchester opens its current season on Tuesday, Oct. 3 at 3 o'clock, playing the Malden High girls on Gina Field. On Oct. 11 the locals face a real test when they engage the Arlington High eleven at Arlington.

SYMMES CORNER BOYS HAVE REUNION IN ITALY

It was Sgt. Richard Pierce who managed that first meeting of three Symmes Corner neighbors. Even though hunting up a fellow U. S. man in service he like the proverbial hunting for a needle in a haystack, he undertook it and succeeded in finding Cpl. James T. Nardin, who had graduated from Winchester High in the same class with him, in 1937.

But when they were painting scenery for their senior class play, they hadn't made any plans for reunion in Vienna or Rome or any other dramatic city overseas.

Yet this summer day in 1944 there the two were, a long, long way from Winchester. By telephone they found the third Symmes Corner boy, Lt. James R. Towner of the Air Force, (Dickie in his earlier civilian days). He was officer of the day and couldn't go journeying from his post, but a jeep quickly took the others over to his place. There they pieced together all their news from home, engagements, marriages, new babies whose fathers hadn't yet seen them. Put together there in one busy hour of talk, the news made it seem that life was spinning along with dizzy haste back there at home.

No wonder that one of the soldiers threw was moved to remark, "I'm afraid the only wedding of any of the old gang I'll be able to attend will be my own."

They didn't try to predict when they would see home again or to guess whether they would come home the short way back or the long way round, with some still farther and stranger lands to sail to, march in, or fly over. In this world of theirs anything can happen, they know. The chances of service soon whirled them apart again and into separate countries. But they had their reunion and told the news.

They heard opera sung in the language of the country and remembered how the same opera sounded from standing room or a rush seat back in the Boston Opera House. They dined where they had a wonderful view, but they'd cheerfully have traded it for Boston food without a view, one wrote.

Not far from the place where they were dining was the tomb of a poet chap whose verse of 2000 years ago they puzzled out back in high school days. He had a leader say to a band of his soldiers who were on a strange shore, "Perhaps in days to come it will be a pleasure to recall these things." Maybe Symmes Corner men now in uniform will one of these days be talking with pleasure of their time overseas and especially of a time when capricious Lady Luck brought three of them to a meeting.

Dr. Netarwala has studied at Benares, in Bombay University in India, has a Doctor of Geology degree from University of Colorado and has just received his Master's degree from M. I. T., where he is doing special work.

SONS OF ITALY NOTES

Here we are again boys with a lot of gab and very little news. If it were not for the fact that I have made a resolution not to mention it I could say plenty about the lack of mail. I could probably go on and on telling about how disappointed I am at receiving no mail, but I am a man of my word and when I say I'll ignore the situation you can readily see I ignore it.

I found a note here saying that Frank Corbi is home on furlough so I thought I'd call him up and find out what's new. He gave out with a little news so I'll spill it. Frankie is now one of those very popular individuals namely an M. P. He says popular or not its a good deal and he's keeping it. Best racket since he got in says Frankie. Oh yes, I almost forgot he is stationed at Fort Benning, Ga.

Next he told me about Mike Saraceno being home. Mike was with some of the boys in the Solomons, then he joined up with Merrills, Marauders. He has seen action in the China-India, Burma theater of war. If time permits I hope to be able to see Mike and relate in this column some of his experiences.

I next learned that Jimmy Gangi and Orlando Subrizio are both home on furlough. It's a good thing only a few boys get home each week as I hate to think of what would happen if many of these old friends met at once.

Also home on furlough is Angelo Valenti of Conn street, Woburn who belonged to our lodge. Charles Tofuri is around renewing old acquaintances.

Rugged Muraco arrived on a long delayed furlough. As soon as Rugged got home he made a bee line for the nursery. His wife Florence stopped him and said "Look dear don't you think we ought to wait until the boy is a little stronger before we tell him who his father is." Rugged stopped for a moment and then said, "Hell no let him learn to take the bumps early. How do you think I got my nickname." As he entered the room he looked at Georgie and Georgie started at him and said. "Okay! so we're both dissappointed. What did you expect anyhow? A giant." All kidding aside fellows Rugged is tickled silly about it. You wouldn't think a fellow could find so many things to say in such a short time being home. He wants to be remembered to all you fellows.

Your correspondent attended the Grand Council meeting at the Grand Lodge hall. The Grand Lodge is going to sponsor the opera Nov. 5. The last opera sponsored by the Grand Lodge was not a financial success but was a hum-dinger socially. We can only hope this latest venture turns out as well.

In connection with my work on the Junior Servicemen's dance committee I accompanied Chairman Gen. Leonardo of Cambridge to Franklin where we attended a Junior Lodge meeting. While talking to the girls our song was mentioned. The girls insisted on hearing it and were very enthused over it. As a whole the junior lodges have received the song very enthusiastically.

In connection with this I have arranged to organize several glee clubs to sing the song.

While at the Grand Council meeting I inquired regarding steps taken by the committee to investigate the song. A promise, was extracted, of a quick cleaning up of this situation.

WINCHESTER SCRIMMAGED ARLINGTON

Coach Henry Knowlton took his Winchester High School football team to Arlington Tuesday afternoon to scrimmage Arlington, coached this year by that former Boston College great, "Hammering" Henry Toczlowski.

Coach Knowlton was greatly pleased with the improvement shown by his boys against Arlington over their Swampscott game exhibition and especially happy over the way his charges adjusted themselves to the unusual 5-4-2 defense used by Arlington.

Coach Toczlowski was ill with a cold so the veteran Arlington mentor, Fred Ostergren handled the team, and genial Fred expressed himself as much impressed with the possibilities of the Winchester eleven, which he rated better than Newton.

The locals certainly had the better of the scrimmaging at Arlington by a comfortable margin, but popular "Hennie" modestly pointed out that the Spy Ponders are not as potent as usual this fall.

RECEIVED M. D.'S FROM TUFTS

Two well known Winchester boys, G. Raymond Bancroft, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Raymond Bancroft of Highland avenue, and Ward Albro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram A. Albro of Francis circuit, were graduated Sunday with the degree of M. D. from the Tufts Medical School at exercises held in the Cousens Gymnasium in Medford.

Both Dr. Bancroft and Dr. Albro graduated from Winchester High School and did their pre-medical work at Tufts. The former is to intern at the Burbank Memorial Hospital in Fitchburg. Dr. Albro, at his graduation, was commissioned a 1st lieutenant in the Army Medical Corps. He is to intern at the Mass. Memorial Hospital in Boston.

WINCHESTER COUNTRY CLUB

Activity at the club is at the usual high level. The course is crowded with members and guests spending these brisk days in the great outdoors.

The field day of the club's own Twilight League was held on Thursday, Sept. 21, winding up the weeks of competition between the Reds and the Blues. Firemen's and policemen's units were worn to identify the members of the respective teams. The identity of the individual members, however, was completely obscured in most cases by facial make-ups. Some 70 members played more or less serious golf both in early and afternoon, enjoying a delectable luncheon in the interim. Prizes, valuable or humorous, were awarded for merit or demerit after the evening reunion at the club during the winter.

On Saturday occurred the first of several work projects. Under the leadership of "Shorty" Carr, the president, and Doc Conners, chairman of the greens committee, 26 workers, consisting mainly of members and their sons spent the day making a general clean-up of the golf course. This included removing the hurricane debris (which incidentally was of small consequence), cleaning up broken branches and clearing the fairways and the rough and trimming low hanging branches. This last item will give the golfers a better break in wandering shots and will facilitate the use of tractor-drawn mowers in cutting the rough.

Future work projects include the removal and storing of equipment, dressing and other treatment of about 300 yards of loam for top dressing, draining the water pipes, painting the lines in the parking space, etc. The members have thus provided their own answer to the manpower shortage and, except for the soreness of some hitherto unknown muscles, are finding no small enjoyment in trying the other fellow's work.

The foregoing is in preparation for a major forthcoming job, covering the best 11 fairways with a mixture of 60 tons of lead and sand for the prevention of damage from beetles.

On Sunday afternoon many matches were played in the Maurice F. Brown Memorial Tournament. Mixed foursomes played second rounds in the first and second flights and first rounds in the consolation flights, after which a buffet supper was provided by the ladies.

On Wednesday afternoon, Harold McSpaden, formerly Winchester's golf professional and Byron Nelson, played an exhibition match. These two men have been the national top notchers this year and contributed their services and expenses gratis, the event being for the benefit of the United War Fund.

So many tournaments are in process, in addition to the Maurice Brown tournament there are the men's fourball, President's Cup and Fall Cup and the Women's Fall Cup, that members taking advantage of all opportunities are finding themselves swamped with golfing engagements. As losers are eliminated, however, they will find consolation (?) in an invitation to "share the work."

Charity Notes

Winchester's genial manager, Harold Hovey, is our authority for the statement that Wednesday's crowd was the largest the Country Club has had since the Ryder Cup match some years ago. Actually there were 1540 paid admissions and enough service men were admitted "for no" to bring the gallery total to at least 2000 . . Didn't look much like gas rationing, all the streets around the club being jammed with cars and every parking space taxed to capacity. Cars were parked along Cambridge and Mystic streets from "You-Say" in Arlington nearly to the Winchester Boat Club . . Bill Blaney, president of the Mass Golf Association, handed his organization's arrangements for the match, and the local arrangements were in charge of President "Shorty" Carr of the Country Club and Ed Hubbard. The smoothness with which everything went off is proof of their efficiency and that of Mgr. Harold Hovey who handled the money and was literally everywhere at once . . Ed Dudley, president of the Pro Golfers' Association, to which both Nelson and McSpaden belong, refereed the match, and the Country Club's Ralph Bonnell was marshal of a group of 25 members who handled the big gallery. Jug McSpaden complimented Ralph after the match on the way the crowd was handled . . In the evening dinner was served to about 150 club members and guests, at which Nelson and McSpaden, with Mrs. McSpaden were guests of honor. It was a nice party and after dinner President Carr presented Nelson with a handsome medal, suitably inscribed, and bearing the club seal, in recognition of his victory and service to the club . . McSpaden got no medal, but "Jug" is virtually an honorary member of the club and already has a handsome medal given him when he severed his connection with the club which he served as professional for several years. Jug knows how Winchester feels about him . It was a sort of old home week for McSpaden and his wife, their many old friends crowding around them after dinner and whenever either appeared during the day . . E. H. McDonald, at 82, was probably the oldest club member to attend the day's festivities, but surely the honor of being the oldest active C. C. golfer around Wednesday went to Nelson Seelye, who still plays every week-end with 36 holes on holidays for good measure. Nelson will be 80 this winter . . Mgr. Hovey was unable to say yesterday to what extent the War Fund will benefit from the match, but did feel that a tidy sum would be split two ways between Winchester and Arlington after all expenses had been met.

A WORD FROM "STEAMER"

Apparently that statement attributed to Capt. William D. Barone, Winchester physician serving with the Army Medical Corps in France, to the effect that Sgt. Patsy Guarino, son of Mrs. Carmella Guarino of Irving street, was the first Winchester boy to land in France on D-Day, isn't going to pass unchallenged.

Capt. Barone's statement was printed in the Star and eventually reached Major John D. "Steamer" Hanlon, United States Paratrooper, and former Winchester High and University of New Hampshire football star, now on active duty in the European theater of war.

"Steamer" clipped the Star article and sent it in with a characteristic note which we reprint herewith:

Aug. 30

"Hey! What is this! I'll have Capt. Barone know that I banged my heels into French soil shortly after midnight on D-Day. In fact I had been in France at least seven hours before the first man got off a boat. How do I know? Mine was the fourth plane in.

Gerry Ficociello came in shortly after that, I'm sure. He might have a word to say too."

No name was signed, but the note was in Major Hanlon's well known f[illegible] and bears the stamp of his sense of humor. As far as the Star is concerned we make no claims to knowing all the answers. If we did, of course, we would have to become a columnist or commentator, and we don't believe we would like especially to be either. It does appear however that quite a few Winchester boys were around right early for the D-Day doin's, and we are all mighty proud of that!

WINCHESTER 13—SWAMPSCOTT 0

Locals Show Promise in Season Opener

Coach Henry Knowlton pulled the wraps from his 1944 football team last Saturday afternoon and the locals in beating Swampscott 13-0, on Manchester Field showed plenty of promise. The boys are big, have speed and spirit, with a rugged line and several mighty good looking backs. Naturally play was ragged, [illegible] much to be learned in the way of blocking and carrying all the [illegible] through of assignment. [illegible] down the field blocking could [illegible] Jimmy Haggerty all the [illegible] a reverse on one occasion [illegible] Capt. Sarto Walsh might have [illegible] the [illegible] he was pulled [illegible] Swampscott 20 [illegible] never have [illegible]

Swampscott was [illegible] year and [illegible] Sculpins however [illegible] snappy exhibition of football [illegible] gave Winchester a good game [illegible] tricky offense of the type [illegible] Weymouth [illegible] very clever masking of the ball and some effective mousetrapping in the middle of the line.

Winchester's willing, but inexperienced middle line players were being badly fooled by the Swampscott forwards during the first half, but after Coach Knowlton had pointed out their mistakes during the time out the boys improved to the extent of holding the Sculpins to 19 yards during the last two periods.

The locals made 11 first downs and 179 yards by rushing, adding 39 yards on the two of five passes completed. Winchester lost 55 yards to the officials, including two 15 yarders, and fumbled three times. Swampscott picked up 78 yards on the ground and four first downs, one of which was on a penalty. The visitors completed none of their four passes, Winchester intercepting two, they fumbled but once and failed to draw a penalty for all their tricky offense. Fullback Walker was the big noise offensively for the Sulpins, but the dark blue had no back to compare with those shown in previous years.

For Winchester Sam Tibaudo was the backbone of the attack, but Jimmy Haggerty, running from the wingback slot, looked very good ripping off several long gains and really driving. In the second backfield Sam Bellino, an explosive little scatback, Johnny West and Teddy O'Rourke were standouts and good enough to keep the first team backs everlasting on the prod for their jobs. Up forward "Spider" Latham looked good in his first game at tackle and Guy Washburn, big Johnny Stevenson's tackle replacement, did some good blocking. All in all however, Winchester played enough as a unit so there were no especial standouts.

Winchester scored right off the bat. Stevenson kicked off and Roche dumped Bailey on the Swampscott 27 for the first tackle of the year. Torrey got around left end for 5, but after a spinner picked up three the visitors fumbled and Latham recovered on the Swampscott 30.

Tibaudo picked up 8 yards in two bucks and Roche slid off tackle for a first down at the 20. Here Swampscott braced and stopped three tries at the line, there being seven yards needed on fourth down.

Roche faded on the play and whipped a pretty pass to left end Faieta, who grabbed the ball on the five and flipped a little lateral out to Capt. Walsh, who easily went over standing up. Walsh's try for the extra point from placement was wide.

That ended the scoring until the final quarter. Swampscott never really threatened and Winchester, while it gained a lot of ground didn't again get nearer than the visitors' 20, reached on that Roche to Walsh pass mentioned above.

The locals second score resulted from an 82 yard march starting from the Winchester 18, where Roche was downed after taking a Walker punt just before the final quarter. With Roche, Tibaudo and Haggerty alternating nicely the locals drove to the Swampscott 33, where Haggerty on a reverse got away to the visitors' 15 before he was knocked outside. Roche picked up seven off tackle and Tibaudo hit the line for a first down at the five. On the next play Sammy slashed through a big hole off his own right tackle to score. Walsh tossed in a perfect conversion at placement for the extra point.

Coach Knowlton at this point sent in an entire second team and the seconds really showed a lot of fire with O'Rourke, Bellino and West doing some effective ball carrying which only penalties prevented from getting the ball into actual scoring position. The summary:

Winchester: Faieta, Errico Gallello, le; Latham, Morrison, lt; Bucci, Rutherford, lg; S. Buzzotta, Bergquist, c; Lovejoy, Herlihy, rg; Stevenson, Washburn, Hannon, rt; Armstrong, Jacobellis, Riga, re; Walsh M. Buzzotta, qb; Roche, Bellino, lhb; Haggerty, O'Rourke, McGlynn, rhb; Tibaudo, West, fb.

WILBUR WALTER MacEWEN

Wilbur Walter MacEwen, a native of Winchester and former well known resident of this town, died early Tuesday morning at his home in the Cragg Manor Apartments at 148 High street in Medford, after a ten months' illness which included a major operation.

Mr. MacEwen was the son of Mrs. Adelaide McEwen Laird and the late J. Henry McEwen, former Winchester contractor and builder. He was born in Winchester Nov. 25, 1894, and was educated in the Winchester schools, graduating from Winchester High School in the class of 1913. He attended Staunton Military Academy in Virginia and later took numerous courses in banking and business administration.

While in high school Mr. MacEwen took an active interest in sports and aside from his high school participation in athletics, was for several years catcher on the old Winchester Highlands Athletic Club baseball team.

Mr. MacEwen was always identified with the banking and investment business. He was associated with several banks in Winchester, Boston and Concord, among them being the old Middlesex County National Bank of this town and the Beacon Trust Company. He was for several years a bank examiner for the State of Massachusetts.

Latterly he had been associated with investment houses in Boston, among them being Bodell and Company, and Studley, Shupert and Company. At the time of his death he was associated with the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company. During World War I he enlisted in the Navy, serving during the entire war on convoy duty.

On April 29, 1922, Mr. MacEwen married Sarah LeBaron of Boston and they lived in Winchester until about 10 years ago when they moved to Medford. He was a member of the First Baptist Church of this town.

An enthusiastic yachtsman, his hobby was the designing of boats and he showed marked talent in this exacting field.

Mr. MacEwen is survived by his wife, and his mother, living in Winchester; by a sister, Miss Ethel McEwen of this town; and by two brothers, Frank G. MacEwen of Somerville and I. Irving McEwen of Quincy, Ill.

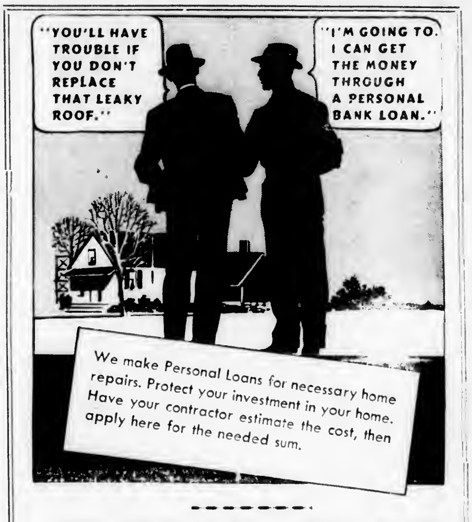

Funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon at the Kelley and Hawes Chapel with Rev. Henry E. Hodge, retired Baptist minister of Melrose, formerly of the First Baptist Church in Winchester, officiating, assisted by Rev. Alexander Henderson, pastor of the Medford First Baptist Church. Interment was in the family lot in Wildwood Cemetery.

*Home Owner Tells How He Installed Reyn-o-cell Insulation in One Day

(Read this unsolicited testimonial about America's finest insulation for the home)

"One night recently, the thermometer sank to 25 below zero. I planned to put Reyn-o-cell Cotton Insulation in my attic, so I was particularly conscious of the cold and of the continuous operation of my oil burner that night.

"I had 1200 square feet of attic, two-thirds covered by a board floor. However, without a helper, I practically completed the installation the next day. That night I noticed my oil burner was on only intermittently and yet it maintained the usual temperature of 65 to 68 degrees.

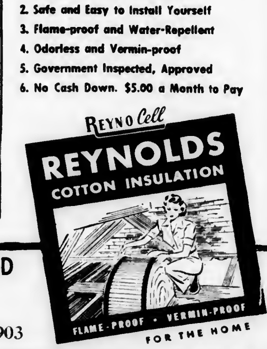

"There's no doubt about it. Reyn-o-cell stopped at least a third of my heat loss."

CHURCH SERVICES

SUNDAY, OCT. 1, 1944

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, WINCHESTER

Sunday services 11 a. m.

Wednesday testimonial meeting 8 p. m.

Reading Room, Winchester Terrace (off Thompson street). Open daily except Sundays and holidays from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m.

The choice which heads each service is applied to the citations which are read from the Bible. It reads: "Choose you this day whom ye will serve." The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Bible: "Behold, I set before you the blessing and a curse; a blessing, if ye shall hearken unto the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you this day: And a curse, if ye will not hearken unto the commandments of the Lord your God, but turn aside out of the way which I command you this day, to go after other gods, which ye have not known." Also from the Bible: "Bless the Lord, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless his holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; Who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies; Who satisfieth thy mouth with good things; so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's. The Lord executeth righteousness and judgment for all that are oppressed. He made known his ways unto Moses, his acts unto the children of Israel. The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy. He will not always chide: neither will he keep his anger forever. As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us. Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him. For he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust. As for man, his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more. But the mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children; To such as keep his covenant, and to those that remember his commandments to do them. The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all. Bless the Lord, ye his angels, that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word. Bless ye the Lord, all ye his hosts; ye ministers of his, that do his pleasure. Bless the Lord, all his works in all places of his dominion: bless the Lord, O my soul."

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included in the Lesson-Sermon: Reform comes by understanding that there is no pleasure in evil, and also by gaining an affection for good according to Science, which reveals the immortal fact that nothing can cause pain, appetite nor passion, can exist in or of matter, while divine Mind can and does destroy the false belief of pleasure, pain, or fear and all the sinful appetites of the human mind. . . . Truth will at length compel us all to exchange pleasures and pains of sense for the joys of Soul (pp. 327, 390).

G. I. BILL OF RIGHTS

Vets Can Make Application in Woburn

The Woburn office of the United States Employment Service at 25 Montvale avenue are ready to accept applications for veterans for readjustment allowances under the G. I. Bill of Rights," Stephen J. Flynn, manager announced this week.

The U. S. Employment Service accepts claims for unemployment compensation under the Massachusetts Employment Security Law, and it is through this Massachusetts Division that the G. I. readjustment allowances will be paid.

A veteran who is unemployed and is capable of and available for work should call at the 25 Montvale avenue office to file his application, and bring with him his discharge or certificate of release from service and his social security account number card if he has one.

Mr. Flynn stated that under the G. I. Bill of Rights a veteran may receive $20 a week if is totally unemployed for up to 52 weeks dependent upon his length of service. There are also provisions in the Bill for the payment of allowances to veterans who are partially unemployed. The minimum requirement of active service under the G. I. Bill, to be eligible for readjustment allowances, is 90 days unless the veteran was discharged by reason of an injury or disability incurred in service in line of duty.

Mr. Flynn urges all veterans who are unemployed at this time to call at his office whether or not they feel they are eligible under this G. I. Bill. He pointed out that there are provisions under the Massachusetts Employment Security Law under which a veteran may be eligible for benefits if he is not eligible under the G. I. Bill.

The office of the U. S. Employment Service is open daily Monday through Saturday from 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

A three man exhibition of animal paintings will open at the Winchester Art Association's Gallery on Tuesday, Oct. 3 following the first meeting of the season at 7.45. The exhibitors will be Elisabeth Anne Philbrick, Wesley Dennis and Philip Lincoln Martin. Mr. Martin will speak.

Elisabeth Philbrick lived in this town for 18 years, attending our local schools through the Junior High grades. She studied as a special student at the Mass. School of Art, of which school her father is now president, and later studied sculpture under the tutelage of Cyrus Dallin and Raymond Porter. Miss Philbrick has exhibited in several galleries, one of which was the Pennsylvania Academy of Arts. Permanent exhibits of hers include a bronze statue at Brook Green Gardens, estate of Anna Hyatt Huntington, in North Carolina, and a bronze fountain at the Peabody Playhouse, Boston.

Otis Philbrick, father of Elisabeth, and a well known painter, has frequently exhibited in our local gallery.

The second exhibitor, Wesley Dennis, also resided in Winchester for a short time, as well as in Medford. Both he and his brother, Morgan Dennis, specialize in animals one choosing dogs, the other horses. Esquire ran a series of pictures of famous American horses painted by Martin Dennis, and he also gained notice through his illustrations of his book Flip about a Kentucky Bluegrass colt. This book, although written for young-sters, was fully as popular with their elders who were attracted by the clever animal illustrations.

Mr. Dennis has had a following among the owners of race horses and polo ponies. These men display with pride his paintings of their favorite mounts. As a young man he bought a polo pony and soon became interested in following the race circuits under contract to paint the horses he knew so well.

Mr. Dennis now makes his home in Montgomery, N. Y. near the West Point Air Field.

The third exhibitor is Philip Lincoln Martin who is of special interest because he is to be the guest speaker on Tuesday evening. He attended Huntington School and the School of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, took courses at Mass. Normal Art School and Harvard University, and received private instruction with several men, including Mr. James Brough and Mr. Francis Hight (the later from Winchester).

Mr. Martin taught art at School of Practical Art in Boston and Tower Hill School in Wilmington Del., lectured on art subjects at various art schools and for the University Extension courses. He is a member of the Boston Society of Watercolor Painters and, although born in Boston, claims the State of Vermont as his permanent home.

Besides the type of pictures to be seen at the exhibition, Mr. Martin also does mural decorations and book illustrations.

Mrs. Vaughn Harmon, chairman of the hospitality committee, will be hostess for the evening, assisted by her committee of eight. Mrs. Lyle K. Bush, wife of the Association's last president, and Mrs. G. Russell Mann, wife of the present president, will pour.

TWO INJURED IN CAR CRASH

Last Friday evening a Ford sedan, driven north on Main street by Erasmus S. Mitrano of 51 Tufts street, Somerville, was in collision at the intersection of the Parkway with a Pontiac, driven by Samuel Roberto of 23 Irving street, who was driving east on the Parkway.

Both cars were badly damaged and had to be towed away. Roberto received injuries to his right shoulder and was taken by Officer William Cassidy to the Winchester Hospital where he was treated by Dr. Philip J. McManus. Mitrano complained of injuries to his left upper arm.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Here's How Our Men Feel About It

"Folks tryin' to pass laws to take legal beer away are usin' our soldiers as an excuse," remarked Jeb Crowell recently.

"They really don't give a darn how the soldiers feel about it but they think it's a good opportunity to move in fast now, while the soldiers can't vote."

"That's so," I told him, "I was just readin' a London dispatch about the British Institute of Public Opinion polling our soldiers on that very subject.

"Overwhelmingly our men voted 'no prohibition laws 'til we get back!' Here's the clipping."

The poll showed that 85% of our men would vote against any new dry laws at all. Only 9% would vote for one. And 6% hadn't made up their minds on it.

From where I sit, that bears out everything I've ever heard about soldiers. And when they get back if they want dry laws they'll have the votes to get 'em! But for folks to pass laws in their absence is just another double-cross, like after the last war.

TAKE GOOD CARE OF THE THINGS YOU HAVE

HOW TO GET THE MOST FROM YOUR AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATER

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

It's easy enough to make bathrobes
When the days are cool and dry,
But the sew-ers worth while are the sew-ers who sew
When the mercury shoots sky high!

Some 12 to 15 Fortnightly members who, every Thursday this summer, regardless of heat and humidity, made men's pajamas and bathrobes as a contribution of the Fortnightly Red Cross sewing group proved the truth of this statement.

Literally dozens of these items were made on those uncomfortable Thursdays, and much credit and appreciation go to these faithful workers and their hospitable hostesses, Mrs. Ernest Chase, Mrs. Edward Grosvenor and Mrs. Newell Page.

Still other fingers flew during the hot summer days with another type of needle. One member brought in this fall six helmets, six pairs of socks, three watch caps and one pair of trigger mitts, a single example of what Fortnightly knitters accomplished.

One knitted article, the need of which is very great in these days of returning soldiers, is stump socks. The State Federation has sponsored the making of these socks, and responding to the appeal many women, members of the club and others, have given generously of their time. Seventy of these socks have been completed, and a letter of appreciation of the gift and the careful workmanship was received very recently from the Chelsea Hospital. The yarn and the labor are donated, and the cooperation of any and all Winchester women is welcome.

Knitting can be monotonous, but the knowledge of the comfort these articles bring to the boys in service and in hospitals make it really a labor of love.

To make one helmet perhaps or even a pair of pajamas is a fairly simple matter. Real service comes in continuous effort, the daily remembering that "Keeping Everlastingly at it Brings Success."

RESTORATION OF COLONIAL WILLIAMSBURG

The Winchester Historial Society is on Friday evening, Nov. 3, presenting Dr. Charles H. Tozier, and his justly popular illustrated lecture on the Restoration of Colonial Williamsburg in the auditorium of the high school. The illustrations are beautifully colored pictures, both movies and stills, showing this great undertaking.

Dr. Tozier is the only one commissioned to take such pictures as he shows of this restoration, undertaken, in the words used at the dedication, "that the future may learn from the past."

At Williamsburg has been reproduced not only the architectural appearance of the place, buildings and grounds, but the actual life of the period, 1700 to 1800, has been recreated in the people, dressed in Colonial costume, who have been placed in the town to carry on the old time duties of the early inhabitants in the same old shops and houses. The effect is that of a living drama of the early days, the sight of which is an experience long to be remembered.

The Rockefeller Foundation, in commissioning Dr. Tozier to reproduce the restoration of Williamsburg pictorially has made it possible for many to see and appreciate this truly magnificent piece of work which the Tozier photographic skill has so faithfully portrayed. Through his pictures there lives again much of the business life and social culture centered about Yorktown, Jamestown and Williamsburg in the "old days."

The work of restoration involved much research in this country, in the British Museum and other places in Europe, and has involved the expenditure of many million dollars.

FOUR FIRE ALARMS SUNDAY

The Fire Department was called four times on Sunday, twice to take care of oil burners that flooded, due to delayed ignition. The first of these calls was at 12.01 to the home of Mr. G. Keevey, 5 Bacon street The second run for a flooded burner was at 1.32 to the home of Mrs. Bertha Campbell, 19 Ridgefield road.

At 12.30 Sunday afternoon the safety valve on the steam heater blew off at the home of Mr. Ralph Perkins, 4 Maple road, filling the cellar with steam. The last run of the day came at 8.29 in the evening when the attic at the home of Mr. F. E. Keefe, 178 Mystic Valley Parkway, was discovered to be full of smoke. The firemen were unable to find any fire there and were of the opinion that a leaky chimney was responsible for the trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Casler of Forest street were reported the first of the week as enjoying a vacation at Peterborough, N. H.

COMMUNITY SERVICE PANEL

Why has there been a recent shortage of sugar in Winchester? Because the large seasonal demand has temporarily exhausted the supply between scheduled deliveries to the stores.

Almost every consumer is keenly interested in such details in the operation of rationing and price control. To help the Winchester War Price and Rationing Board keep the public in touch with details of its work, a Community Service Panel has been set up. An informal organization meeting was held at the library Tuesday evening, Sept. 26.

Members of the Panel include Mrs. Philip Woodward, chairman; Mrs. Theodore Brown, Miss Corinne Meade, Mrs. William Spaulding, Mr. Vincent Ambrose, Mrs. Charles Cole and Mr. Don Lewis.

Mr. Edward Walsh of the District OPA introduced the speakers, Mrs. Frances Russ and Miss Edith Doane of the Boston OPA office. Mrs. Russ outlined the Community Service program while Miss Doane spoke on the use of volunteer workers.

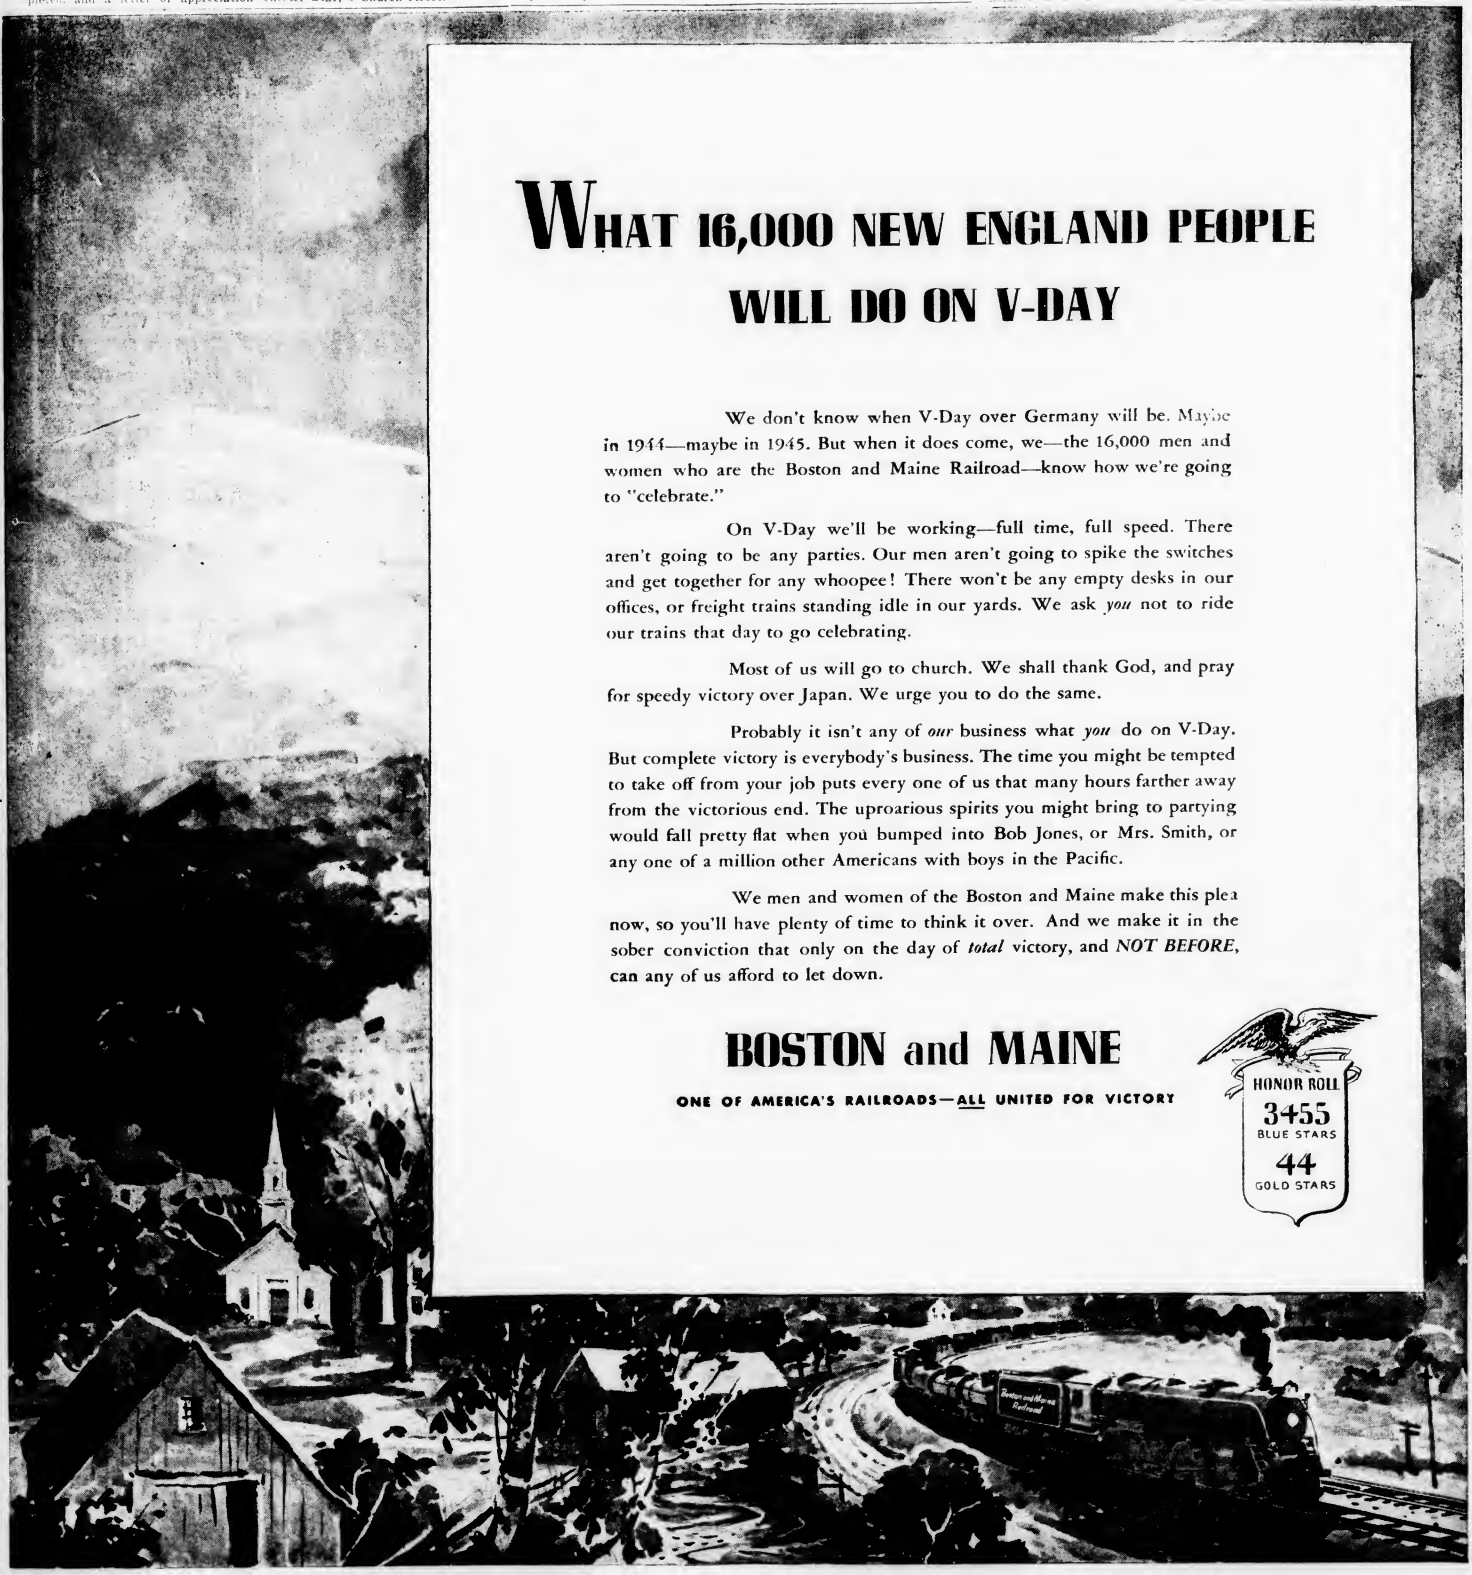

Mr. Dunbar F. Carpenter, Winchester Board chairman, Mrs. Mabel McCarthy, chief clerk and Mrs. Dan Murray, price control clerk, answered questions and led in a discussion of ways in which the new Panel could be of service to the board and to the community.

EPIPHANY SERVICE LEAGUE

Tuesday, Oct. 3, the group that has continued Tuesday work through the vacation months will have its last meeting. Under the leadership of Mrs. P. Stewart Newton the group has made Red Cross articles for men in service: 10 pajamas, 10 bathrobes and 15 bedshirts for hospital use, and about 100 of the kit bags which the army gives to each soldier as he embarks. The workroom also made 50 of the housewives that go into the kit bags.

In addition the Epiphany summer workers have made baby garments for the Church Home Society of the Boston City Mission. Directed by Mrs. Bernard Swiedler, they completed nine baby night gowns, seven wrapping blankets and for a half dozen babies they supplied short flannelette wrappers, nainsook slips and nainsook dresses. Thank to beautiful feather-stitching by Mrs. William C. Sache and Mrs. H. M. Wheelock these little garments lived up to the good standard "made for a baby you'll never see, but pretty enough for your very own."

Mrs. Wheelock's exquisite stitches have gone to many destinations: to Russian children in the liberated areas to Episcopal groups in Southern mountains and Dakota plains. Now she is stitching away for the baby table of the Epiphany Fair Nov. 3.

WHAT 16,000 NEW ENGLAND PEOPLE WILL DO ON V-DAY

We don't know when V-Day over Germany will be. Maybe in 1944—maybe in 1945. But when it does come, we—the 16,000 men and women who are the Boston and Maine Railroad—know how we're going to "celebrate."

On V-Day we'll be working—full time, full speed. There aren't going to be any parties. Our men aren't going to spike the switches and get together for any whoopee! There won't be any empty desks in our offices, or freight trains standing idle in our yards. We ask you not to ride our trains that day to go celebrating.

Most of us will go to church. We shall thank God, and pray for speedy victory over Japan. We urge you to do the same.

Probably it isn't any of our business what you do on V-Day. But complete victory is everybody's business. The time you might be tempted to take off from your job puts every one of us that many hours farther away from the victorious end. The uproarious spirits you might bring to partying would fall pretty flat when you bumped into Bob Jones, or Mrs. Smith, or any one of a million other Americans with boys in the Pacific.

We men and women of the Boston and Maine make this plea now, so you'll have plenty of time to think it over. And we make it in the sober conviction that only on the day of total victory, and NOT BEFORE, can any of us afford to let down.

AN EMERGENCY EXISTS

This is an appeal to the loyal patriotic women of Winchester who have always risen to the occasion when convinced that the responsibility was theirs.

These are the facts. Owing to the increasing number of casualties at the front, our nurses are being transferred to meet the growing demand with the result that we at home are woefully lacking in trained nurses to care for those of our kindred and friends who are suffering from sickness and accidents.

The solution is this: An adequate number of nurse's aides to make up the deficiency.

There are already 70 nurse's aides in Winchester who devote as much time as possible to this service of mercy, but many more are needed and to help meet this great need a new class for Nurse's aides to be started on Oct. 16 extending through Dec. 8, the chairman must look at once the number of volunteers to be provided for, consequently all those willing to sign up for this class of training are urged to call at once Mrs. Wayne Thompson, Win. 2227.

This interesting and valuable course of training not only fits one to perform a gracious act in a great emergency but also provides a knowledge which may be of the greatest value to one's self and family in the years to come. It is hoped that a goodly number will feel privileged to devote the morning rooms, 19 Church street, a portion of their time to this worthy Winchester, on Monday, Oct. 2, 1944 cause by signing up at once for this at 2 p. m.

MEET THE FAMILY FRONT THREAT!

The Family Front is constantly threatened by the invasion of illness. Be prepared!

Take a Red Cross Home Nursing course to prevent illness from gaining a beachhead on your family front.

A Home Nursing class will start Tuesday, Oct. 10 at 7:30 p. m. in Room 11, second floor, Locatelli Bldg., (corner Main and Thompson streets) The class will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. on Tuesday and Thursday evenings through 12 sessions. Join the class now, by calling Mrs. Alfred Higgins (Win. 2202). Registration is limited to 20 members.

During the summer Red Cross home nursing certificates were awarded to Mrs. E. W. Aseltine, Mrs. Isaiah Bullard, Mrs. Richard Frazier, Mrs. Winslow Smith and Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Florence Elliott, R. N., this group was prepared to join the ranks of the Winchester Home Nurses, alert to the methods of attack of the wary enemy illness, ready to care for, in their own homes, the victims of his sniper bullets.

NEARLY THREE TONS OF CLOTHING COLLECTED FOR RUSSIANS

Despite bad weather the town trucks directed by Edward A. McKenzie were on the job "Clothes for Russia Day" Sept. 14. The men employed by the town worked with the volunteers Bob Atkinson, Larry Norton and Philip Slocum, to gather "bundles for Russia" which generous Winchester citizens had prepared in advance.

Widespread interest had been aroused through distribution of leaflets by the Boy Scouts, and by the public and parochial schools. Precinct 2 was organized by Sergei Sorokin, who with his friends Victor Griffiths, Douglas Hawkins and Zeke Hicks, covered that entire territory.

Most original donation, a huge old fashioned trunk filled with clothing, admittedly not of the 1944 fall mode, but warm and in excellent condition.

The success of the drive was due to the competent and tireless leadership of Mrs. Pitirim A. Sorokin, assisted by her committee: Mrs. Theodore Atkinson, Miss Natalie Jewett, Mrs. Guy Livingstone, Mrs. W. Noel Middleton and Mrs. Lyman Smith.

The co-operation of the Board of Selectmen, Elliots F. Cameron honorary chairman and Parker Holbrook Committee, Mrs. Raymond Bohanon will have charge of the devotions, Mrs. L. Earl Jackson will be the speaker. Her subject will be "Mothering One World." The meeting will close with the opening of the gift boxes.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC OFFERS OUTSTANDING INSTRUCTION

The Arlington Academy of Music opens its 10th season with the same outstanding faculty: Frank Ward, Americo Chaves, Jacob Knuttunne, Robert and James Brunton, Edward Goguen, Isabel Butterfield and Theodore Simonelle, Leonard Wood is the director. Approximately 160 pupils have already enrolled. Courses of instruction are available in all orchestral instruments, voice and piano.

About two thirds of the enrolled pupils are interested in classical instruction. Due largely to the dynamic personality of Frank Ward, head of the popular music department, there is a large group interested in this field of music.

The voice department is headed by Isabel Butterfield. Miss Butterfield is a specialist in radio technique. She arranges for and is an artist on two sponsored programs over Station WBZ.

Courses of instruction are available in piano, voice, violin, trumpet, clarinet, saxophone, trombone, accordian, guitar, drums and musical theory. During the current "freeze" on instruments a few are available.

This course, beginning Monday evening, Nov. 13, will include lectures on music personality in your home, clothes entertaining, and the art of cookery. More information concerning this course will be published later.

Much of her work is already underway and is being carried out in co-operation with the publicity effort of the fund raising organization.

COAL WOOD STOVES OFF RATION LIST

Rationing of coal and wood heating and cooking stoves ends Oct. 15. The numbe of these stoves now on hand, plus anticipated production, is calculated to be enough to meet demand after that date. Massachusetts War Price and Rationing Boards will not issue consumer certificates for coal and wood stoves after Oct. 15. Oil and gas stoves, still in short supply, will remain rationed.

Campaign Managers to Get Gasoline

Campaign managers of candidates for State or Federal office have been made eligible for special gas rations equivalent to B rations by OPA. Campaign managers must present certification to local Massachusetts War Price and Rationing Boards showing that they have been duly appointed by the candidate and that travel is necessary for conduct of the campaign.

Oil Only for Houses that Used it in 1943

Although OPA has authorized Rationing Boards to accept new applications for fuel oil rations from persons who did not receive rations last year for the same address, quotas can be granted at the new address only if oil was burned there by the former occupant. OPA officials said that oil will be short this winter and every conservation possible must be practised. Home owners should delay as long as possible lighting the furnace for the winter.

WASTE PAPER COLLECTION

The waste paper collection committee would like to take this opportunity, through the Winchester Star to thank the people of Winchester for their co-operation in the paper collection drive. Paper is needed badly, so please keep up the good work on future collections.

The people of Winchester should also be informed of the excellent work the boys of Troop 1 of the Winchester Boy Scouts have been doing in their weekly collection of paper from the stores in the center. Every Friday afternoon these boys for no financal remuneration go from store to store and carry the stock back to the air raid shelter where the committee segregate and bundle the various types of stock for delivery to the mill.

Aiding in the work are Charles Andersen, Robert Duckworth, William McKeown, John McElhinney, Bob McElhinney, George Sullivan, William Sullivan, Thomas Walsh, Robert Walsh, John Berryman and Harry Brown.

The committee felt these boys should receive some recreational compensation for their efforts so on last Sunday headed by their able Scoutmaster, Staff Rogers, they were piled into his beach wagon and taken to the Smith House, Cambridge, for a Sunday dinner and thence to Braves Field where a double header baseball game between the Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers was enjoyed.

It is needless to say how much the boys enjoyed the day and the committee feel it was an inspiration for them to continue their good work and plan to repeat the procedure at future athletic events.

SPANISH CLASSES FORMING NOW

Plans are well under way for the beginners and advanced Spanish classes to be held at the library this winter. They will be held each Wednesday night at 7 and Prof. Jose A. Godoy of the Pan American will teach the advanced class. The instructor of the elementary class will be announced next week.

All those interested in studying Spanish this winter should phone or drop by the library.

CAMEO STUDIO

The Cameo Studio is a one man business, obviously we have to accept the limitations that this implies. Due to war time conditions we are working 70 hours per week, but even so we are unable to accept more than about 60 per cent of the work asked for.

The shortage of material available makes it impossible to make many combinations customers would like. If we are unable to do your work it is because we do not intend to take advantage of a war boom to produce a lot of junk, just for the sake of making extra dollars. In most cases our photographs are better and are priced about 30 per cent below the prices of those places doing similar work, but we can do only a limited amount of business.

CANTEEN OPENING HUGE SUCCESS

Last Saturday night the Red and Black Canteen opened its doors for the first time and between 400 and 500 members filled every inch of space from 7:30 to closing time at 11:30. In the game room every table was filled all evening, with the most squeels of excitement coming from the Ouija board, called upon to predict most every kind of question.

The coke bar did a flourishing business, selling 600 bottles during the evening, and the main lounge was packed. In spite of entreaties from Jim Ware, Joe Errico and others it was difficult to clear a space for dancing, but eventually as the crowd thinned out the dancing really got going. Both pianos proved very popular, and at times with two pianos and juke box all going at once there was plenty of rhythm.

Practically the only disappointing part of the opening was the inability of the juke box to be heard over the confusion of 400 people chattering at once. This week the company who installed the juke box are sending outin representative to adjust it for more volume and to add an overhead loud-speaker which will help. At any rate, it will be unusual if such a big percentage of high schoolers show up at one evening again, especially with the Canteen open both Friday and Saturday evenings, so that smaller crowds will make more room for dancing and better selection of the latest music.

Nancy Ford who had worked hard and long getting the Canteen ready deserved much praise for her flower arrangements. Incidentally the beautiful plaids on the stage were sent by Mr. and Mrs. John Kingman who were present as host and hostess.

The Canteen is open both tonight and tomorrow night. Hosts and hostesses tonight: Mr. and Mrs. James Ware; tomorrow night: Mr. and Mrs. Theodore C. Browne. Pop and Mrs. Whittemore also plan to be on hand

Cornwall, recently returned from duty in the Persian Gulf, made a few interesting remarks concerning the railroad there which is supplying Russia.

The guests also included Postmaster Philip J. Gallagher of Woburn.
